LAPIERRE ARRESTED

He is Charged With Larceny of an Automobile

Arthur Lapiere, aged 22, of 778 Merrimack street, Lowell, was locked up at the police station in Nashua on complaint of Joseph Marin, a business man living at 793 Merrimack street, Lowell, to await the coming of the Lowell officers.

The arrest was the sequel of a joy ride in which five other Lowell men, all about 20 years of age, were detained for a while at the police station, but later allowed to depart. They were Henry Fraser of 489 Moody street, Alphyre Derossiers of 385 Aiken street, Ernest Labree of 4 Rockdale avenue, Edmund Forquet of 13 Aiken street, and Charles Ouellette of 103 Tremont street. Earlier in the evening the Nashua police received word through a local garage to look out for a red Overland car numbered 15,226, Massachusetts register, which it was alleged had been stolen and was headed for Nashua.

About 10:30 Patrolmen Mulvanity and Richard found the car with the six occupants on Walnut street, Nashua, making a round of the town, and brought them all to the station. Lowell was communicated with and Mr. Marin with friends in two other cars started for Nashua. In the meanwhile Lapiere said to the police that he kept a repair shop and had taken the machine to fix. He took it out last night to test it, he said, with his friends.

Mr. Marin, on his arrival denied this statement. He said that Lapiere worked for him until yesterday, when he gave up the keys. He added that the lock on the shed where the car is kept was broken last night.

This is the first time the Nashua police ever dealt with a case where the larceny of an automobile was alleged. The five young men who came in the Overland went back with Mr. Marin and his friends.

The Next Time You Are Down Town

It will certainly repay you to look at the collection of medicines and toilet articles made by the C. I. Hood Co. that takes up so much room in one of the large Merrimack street windows of Dows' drug store. These carefully prepared and elegantly put-up preparations meet a great variety of physical needs, some of which are every-day occurrences. The tablets called Dyspeptics help the stomach to take care of indigestibles, so-called, and will have much to do during the mince-pie and plum pudding holidays that will soon be here.

Powerful Advertising

After dark the one magnet for trade is illumination. Electric window lights and signs are the most profitable night advertising. They draw trade and hold it. Attract the Christmas crowd into your store by the use of electric light.

A $50,000 SUIT

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—An attachment for $50,000 was made yesterday against Eugene N. Foss in a suit brought in the superior court by Senator Frank J. Linehan.

Joseph P. Lyons, counsel for Mr. Linehan, refused last night to discuss the nature of the suit.

Mr. Foss, when questioned, said he knew nothing about the suit and knew of no facts that would warrant the bringing of any suit against him by Mr. Linehan.

STANDARD OIL
Held to be an Illegal Company

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 20.—In an opinion written by Circuit Judge W. H. Sanborn of St. Paul filed in St. Louis and St. Paul today the United States circuit court for the district of Missouri held that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey was an illegal corporation and ordered that it be dissolved.

AGAIN MISSING

Boy Was Kidnapped Once Before

LYNN, Nov. 20.—Harry Bekowitz, aged 14, for whose kidnapping a man is now serving a five year term in prison at Baltimore, has mysteriously disappeared from his home at 112 Wyman street, Lynn. His parents fear he may have been the victim of a second kidnapping.

The Bekowitz family came from Baltimore to Lynn six months ago. The father is a shoe worker. Harry does odd jobs at the Putnam & Cross shoe factory and attends night school. Three years ago in Baltimore, his mother told a reporter yesterday, he fell into the hands of a man who tried to teach him to be a burglar. The boy managed to get away from this man.

On Oct. 30 Harry went to work as usual, but has not been seen since. He had his week's pay of $3. His mother says he was a good boy.

JAPANESE WOMAN

Is Dying as Result of Accident

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Suffering from severe burns, Miss Hino Kato, a Japanese student of the New England Conservatory of Music, is dying at the City hospital, as the result of a fire in one of the apartments at the Hoffman House, at Berkeley street and Columbus avenue, last evening.

Miss Kato is 52 years old, and has been living in the apartments of E. H. Watson. She locked herself in one of the rooms and was cooking over an alcohol lamp. In some way the lamp was overturned and her clothes took fire. She tried to put out the flames herself, but her clothes burned quickly, and when her screams were heard, the janitor and others could not get in.

At last the door was forced and the woman was found unconscious with all her clothes burned away. An alarm was sounded and the fire put out.

DEATHS
CHOATE—Miss Clara A. Choate, aged 72 years, 7 months, died today at the home of her niece, Mrs. Blanche Chandler of East Billerica. She leaves three brothers, Albert R. of Granville and George R. and Wilbur H. Choate of this city; two sisters, Mrs. Abbie F. Blaisdell and Miss Annie E. Choate of Billerica; three grand nieces, Isabella, Avis and Willette Chandler, and one grand nephew, Albert Chandler.

CLAIMS HIS SALARY

Hisley Also Wants Money He Paid for Legal Expenses

There arrived at the city auditor's office this forenoon a bill from Alden R. Hisley for salary as assistant engineer for the city of Lowell from March 1, 1909 to July 27, 1909, and for expenses incurred by process of his suit against the city. The total amount of his bill is $394.45: $375.35 for wages and $19.10 for expenses. Mr. Hisley was laid off by City Engineer Bowers in July on the grounds that there wasn't anything for him to do and Mr. Hisley's bill against the city, which is now pending, is for wages and expenses as above stated.

Given by the committee on sewers one week from next Monday night.

To Make Improvements
In repairing his building numbered 323-325 Middlesex street, Mr. A. C. Wheelock will make some changes and improvements. This is the building damaged by the fire that started in a junk shop in Jackson street several nights ago. The additions will include another half story making it a three instead of a two and one-half story building as at present and the pitched roof will give way to a flat roof. Bath rooms will be added and other alterations will be made.

ARMY MANOEUVRES
SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 20.—Information is brought by the United States army transport Dix that preparations were being made to hold extensive army manoeuvres in the Philippines next January. The Dix is under orders to load supplies ashore as quickly as possible and proceed at once for Manila in order to participate in the movement of the troops. It is planned to use all the government transports on the Pacific in this work.

Want Sewer Extended
Rev. T. W. Smith, O. M. L. and others have petitioned for an extension of the sewer in Moore street for a distance of about 80 feet in order to drain the new Sacred Heart school building. Other sewers or extensions have been petitioned for in Marsh street and East Merrimack street and Plummer avenue. A hearing on these petitions will be held.

DEMOCRATS!

The Time is drawing near when you must determine whom you will select as your standard bearer to defeat the present chief executive.

Will You vote for a candidate who has little or no chance of obtaining either the nomination or election, or will you support JAMES E. O'DONNELL who is admittedly the candidate that can be relied upon for success at the polls?

Have You not thoroughly satisfied yourselves that O'DONNELL'S record, personal and political, is above reproach, that he has been and will be loyal to his party nominees and faithful to the interests of the people?

Were You misled by the misrepresentations of O'DONNELL'S labor record, and could you believe that JAMES E. O'DONNELL ever was anything but a sincere friend and devoted representative of the masses?

THEN why not be consistent and decide now to vote for O'DONNELL at the caucuses on Tuesday next, and thereby do your utmost to nominate and elect the candidate who can win, JAMES E. O'DONNELL by name, an able, honest and substantial citizen.

VISITING DAY

Out of Town People Had the Call in Police Court

Today was visitors' day in police court for of the eight prisoners occupying seats in the cage six were from out of town. Judge Hadley informed the visitors to this city that they are of the undesirable class and if they did not intend to quit drinking while in Lowell the best thing they could do would be to go some place else.

He said that if any of the men who appeared before him this morning were brought into court for drunkenness that he would send them to the state farm.

John Lyons, an elderly man, who claimed Harrisville, N. H., as his home, looked as though he had been pulled through a threshing machine. The side of his face was badly battered and his eye was cut and discolored. He was fined $2 as was James Ingolsby, who claimed Lincoln, N. H., as his residence.

Edward Cote of Lawrence got out of the jail in that city the other day and thought he would come to Lowell. He had been here but a short time when he was arrested. It cost him $6.

John F. Noel of North Adams, Mass., John McArthur of Draut and George Armstrong of Hartford, Conn., were charged with being drunk, and each was fined $5.

John J. Fox was fined $6 for being drunk, and Samuel Sharrow, a parole man, will be returned to the state farm.

ASKS INJUNCTION

To Prevent Invasion of Post Office

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—The United States brought an action in the U. S. circuit court yesterday, through U. S. Atty. Asa P. French, against the Boston Elevated Railway company and the Hugh Nawn Contracting company, seeking an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering, interfering, invading or trespassing, or breaking into or taking any part of the premises corner of Boylston and Brattle streets, Cambridge, without the consent of the government, in connection with the construction of the Cambridge subway.

The subway is to be run under Brattle street and the government alleges that the defendants intend to do work under the building at the corner of the streets named, in which the government has a postoffice on the ground floor and basement.

The government alleges that the work will impair the efficiency of the building and interfere with the use of the building as a postoffice and also with the distribution of the mail.

The order is returnable Jan. 1, but it is believed that the two defendant companies will seek a hearing at an earlier date.

The proceeding is very unusual. It is the first action ever brought here by the government to prevent an invasion of a postoffice.

From a legal point of view it is highly important, especially in view of the fact that it contemplates stopping a public work.

The defendants are working under a special act of the legislature, empowering them to do the work in the manner they are doing it, but the government in defence of the postoffice seeks to stop the work insofar as it in any way interferes with the postoffice and the distribution of the mail.

HE ESCAPED
MAN BROKE AWAY FROM AN OFFICER

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Alcide Charbon of Fitchburg, who is alleged to be a deserter from the U. S. army, escaped from Reserve Officer Bergeron of that city yesterday afternoon while being taken to the Charlestown navy yard from North station.

After leaving North station the officer walked across the street with his prisoner and up to the elevated station. While waiting for a train Charbon got into the crowd and made a successful dash for liberty. He ran down the stairs of the elevated station and soon disappeared.

The officer searched for him in several places, but failed to find any trace of him. He reported the escape of his man to the officer in charge of station 1, but up to a late hour last night the deserter had not been located.

The officer told a reporter that Charbon offered him $200 for his liberty and that he refused it. He said he knew Charbon well and for that reason trusted him and did not handcuff him.

HELD FOR ARSON

Mrs. Adams Bound Over in $1000

The case of Margaret Adams, charged with maliciously burning a building and also with attempting to defraud two insurance companies, was concluded in police court yesterday afternoon. After arguments had been made by Fire Inspector Rice for the government and J. Joseph O'Connor for the defence, Judge Bradley found probable cause of guilt and held the woman under $1000 for her appearance before the superior court.

WORK STOPPED

In Order to Search for Dynamite

LAWRENCE, Nov. 20.—Work in excavating for the foundation of the new print works of the Pacific mills on Merrimack street has been suspended as a precautionary step, pending a search for a supply of dynamite, which is thought to have been buried there 11 years ago.

James Humphrey, gatekeeper for the Wood worsted mills, recently recalled that while employed by the Boston & Northern Street Railway company in 1898 the dynamite was supposed to have been placed underground under the direction of James Hearnley, an expert in the handling of explosives, who had been carrying on some work for the company.

The land embraces a number of acres and was then covered with a scrub growth of trees. It is opposite the car barn of the street railway company.

Mr. Humphrey communicated with the authorities and steps were at once taken to guard against accident. Humphrey was unfamiliar with the location of the explosive and Hearnley is dead.

It was decided to send for Patrick Murphy, who was assistant foreman under Hearnley. He was found in New York state and is now here to conduct a search.

MADE NEW RECORDS
BOUY, France, Nov. 20.—Competing for the Vellier height prize for heavier-than-air machines, Hubert Latham yesterday in a monoplane ascended a distance of 1645 feet and Mr. Paulhan in a biplane 1181 feet. Both of these heights are world's records. Paulhan previously held the honor at 997 feet.

Orville Wright made an unofficial flight at a height of 1600 feet at Potsdam in October and Count de Lambert is credited with having reached a height of 1200 feet when he passed over the Eiffel tower. This latter feat was also unofficial.

Consumption Can Be Cured.

Mrs. Nettie Carter of Elkton, Ky., after her physician had told her that she had consumption took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and has been completely restored to health. Appetite is good, she sleeps well, and enjoys life without pain or ache.

"I had acute indigestion for two years, which kept growing worse. I employed several physicians without any benefit. I came near starving, as I could eat very little. For several months I suffered frequent attacks of vomiting, which made me very weak. Finally my physician told me that I had consumption. This filled me with terror.

"In an advertisement in the Nashville Banner I read that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended for Tuberculosis or Consumption. I began to take it in despondent doses four or five times a day, and a tablespoonful at bedtime. I am now strong and well. Cough, distress in my chest, and the indigestion are gone. My appetite is good; I sleep well. This is all due to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which I regard as an unfailing cure of consumption if taken in time."—Mrs. Nettie Carter, Elkton, Ky.

Thousands, both men and women, like Mrs. Carter, praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for restoring them to health.

OYSTER ROAST

Was Enjoyed by President Taft

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 20.—As one of the concluding features of the convention of the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways association, and to accept again the hospitality of the people of the Old Dominion, President Taft came to Norfolk yesterday, reviewed a military parade, made two speeches in which he bespoke his interest in a practical system of waterway improvement to be carried forward on a businesslike basis and not merely as a means of distributing patronage; partook of an oyster roast under the shadows of the towering Cape Henry lighthouse, and attended a smoker in honor of a large corps of visiting newspapermen. The president retired last night on the presidential yacht Mayflower. The Mayflower this morning got under way for Hampton, where the president will attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the Hampton Normal Institute, of which he is a member. This afternoon he delivered an address to the colored students and then sailed for Washington.

A reception to the Norfolk committee and the delegates to the convention began the day's program and then came the parade and speech by the president from a reviewing stand.

President Taft was introduced by Gov. Swanson, and said in part:

"I am glad to be here to testify to my interest in the waterways work. What I wish to deprecate is a general proposition to raise a lot of money and jump here and there and some back here just in order to distribute it equally over the country. I am opposed to that. I am in favor of expending the money for an improvement in Norfolk and not spending it for improvement somewhere else. If the Norfolk project is a good one and the one somewhere else is not.

"I want to say that I will take up what is projected and proposed with all the sympathy possible, but nevertheless with what I hope is a judicial spirit to reject the evidence does not sustain and to approve what the evidence does sustain."

The president referred to the battle of the Merrimack and the Monitor, and said:

"I want a navy to continue to be maintained worthy of this country. We are knocking anybody's ship off his shoulder and we are not having a ship on our shoulder, but we are a great nation of eighty or ninety millions of people, and we must in order, under the present conditions to maintain the prestige that is proportionate to our stand before the world, have a navy that is worth seeing and able to fight if it has to."

The president was taken by special train to Cape Henry, for an old-fashioned oyster roast. When the president arose to speak he declared that he felt like an oyster.

The waterways delegates having practically completed the business of their convention yesterday, gave the day over to participating in the welcome to the president.

SMITH'S ESTATE

The Entire Funds Went to Charity

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 20.—Robert O. Morris, representing the trustees under the will of Horace Smith, the well-known inventor-philanthropist of this city, announced yesterday for the first time the disposition of the property, amounting in all to $892,590.

Horace Smith was one of the founders of the Smith Wesson revolver manufacturing concern, and he was the inventor of many of the devices. At the time of his death, in 1893, it was known that his estate, amounting to nearly a million dollars, had been left entirely to charitable purposes, the disposition of the money being left in the hands of L. S. Lee, J. S. Appleton and A. B. West, three prominent Springfield bankers.

All three of these trustees have died and Robert O. Morris and Robert W. Day have been elected to the board, with a vacancy still existing on account of the recent death of Mr. West. There are about 30 religious, educational and charitable institutions as beneficiaries under the will. A part of the money has been turned over by the trustees and some is still held in trust as a fund.

Among the chief beneficiaries are: Springfield city library, $171,193; Y. M. C. A. training school, $77,951; Wesleyan academy, $68,568; Springfield hospital, $82,000; Springfield Y. M. C. A., $49,500; Home for Friendless Women and Children, $30,500; Mt. Holyoke college, $20,000; American International college, $17,550; Asbury Methodist church, $15,236; Young Women's Christian association, $27,000; Springfield Home for Aged Women, $15,000; Mercy hospital, $17,500; school for Christian Workers, $12,000; Tuskegee institute, $11,000; Bible Normal college, $9,000; Morgan college, $6,000; Union Relief association, $5,000; Holyoke library association, $3,500; Hampden County Children's Aid association, $5,500; Smith Memorial hospital, Brentville, $3,000; Wesson Memorial hospital, $25,000; Deane orphanage, $1,000; Springfield Rescue mission, $1,000; Bathsville home, $25,000.

CURTAILMENT IN MILLS

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 20.—At a mass meeting of spinners held last night the recommendation of the Manchester Spinners' Federation, that the time curtailment now in force in the cotton mills be continued until the end of February was confirmed.

P. W. Macara, president of the International Cotton Federation, expressed the conviction that the short time movement would defeat the efforts of persons endeavoring to corner the cotton crop.

EATON FOR MAYOR

BROCKTON, Nov. 20.—A vote one-third larger than any before polled at a republican caucus in Brockton resulted last night in the nomination for mayor of C. Chester Eaton over Harry Howard by a plurality of 1141. The total vote was 3221.

HIS NECK BROKEN

Boy Injured in Football Game

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 20.—With his neck broken in much the same way as that of Cadet Byrne of West Point, Albert P. Wiberis, 17 years old, died last night in the Orange Memorial hospital, another victim to football. He was tackled in an open field while running with the ball, and thrown head first.

ON SHORT TIME

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 20.—The various mills of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Co. in the eastern states yesterday went on a five days a week schedule, which will be continued until the cotton market situation improves. The Stark mills in Manchester, employing 1,500, are among the plants affected.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The production of "The Ph" by Miss Helen Grayce and her players at the Opera House last evening proved the most delightful offering of a most satisfying engagement. The play in itself tells an absorbing story of reckless speculation that overflooded with time-interest. It was most capably enacted. Miss Grayce was entirely in her element as the society girl Laura Dearborn, who becomes the neglected wife. Mr. Barker scored heavily as Curtis Jadin while Edmund Abbey was most convincing as the artist.

The company will close its successful engagement this evening with a production of that famous play "In the Bishop's Carriage." The title of the drama gives but a faint idea of the interesting elements of the story which is based almost entirely upon the adventures of Nance Olden, a sneak thief and her pal, Tom Dorgan. These are two notorious persons of the underworld who are finally detected during one of their escapades. The girl concludes to reform and goes upon the stage. The man is sent to prison and escapes. His return to Nance, his efforts to drag her back to the old life and her final resolution makes one of the most effective scenes to be found in any of the newer plays.

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE."

The dramatic possibilities in the dual roles of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the somewhat weird offering to be seen at the Opera House next Monday night, has been recognized for many years by a number of prominent actors and has been included by many in their repertoire. The play has also been used by numbers of the less celebrated actors as a vehicle to attain histrionic honors. Of the latter class is Frederick Pierce who will be seen in the little role of the play next Monday night and whose success in the part has been included by many in their repertoire. The play is supported by Marie Roswell and an excellent company. The engagement here will be played at popular prices and seats for the engagement are now on sale.

"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER"

Next Tuesday night, Nov. 23d at the Opera House a thrilling melodrama, entitled "The Convict's Daughter" will be presented at a popular scale of prices. "The Convict's Daughter" is said to tell a heart story for all the family, the story of a man who is unjustly convicted of a crime and sentenced to prison. He escapes and being hard up consents to pose as the father of a girl against whom a fortune-seeking villain is plotting. As it turns out, the girl is really the convict's daughter, the villain is unmasked, virtue triumphs and vice is confounded. The company presenting the piece is said to be a capable one. Seats for the engagement are now on sale.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD"

There could be no more welcome announcement for the amusement-loving public than the appearance here of "The Old Homestead" at the Opera House, Wednesday, Nov. 24, matinee and night. The dear old pastoral play itself is by this time so familiar to everyone that any attempt to describe it would be supererogation. The mere mention of the names of Joshua Whitcomb, Cy Prime, Seth Perkins, Aunt Matilda and Rickety Ann, is sufficient to bring to mind all of these delightful rural characters, and at the same time arise in the background the pictures of the old farm, the homestead in Swansey, Conn. church on Broadway in New York City, and the aristocratic mansion of Henry Hopkins, the metropolitan merchant and millionaire.

The company this season is practically the same as last, and the production is said to be perfect in every detail. Seats for the engagement will go on sale today.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Thanksgiving comes next week, and the season of happiness and gastronomic joys is not complete without a visit to Hathaway's theatre. The feature of the week is "Suey Sam," the most unique playlet ever presented on the stage. This is a Chinese romance, played by Miss Mabel Badgley & Co., and gives an insight into the innermost secrets of the now famous Chinese shadow mystery that has baffled the police heads of the entire world.

REVOLUTIONISTS GANLEY IS HERE

Making Ready for Decisive Struggle

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Brooding quiet settled down yesterday on the strained situation this government finds itself in with Nicaragua. But if everything was quiet on the surface, there was plenty stirring beneath. A communication was received at the state department from the Nicaraguan legation, the purport of which was not divulged and the ministers from Guatemala and Costa Rica held a mysterious conference with Assistant Secretary Wilson yesterday afternoon.

A significant development of the day, inasmuch as it disclosed this government's unyielding determination not to interfere with the Nicaraguan revolutionists, was the reiterated announcement that the state department would not act to insure the safety of any American vessels which might be called upon or seized by the insurrectionary war vessels now blockading the government forces at Greytown or elsewhere on the Guatemalan coast. The announcement was made as a result of several inquiries by American shipping concerns during the day.

The deepest interest is apparent as to the conference between Assistant Secretary Wilson, Señor Calvo, minister from Costa Rica, and Dr. Herrarte, the minister from Guatemala. It is believed that the intention of the existing Pan-American treaty, signed here a little over two years ago, was the chief matter discussed. The violation of the agreement was committed by Gen. Toledo, in command of President Zelaya's forces when he invaded Costa Rican territory in his advance on Greytown, while practically he is now besieged.

In the threatened trouble between Nicaragua and Venezuela only a short time ago, the United States stood ready to prevent, by force, if necessary, the passage of the belligerents across the neutral territory of Honduras. This was pointed out by diplomats last night as indicative of the gravity of Gen. Toledo's offense against the Pan-American compact.

That the revolutionists under Gen. Chamorro are making preparations for the final and decisive struggle within the next three or four days was announced last night by Senator Salazar, the representative here of the Nicaraguan provisional government. The revolutionists have been short of ammunition and, for that reason, he said, have hesitated to take any serious steps looking to winning the struggle. Situated as they are at the present time, the revolutionists are content, apparently, to wait until they are fully prepared before they strike home. Gen. Chamorro pointed out that with the coast line in possession of his patriots, securing ammunition and arms is now a simple matter of only a few days. In the meantime, he says, Gen. Chamorro maintains his position in the steep hills overlooking Greytown and holds the Zelayan forces at his mercy.

The department was informed yesterday that Leonard Grace, who is believed to have been executed with Leroy Cannon by order of President Zelaya, was a native of Haverford, Pa., where his family is said now to reside.

To Explain Mass. Savings Insurance

A. E. Ganley, one of the instructors of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance league, is again spending one day each week in Lowell at the plant of the American Hide and Leather company, where he is presenting the subject of savings bank life insurance. Mr. Ganley has been meeting with great success in introducing the system at the Fore River Ship Building company, Quincy, and elsewhere. Another concern near Lowell that has lately become an agency for savings bank insurance is the Talbot mills, North Billerica. The savings insurance plan, as authorized by the legislature in 1907, is gradually winning its way in the state. A considerable impetus has been given by the annual statement of the Whitman Savings bank, the pioneer institution in starting the experiment, which showed that during the year ending Oct. 31, 1909, profits of more than $4000 were accumulated, giving the wage earners the benefit of dividends of 6 and 7 per cent according to the kind of policy carried.

SCENES IN NICARAGUAN REVOLUTION

WHERE TWO AMERICANS WERE EXECUTED

VIEW OF MANAGUA

REFUGEE AT GRENADE

JOSE SANTOS ZELAYA

CONSULS AT MANAGUA

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—The United States government took prompt action in the disturbance in Nicaragua following the execution of two Americans, Leroy Cannon and Leonard Grace, who were put to death as rebels by order of President Jose Santos Zelaya. It was announced in Managua that the men were captured while planting mines and that they had explosives and electrical apparatus in their possession which the rebels intended to use in blowing up a Nicaraguan gunboat. Both men are said to be soldiers of fortune. Cannon was a resident of Harrisburg, Pa., and is said to have engaged in a revolution in Honduras. This is denied by his friends. The navy department at once ordered the Vicksburg and the Des Moines, two warships, to the scene of the trouble, and it is declared at Washington that unless there is a prompt and adequate explanation on the part of Zelaya's marines will occupy the ports of his country. At all events, it is believed that the United States will put a quietus to the revolution at once. It is asserted in patches from Managua that Cannon and Grace were tried by court martial and given every chance to prove their innocence. This is not believed at Washington.

BOWLING NOTES

The Y. M. C. I. Team Defeated Sacred Heart

The Y. M. C. I. and the Sacred Heart teams of the Catholic bowling league met on the alleys last night with the result that the former team gave the latter a severe trouncing. In the Lamson league the Pneumatics defeated the Carriers by a wide margin.

Teams representing the New England Telephone and Telegraph company and Lowell Electric Light corporation rolled last night, the former team winning by the narrow margin of eight pins.

The game between teams from Companies M and G of the local armory was won by Company M by ten pins. The scores:

POLISH WRESTLER WON

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Zebysko, the Polish wrestler, won a handicap match last night by throwing three men in a little more than half an hour. Zebysko attempted to throw the trio in an hour. Tom Winkhofer was the hardest to down, but he was thrown in 19.35 with a scissor and a headlock. John Eberle was pinned to the mat in 10.34 with a crotch and barlock, while Leo Dumont succumbed in 1.20 on a crotch hold.

ST. ANNE'S MISSION

THE 22d ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED

The 22d anniversary of the establishment of St. Anne's mission at North Billerica was observed last night at the pretty little mission house. The interior of the building was artistically decorated, the attendance was very large and the affair proved to be an unqualified success.

The exercises opened with a short address by Mr. A. E. Paul after which Rev. A. St. John Chamber, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church in Lowell, was called upon.

One of the features of the evening was the entertainment which was in charge of John W. Stott. The following numbers were given: Selections by Edwin Thomas' orchestra of Boston; readings, Miss Kettell; sketch, "The Crystal Gazer" by Joseph Bailey and Miss Eva Pickles; vocal selections, Miss Olive Fleming of Lowell; readings, Maurice O'Donnell.

Mrs. Lucy Mills had general charge of the affair, being ably assisted by E. J. Garner and Joseph Brown. John W. Stott had charge of the entertainment.

Those who presided over the sales tables were: Girls Friendly table, Miss Mary H. Brown, matron; Misses Elizabeth Wain, Alice Mills, Ada Garner and Mildred Garner.

Mystery table, Mrs. James Sanson, chairman; Miss Mildred Fitch, Marlon Williams, May Casson.

Guill table, Mrs. E. J. Garner, Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. Albert W. Dawson, Mrs. William McBride.

Candy table, Misses May Sutcliffe, Blanche Williams.

Ice cream table, James Sanson, William Wain, Harold Oliver.

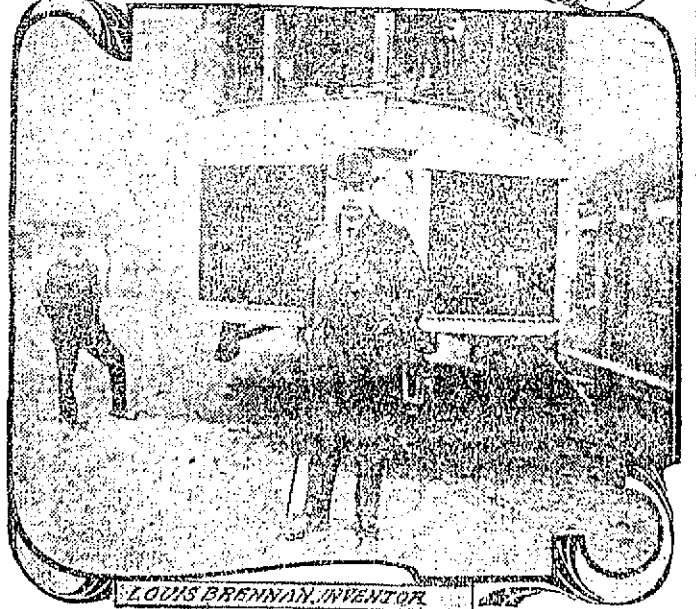

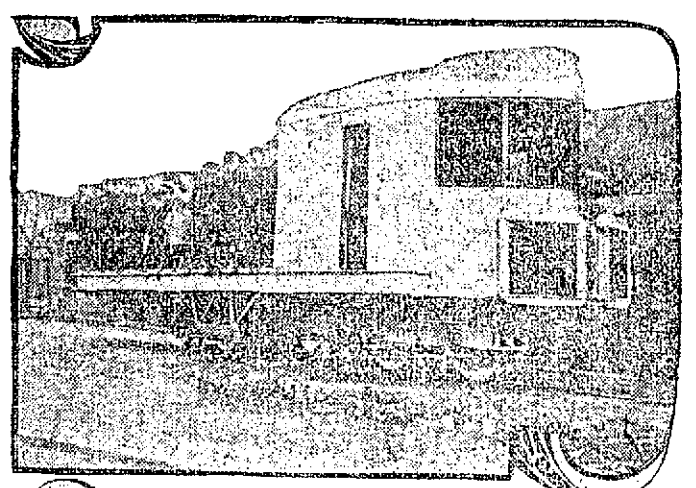

The decorating committee was composed of the following: Miss M. H. Brown, chairman; Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. William McBride, Mrs. James Sanson, Arthur Brown and Jas. Sanson. The affair will be continued tonight.

FIRST PHOTOS OF MONORAIL CAR AND ITS TRYOUT IN ENGLAND

LOUIS BRENNAN, INVENTOR

LONDON, Nov. 20.—These are the first photographs to reach America of Louis Brennan's monorail gyroscopic, upon which the British government is to spend $500,000 in establishing an absolutely new method of transportation. A car forty feet in length, bearing fifty persons, was tried out at Canningham, England, a few days ago, and these pictures of the machine and its inventor, who also invented the three-foot torpedo, were taken on that occasion.

At the tryout of the car two gyroscopes, spinning at a rate of 2000 revolutions a minute, were used to balance the vehicle and hold it to the monorail as perfectly as if the car had been running on an ordinary railway track. The principle is the same as a spinning top, the rapid revolutions of which prevent it from falling over. It is believed that the car can be run at a speed of 100 miles an hour with perfect safety.

WAGE REDUCTION THREATENED IN FALL

Is Threatened in Fall River

FALL RIVER, Nov. 20.—The 30,000 operatives in the four-score cotton mills of Fall River will face a reduction of nearly 9 per cent. in their wages on Dec. 13, unless the manufacturers decide to waive their right to make a cut under the so-called sliding scale agreement which has been in force for several years.

The existing situation is due to the great cost of cotton during the past six months and the failure of the finished product to advance correspondingly.

According to the terms of the agreement the margin between the cost of cotton and the price of standard print cloths will warrant a reduction from 19 2-3 cents per cut for weaving to 18 cents, or about 9 per cent.

The cloth market is very dull because of the uncertainty as to the future course of the raw material.

FAMOUS EDITOR

Served During the Civil War

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Richard Watson Gilder, poet, lecturer and editor-in-chief of the Century Magazine, who died suddenly in New York, was born in Gardentown, N. J., on February 8, 1811. After completing his education he enlisted in a Philadelphia battery, serving during a part of the civil war, after which he was for a time engaged in the railway business. In 1866 he took up newspaper work in Newark and in 1870 became managing editor of Scribner's monthly. He was honored with degrees at Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Wesleyan and many other universities, and his writings have been read in all civilized countries. EXCITING RUNAWAY

RESULTING FROM COLLISION IN WESTFORD STREET

An exciting runaway took place in Westford street early last evening in which Daniel Reid, driver for Dr. E. W. Trueworthy of Middlesex street, was painfully injured and the carriage in which he was riding was smashed almost to splinters.

Reid was driving through Westford street about 7 o'clock. There was a grocery wagon standing at the corner of Belvedere street, but owing to the absence of an electric light at that point Reid did not see the other vehicle, the first he knew of it being when the carriage in which he was riding collided with the other wagon.

The force of the impact frightened Dr. Trueworthy's horse and it became unmanageable and dashed down Westford street as far as the armory, where it was stopped. Meanwhile, Reid had been thrown out, injuring his shoulder and scratching his face and hands severely. Fortunately he escaped without broken bones, however.

The horse was not injured, but the physician's carriage was badly smashed up when it was taken to the stable.

CUDAHY BOY

SAID TO BE IN THIS CITY YESTERDAY

It was reported about the city yesterday that the Cudahy boy who was kidnapped by "Fat Crowe" about nine years ago, was here and to prove that all interest in a kidnapping that occurred so many years ago has not been dissipated, a small army hung about the Cudahy packing house in Market street anxious for a glimpse of young Cudahy. A reporter for The Sun was one of the curious, and he learned that the Cudahy young man who dropped off in Lowell was not the fellow who had been kidnapped by "Fat" Crowe, but a brother of the boy who was kidnapped. The young man who visited here this afternoon was Joseph Cudahy. He has an interest in the business and makes frequent visits to the various houses of the Cudahy Co.

STURDY GRAPPLERS WHO WILL MEET FOR IRISH CHAMPIONSHIP

CONNELLY O'KELLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The sporting public is finding that with a sudden rise of interest in the glove and squared circle pastime, caused perhaps by the Jeffries-Johnson agreement, a similar boom has struck the wrestling game. Promoters all over the country are in an earnest endeavor to boost the strenuous nut game back to the old place it occupied in the hearts of the sport-loving public. Many big bouts have been pulled off, and more are to come. The next big match on the calendar is between Con O'Kelly and Pat Connelly, two sturdy sons of Ireland, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Nov. 23. Both left the "old sod" with clean records and a desire to grapple with Frank Gotch, the champion. Both claim the Irish title, and each says he has been bounding the other all over the country in vain. O'Kelly is certainly young enough, big enough and husky enough to give a good account of himself. His chief line of endeavor so far has been in the amateur field. He won the heavyweight Olympic title by disposing of Lee Talbot, the American weight man.

CLOSING CAMPAIGN

Some Hot Rallies Held Last Evening by Mayoralty Candidates

The eve of the caucuses finds the several democratic candidates for mayor making several speeches daily, and the republican candidate making a grandstand play at city hall. In the excitement over the mayoralty struggle the contests for aldermen and purchasing agent have been overlooked, though the candidates are losing no time.

On every side one hears the question oft repeated: "Well, who's going to win the nomination?" and "How many votes will win it?" Much small betting is being made, but there are few confident enough to lay big wagers for never were candidates more evenly matched before a caucus. The wise ones estimate that the winner will get from 1200 to 1500 votes and many pools are being made as to the number of votes each candidate will receive.

Two Meehan Rallies
John F. Meehan addressed two large rallies in wards two and seven last evening, speaking first at the corner of Broadway and Adams street, and after-

A blow in the back—An overcoat is a necessary nuisance and the tendency to take it off on warmish days in late autumn and winter is as strong as it is unwise. A treacherous wind hits you in the back and the next morning you have lumbago. Rub well and often with Perry Davis' Painkiller and you will be astonished to find how quickly all soreness is banished.

ward at the corner of Broadway and School street. Mr. Meehan spoke on his record, referring to his work in the legislature, on behalf of all measures that furthered the interests of the working people of the state.

Mr. Meehan challenged an examination of his record in the legislature as the criterion by which to judge of what he would do if elected mayor, whether he would safeguard the people's interests and give them a fair, honest and progressive administration of affairs. He urged the voters to attend the caucuses and cast their votes for the strongest, the most reliable and most competent man who seeks the nomination for mayor. If nominated, he knew that he could lead the party to victory.

O'Donnell Addresses Overflow

For the first time since the campaign started James E. O'Donnell addressed an outdoor meeting last evening, for when he arrived at the Social club in Salem street he found the club room packed and a large gathering standing in the street unable to gain admittance. Mr. O'Donnell addressed the gathering within the club house, first speaking on his legislative record and the necessity of nominating the strongest candidate so as to insure success at the polls. He then addressed the overflow meeting and was most enthusiastically received. Mr. O'Donnell spoke to another large gathering in the store at the corner of Broadway and Willis street, dealing with matters of interest to all citizens in the selection of a mayoralty candidate.

Maloney at Davis Square

William E. Maloney addressed rallies in his behalf at Davis square and at Lawrence and Agawam streets. Mr. Maloney took up the discussion of the question of Lowell's tenement property and the need of better dwellings for the poorer people of the city. He also advocated public baths and more playgrounds. Mr. Maloney spoke on the necessity of party harmony after the caucuses. He was loudly applauded. He dwelt upon the need of conducting the business of the city in a progressive way and not sacrifice that business to political chicanery. "The people should get more for the four million dollars annually expended, and if elected I will see that they get it," said Mr. Maloney.

Major Crowley

Major Robert J. Crowley held three rousing rallies last night and at all of his rallies he scored the present mayor for his failure to investigate the charges by Harry H. W. Howe, of the charity board, relative to conditions at the city farm. The rallies were held at the High street engine house; Odd Fellows' hall, Centralville, and the Centralville club in Laverview avenue. The rallies were well attended and there was enthusiasm galore. James F. Miskella presided at the meeting in the High street engine house and the speakers at the other meetings, besides Mr. Crowley, were Wm. A. Hogan, Esq., and Edward J. Tierney, Esq. At the meeting in Odd Fellows hall, Chas. H. Slowe, Jr. presided.

He said his only concern is to beat the present mayor who is the inferior of every one of the democratic candidates running.

Daly in Ward Four

John W. Daly addressed a rousing rally in the Lyon street school room last evening, a large gathering of ward four voters turning out to hear him. Mr. Daly discussed the local issues in an intelligent and comprehensive manner, pointing out certain needs of the city which he would endeavor to bring about if elected. He urged his hearers to unite upon the candidate of the party, whoever he might be, and assured them that if he were not nominated he would work for whoever the majority might select. He made a good impression and won much applause.

JAIL SENTENCE

For Man Charged With Forging Check

HOLYOKE, Nov. 20.—William J. Wise, formerly a salesman for the Robinson clay product company of New York city, was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge E. W. Chapin at the police court yesterday morning on the charge of forging a check for $40.47 on the Home national bank of Holyoke on July 17. Detectives located Wise and he was arrested at Manville, R. I., 10 days ago. Wise asked Tuesday for a stay of a few days, that he might get the money from his father, whom he said lived at New Berlin, O., but the money was not forthcoming.

Witnesses to the forgery charge were J. K. Foster of the Robinson company and Robert Cadden, teller at the Home bank.

Wise in his behalf claimed that he had money due him from the company and signed the name of J. J. Day as manager because he was afraid to forge the name of Mr. Foster. There is no man by the name of J. J. Day in the employ of the company. Before court concluded, the suspect J. J. Field of the Nashua, N. H. police department arrived and alleged that Wise had passed worthless checks to the amount of $300 in that city.

Wise was photographed by the local police and his photograph will be sent to several cities to see if he has not been playing the same game elsewhere.

Democrats, James E. O'Donnell wants you to vote for him as your candidate for mayor at the caucuses next Tuesday. He will appreciate your support and will guarantee an energetic and successful campaign if you honor him with the nomination.

REV. JOHN GALVIN
SOMERVILLE PRIEST DIED IN CARNEY HOSPITAL
BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Rev. John P. Galvin, pastor of St. Ann's church, Winter Hill, died yesterday at Carney hospital.

Fr. Galvin, who was 67 years old, was born in Ireland. In 1870 he entered St. Joseph's seminary, Troy, N. Y., and there he was ordained in 1874. He was early assigned to Lynn and to Arlington churches, but in 1875 went to St. Mary's church, Charlestown, remaining there six years, and was then transferred to the Winter Hill church, where he remained the rest of his days.

Three years ago his parishioners celebrated the 25th anniversary of his advent to the parish with a notable observance.

Was Almost Helpless From Rheumatism

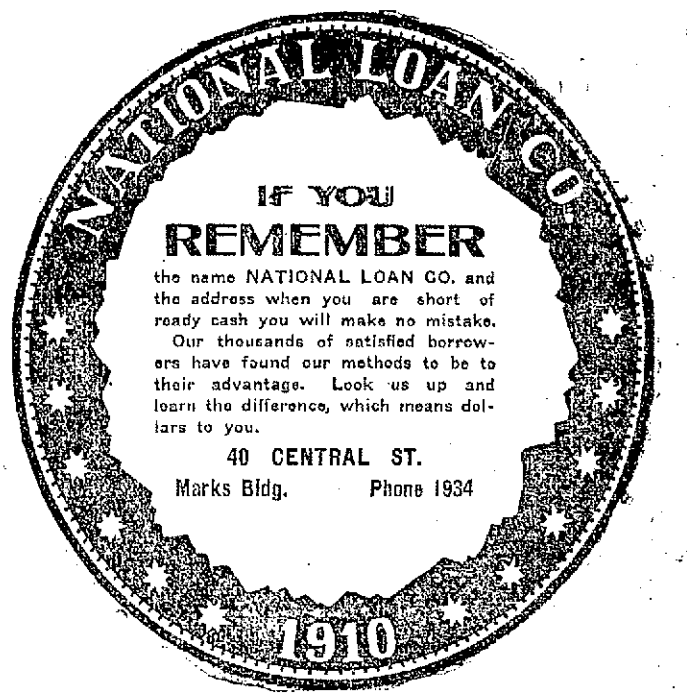

I had Rheumatism in my legs so bad that I could hardly walk, and when I sat down was in pain in whichever position I sat. For nearly a year I was so and all the time trying some remedy which did me no good. At last I saw your advertisement and have used four bottles and now can walk without the least pain, and I feel that it is due to your DR. GRADY'S PURE MALT AND RYE. THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1908 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1909. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

OUR TARIFF DRIVES INDUSTRIES TO CANADA.

The excessive tariff imposed against Canada is having its result in driving industries over the border in order to meet the Canadian demand for certain goods, and in some cases to manufacture goods for the American market. This is the result of protection gone mad.

It is no wonder that Eugene N. Foss made great inroads on the republican majority in this state as an advocate of reciprocity with Canada. From the Canadian Manufacturers' association comes the boast that more than $150,000,000 of American capital has been driven across the border on account of tariff extortions imposed by the United States. This is largely represented in paper mills.

Canada is a large importer of our cotton goods, but if she imposes a retaliatory tariff on cotton fabrics also, we may see American concerns going over into Canada to start cotton mills and thus reap a harvest in the Dominion markets. In nine months of last year we exported to Canada cotton goods to the amount of $1,608,610. By putting on a tariff Canada can at a single blow destroy this market and to that extent injure the industry in this country.

It is not improbable that Canada will soon impose an export duty on wood pulp for the manufacture of paper in order to force American manufacturers to establish more plants on the other side of the line.

The recklessness with which our spruce forests were ground up for wood pulp gives Canada the advantage over us, and unless we relax our severe tariff policy towards Canada, she may decide to impose the export duty on wood pulp and thus leave the American paper mills, without the raw material except at a prohibitive price.

PICK THE BEST MEN FOR ALL OFFICES.

The democrats of Lowell have given attention thus far in the campaign, mainly to the matter of selecting a mayoralty candidate which in itself is of course very important; but it is also important that the best men be chosen for the various other offices. There is a considerable number of names from which to select nine aldermen. In this, as in the mayoralty, do not waste votes on weak candidates; vote only for the strongest men.

On the list of aldermanic candidates are the names of some men who cannot be elected. They should have decency enough not to burden the ticket every year as they do, although knowing that they have not the slightest chance of nomination. Nevertheless, in spite of those who use the democratic ticket at the primaries for advertising purposes, there are enough good men to select from, and it is up to the voters not to be imposed upon by these perennial candidates.

It should not be forgotten that the common council is an important branch of our city government, coordinate with the board of aldermen and the mayoralty. Therefore, it is important to select men for that body who, if elected, will serve the city acceptably and at the same time reflect credit upon themselves and their party. Do not select mere boys for any office. They can afford to wait.

For every office, high and low, select the very best men available. This is the only way in which the interests of the city can be served and the intelligence of the democracy vindicated.

But unless a voter attends the primaries he cannot share in the selection of candidates, good or bad. The man who remains away from the primaries shirks his duty and bears a heavy share of the responsibility for whatever blunders may be made in the selection of weak, incompetent or dishonest candidates instead of men of the opposite type.

THE CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

It is now settled beyond peradventure that the House of Lords will reject the Budget and force a general election in the British Isles. This will bring to a climax the question of allowing the lords to retain the hereditary privileges by which they are entitled to seats in the upper house without being affected by elections or even by public opinion.

There is a clamor in this country for the popular election of United States senators, and it is bound to come. Similarly in England some reform is inevitable in the constitution of the House of Lords. The time has arrived when the people will not tolerate a feudal body, such as the House of Lords, to veto popular measures and even to interfere with the financial affairs of the government as the peers have recently undertaken to do and as they have done on the question of adopting the present measure for increased taxation.

There is little doubt that the people will vote by a large majority against the attitude of the lords and in favor of the Budget. That will send the liberals back to power with a mandate from the people to overrule the upper house. The lords after such a decision from the people will not dare reject any measure bearing upon their legislative powers or upon financial matters. In fact the coming election will bring about a new era in England if the lords are beaten, and even the king of England expects they will be.

The whole contest is but a step in the onward march of progress which has been noticeable in the British empire for the past quarter of a century. The lords have steadily resisted the popular demand for certain reforms, and this exercise of their power in the face of adverse public opinion has increased the opposition to their domination until it has become irresistible.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE IN A CHILDREN'S HOME.

The authorities of the Children's Home on Myrtle street, Providence, have to explain the cause of twenty-three deaths of children in the space of four months. This home, like most others, has an attending physician who was supposed to look after the health and treatment of the children. That so many died of diseases, mainly intestinal or diarrhoeic, must be very embarrassing to him as pointing to a common cause in practically all the cases, and something which, it seems, might have been promptly remedied. This physician fearing that the milk supply might not be the best during the hot weather ordered condensed milk to be used instead. Either this milk was bad or it was improperly prepared, so that the children were affected with indigestion and diarrhoea. These ailments continued to cause deaths among the children until twenty-three had been snatched away in about four months.

The case is being investigated, and in view of so many deaths, due to deleterious food for such a long period, it seems that somebody has been guilty of criminal negligence.

From the time the children at first took sick there was ample opportunity to find the cause of the trouble and have it remedied without waiting for deaths. If the object had been to kill the children by bad food and lack of care, it seems that it would have been difficult to do a more effective job.

The physician who gave orders to drop cow's milk and use condensed milk for all the children, including the very young, did not seem to share the prevailing opinion relative to the comparative merits of pure cow's milk and condensed milk. The best substitute for Nature's food is "modified milk," and the doctor who ordered condensed milk for all the babies, whether it killed them or not, did not apply ordinary common sense, not to speak of the best medical skill. The children died mainly of improper feeding continued persistently for several months. Had some old woman of common sense who had had children of her own been placed in charge of the home, in all probability there would be no deaths from improper feeding.

SEEN AND HEARD

A woman never doubts the truth of a statement that she thinks ought to be true.

Every time a chronic kicker slaps his too he imagines the world is against him.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to keep his troubles to himself—if he has none.

Nothing lowers a man so much in the estimation of his friends as being always on his uppers.

They do tell that there is one woman in Lowell who so despises men that she will not look at the moon.

It might be well for married people who quarrel to remember that no man is always wrong and no woman is always right.

The average man can't see anything wrong with his conduct as long as he is in a position to look through the bars of a jail from the outside.

When you go looking for a new job in the building where you are at present employed, be sure that you get the right door. A girl who found the wrong door, the other day, walked into the room that she had just left and came within an ace of meeting the boss face to face.

THE IDEAL WOMAN
No goddess she, unfit for worldly care,
Nor yet a nymph, too light to tread the sod.

Nor fairy over-bright for daily wear,
Nor yet a sprite, spurning an earthly clod.

She is no empress, with imperious scorn,
Nor yet a queen, of proud forbidding mien.

Yea, all those are not to man's manner born,
But in sweet kindness, his wish is seen.

The tender hand that ministers to pain,
The cheerful look of honest helpfulness.

The joyous laugh, better than golden gain,
That drives his dull care into nothingness.

'Tis these transform her into helpful light,
Whereby man wins in this world's awful night.

—Henry Irving Nicholas

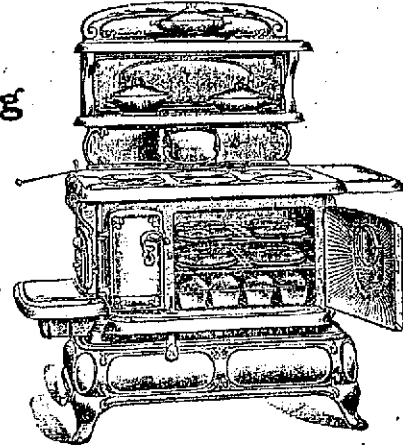

A very amusing incident occurred in a Lowell shop, a manufacturing company, a few days ago. It seems that a piece of broken mirror was thrown beneath a machine and a woman catching sight of it from a rather awkward position thought it was a hole in the floor. On the floor below girls were at work and the woman who mistook the mirror for a hole in the floor thought it would be a good joke to drop something down on the head of the nearest girl. She knew who was at work directly beneath her on the next floor and calling the other girls about her she said she was about to drop something on the head of the girl below, calling her name, but just at that moment the woman discovered that what she thought was a hole was a piece of a mirror. She realized it only when she saw the reflection of her own face in the glass, and of course the sodas were on her.

Albert, the crown prince of Belgium, was ordered out of the dining room of an inn in the Tyrol not long ago and the waitress who did the ordering made him go. He was on an automobile tour and his machine broke down in a rainstorm. He walked several miles to the inn and was a rather dirty looking man when he arrived. The waitress said he could not eat in her dining room in such clothes, so he had to swallow his pride and go to the restaurant at the railroad station.

An eighteen-year-old Irish girl, the Honorable Mary Westmore, has just been made master of the Monaghan Hunt at Rossmore, Ireland. The young lady, who is pretty and a social favorite, seems capable of filling the position. As an example of the strenuous life she leads it is related in the Queen that she hunted all a hard day last winter with the Pychley, got back after it to her aunt's house in Market Harborough, changed, had a bit of dinner, travelled all that night to her home (Rossmore), had breakfast on arrival, then into a habit again and hunted all that day with the Monaghan Harriers, and the next day had a horse running in each of the three races of the Hunt Point to Point and won all three—a fairly good performance for an eighteen-year-old girl. She loves dancing and music, rides well, hunts, plays tennis, golf and other games.

Not many people are aware that the huge vaults that extend under practically the whole of St. James palace are utilized for the storage of wine required for the various royal residences and there is a very complete bottling establishment there. The still wines for the king's table, such as hock, claret, port and champagne, all bought in bulk, and after being allowed to mature properly are bottled there, and stored away until they are required. In addition to Buckingham palace, Windsor castle and Sandringham, bottling takes place here for Marlborough house, Clarence house and other residences of the different members of the royal family. Large purchases of wine are made every year as opportunity offers, and experts are constantly employed traveling about the vineyards of the continent seeking suitable vine-lands. It will be gratifying to colonial cousins to learn, says the Buffalo Express, that in recent years both the king and queen have shown a great liking for the light wines of Australia, and a large stock of these wines is now maintained at St. James palace. All the wines bottled carry plain labels, with the name of the wine and the vintage on them in gold letters, surrounded by the royal crown.

CANDIDATE

LETTER

To the

PEOPLE

WM. E. MALONEY

FELLOW DEMOCRATS:

We are approaching the day of a great battle. The climax of a clean cut, thoroughly aggressive campaign in the democratic ranks that has won for our party the respect of the entire community.

You will be called upon Tuesday to NOMINATE THOSE MEN BEST FITTED TO LEAD THE HOSTS OF DEMOCRACY TO VICTORY at the coming city election.

My friends, put aside all the thoughts but the dictates of your calmest judgment. Your work of Tuesday next will not be merely the bestowing a prize. YOU ARE TO SELECT A RELIABLE SERVANT TO GUARD A SACRED TRUST. You are not to choose a mascot. YOU ARE TO SELECT A GENERAL TO WIN YOUR BATTLE, an agent to do your work.

In making this choice THERE ARE TWO VERY IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER. First, the candidate's ability to serve the people of the city, and second the candidate's ability to lead the party to victory at the polls. Let us FIRST CONSIDER THE QUALITIES THAT GO TO MAKE A SUCCESSFUL PUBLIC SERVANT.

HE MUST BE HONEST, there is no question on this point; he must be honest, but he must be something more. HE MUST BE EXPERIENCED IN BUSINESS AFFAIRS FOR THE SPENDING OF FOUR MILLION DOLLARS OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY yearly is surely a matter of the greatest importance.

To successfully administer the affairs of any great business A MAN MUST HAVE HAD YEARS OF BUSINESS EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING for it is the careful attention to and the nice adjustment of the details, the little things of any business that determines success or failure of that business, and this acquaintance with business detail is obtained only in practical business or official experience.

To be a suitable public servant a man must bear a SPOTLESS REPUTATION for honesty and also he must have a high standing in the business world, but beyond being honest and able our ideal public servant of today must have one other qualification, he must be aggressive. In other words he must not only mean well and know his business, but he must be a man of energy with plenty of push with a passion for improvement and perfection. HE MUST BE EVER READY TO FIGHT FOR DECENCY, PROGRESS AND RIGHT, as otherwise his knowledge will likely go with his good intentions to have the road to failure.

So much for a man's ability to serve after he is elected; the other point we must consider is our candidate's ability to win the election for no matter how great or noble or perfect our candidate may be he will do us no good as the man who ran but was defeated.

To be a successful candidate at the polls a man must have great energy, A HIGH PURPOSE, AND NO ENEMIES.

Consider carefully the position of the various candidates in this campaign. If this one were to be nominated what factions, cliques, etc., are there in Lowell which he has been unfortunate enough to offend and which will in all probability oppose his election at the polls. Take the next man. If he were nominated, how will the same argument work against him?

I firmly believe that beyond qualifications which I possess by reason of many years of business experience that I am the strongest candidate to lead the DEMOCRATIC PARTY to a successful battle against George H. Brown at the coming election.

For although at present everything points to a Democratic victory at the polls, the Democrats must not be led into believing that any candidate can easily win this election. The aggressive candidate with a reasonably active campaign will be able to SCORE A GREAT VICTORY, but it's up to you, the Democratic voters of this city, to turn out at the caucuses to the last man and name a sure winner at the polls.

I am confident that I am the man to lead you to victory on election day.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM E. MALONEY,
Democratic Candidate for Mayor.

GIFT OF $150,000

Received by Trustees of Art Museum

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Previous to his death on July 6, Robert Dawson Evans of this city instructed his wife to present to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts the sum of $150,000 and the trustees of the museum now announce that the gift has been received from the widow.

Of the present gift $125,000 has been placed in the new maintenance fund, for which an appeal was recently issued. Twenty-five thousand dollars of the total of $150,000 complete Mr. Evans' subscription.

Mr. Evans was a genuine lover of art, and particularly of paintings, his gifts of a Van Dyke and a double portrait by Rubens creating much interest and attention.

During the 24 hours ending at noon yesterday the art museum directors received $53,000 toward its maintenance fund.

This makes the total of the fund up to last night $135,035, exclusive of the Evans gift.

Is the democratic party going to ignore a splendid opportunity to elect its candidate for mayor or will the members of that party turn out to a man next Tuesday and vote for James E. O'Donnell, who, democrats and republicans alike concede is the man that can achieve the defeat of the present mayor?

Grattan C. Sheridan, 30, express driver, 49 Hurd street, and Mary A. Gallagher, 28, hostess, 45 Kirk street.

Albin Olsson, 21, machinist, 121 Boston street, and Mary Maguire, 20, weaver, 60 First street.

Euclide Page, 35, machinist, 209 W. Sixth street, and Albin Vannasse, 24, operative, 103 Ennall street.

Joseph Pratte, 38, operative, 122 Ennall street, and Anna Vannasse, 26, operative, 103 Ennall street.

Democrats: Your opponents this year will have a candidate for mayor who cannot claim their united support. Liberal republicans will welcome the privilege of voting for Mr. O'Donnell in preference to Mr. Brown. Ask them and they will tell you that James E. O'Donnell is a democrat they respect and whom they will help you to elect as the next mayor of Lowell.

PAY INCREASED BOARD OF HEALTH

New York Judges to Get $21,500

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Although justices of the supreme court of the United States receive only $12,500 a year, the state supreme court justices sitting in New York city find their present remuneration of $17,500 a year inadequate, and a resolution was adopted yesterday by the city's board of estimate and apportionment increasing their salaries to $21,500. The increase will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1910.

Democrats: Don't be influenced by sentiment artificially manufactured or fictitious betting, but hearken to the judgment of sensible and unselfish men who will tell you that O'Donnell will win the nomination because he is the strongest man to select as your candidate for mayor.

DEATHS

BARRY.—Mrs. Henri Barry died yesterday morning at her residence, 31 Gershon avenue, aged 30 years, 3 months. Her name before her marriage was Marie Anne Cossette. She leaves her husband, Henri Barry, who has been for several years manager of the C. M. A. C. building, a son, Raymond, two daughters, Germaine and Jeanette; three brothers, Adelard and Noel Cossette of this city and Prosper Cossette of Beauchamp, and three sisters, Mrs. Napoleon Lavoie of Lowell, Mrs. Joseph Royer of New York and Mrs. Onesime Clement of Cambridge.

MERRILL.—Mrs. Henrietta F. Merrill died yesterday at her home, 455 Bridge street, aged 72 years. She was the wife of Osborne Merrill, and leaves besides her husband, one daughter, Miss Adèle Merrill, one son, Frederick O. Merrill, and a brother, Charles H. Austin.

McGUIRE.—Elizabeth McGuire, infant daughter of James and Mary McGuire, died yesterday at the home of her parents, 1027 Gorham street, aged two years.

DIONISIOPOULOUS.—William Dionisopoulos, aged fourteen years, died at the Lowell hospital, last night. The body was removed to the rooms of Undertaker Molloy. The boy was the son of Michael and Stanatha, and came to this city from Lawrence, for treatment.

DEVINE.—Helen Devine, aged eight months and nineteen days, child of William and Annie, died last night at the home of her parents, 61 First street.

SHEA.—Ellen Shea, aged 75 years, died this morning at the home of her son in Brockton. She is survived by two sons, Michael of Lowell and Dennis of Brockton, and two daughters, Mrs. Matthew Phipps of Brockton and Mrs. Annie Walsh of Lowell. The body was brought to Lowell this afternoon by Undertakers C. H. Molloy & Sons.

WELSH.—William Welsh, aged 43 years, a resident of North Chelmsford, died yesterday afternoon at the Lowell General hospital. He leaves a wife, two daughters, Ellen and Olive, three sons, Thomas, William and David; two brothers, Thomas of Lowell and Chas. of Dracut; two sisters, Sarah Palmer of Belfast, Ireland, and Annie Gunther of Dracut.

HEARD SEVERAL PETITIONS

Yesterday

The board of health met yesterday afternoon, but did not receive plans from the American Hide & Leather company, for a new beaming plant in Perry street, and the board is still waiting for the plans.

Michael T. Rafferty had petitioned for a permit to build a stable in Auburn street to accommodate 12 horses. Several remonstrants appeared and after hearing their objections Mr. Rafferty withdrew his petition.

Arthur W. Saunders was granted permission to build a stable at Georgia and Pembroke avenues. M. W. Mulcahey received a permit to maintain a stable at Concord and Rogers Sts. No action was taken on the petition to build a stable in Harris court.

NIGHT EDITION

ALDERMANIC TICKET

Some Good Timber on the Democratic End

There are candidates enough on the democratic ticket to make a selection of a strong ticket of nine comparatively easy.

Alderman Jeremiah Connors who made such a remarkable run last year is a candidate for a second term after a record for one year of which a candidate might feel proud. There is little doubt as to hisrenomination and reelection.

Col. James H. Carrichael is too well known to need any introduction to the voters of Lowell. He has been an alderman for several terms and always ran ahead of his ticket on election day. He made an admirable record while a member of the city council and his name will be welcomed by men of both parties.

James J. Gallagher is also another well known citizen in business politics and forestry, whose name will be welcomed back on the ticket. Mr. Gallagher has served in the board of aldermen before and has lost none of his popularity as a vote getter.

Owen E. Brennan is another candidate who has had previous experience in the board of aldermen having served a term two years ago. Mr. Brennan left a good record behind him at city hall and made a host of friends while a public official.

Joseph A. McDonald was also in the board of aldermen, having represented old ward five some few years ago. Mr. McDonald is a well known business man.

Hercule A. Toupin, the well known druggist and one of Lowell's most prominent and popular French-American citizens, will be a strong candidate. Mr. Toupin has never held public office but has been an active worker for the democratic cause for many years.

Thomas E. Foley is having his first experience in politics, having been urged to run for alderman by his friends. Mr. Foley is the well known overseer of mule spinning in the Middlesex mills and is most highly thought of by employers and employees alike. Mr. Foley's friends are putting up an active campaign in his behalf and are confident that he will be one of the nine to go on the ballot on election day.

Thomas A. Saunders, the aldermanic candidate, is the well known Merrimack street undertaker and a member of one of Lowell's best known families. Before engaging in business on his own account Mr. Saunders was employed with his father, James Saunders at the Tremont & Suffolk mills. He is a popular member of several social and fraternal organizations.

Ex-Councilman John J. Cotter of ward two is another candidate who is well known throughout the city. Mr. Cotter has had previous experience at city hall having served on important committees while in the common council. Mr. Cotter is prominent in the Hibernians and other social and fraternal organizations. He is engaged in the plumbing and piping business.

Thomas A. D. Sullivan, one of the democratic candidates for the aldermanic nomination, is a well known wholesale grocer, who for a number of years has conducted a business in Middle street. He is a member of the Musicians union and is also connected with the Knights of Columbus and the C. Y. M. L. Mr. Sullivan is well known throughout the city.

Alexander E. Rountree, another candidate for alderman is known by every merchant in the city. For years he was employed as a salesman by T. J. McDonald and later accepted a position with Simpson & Rowland. Mr. Rountree is a prominent member of the Royal Arcanum, Y. M. C. I., Knights of Equity and the St. John's Hospital Relief association. He is prominent in the Oakland Improvement association, and has been a tireless worker to secure improvements in that section of the city.

"A stitch in time saves nine," vote for John Delaney," is the slogan of the friends of the popular merchant tailor, who is a candidate for alderman. Mr. Delaney has been in the tailoring business for years in this city and is one of a well known family. Mr. Delaney is a popular member of the Hibernians, the Royal Arcanum and other fraternal organizations.

Ex-Councilman Murthy Lyons, who represented ward two in the lower branch for two years has had good experience at city hall and served on the important committee on accounts.

Samuel Thompson has been for many years an employee of the city and is well acquainted with the practical part of municipal affairs.

John J. McManus, is one of the best known men in Lowell and his annual hour class in his plumbing and heating over New England. If the women and children could vote there'd be nothing to it but McManus.

Michael A. Lee is well known throughout the city, particularly in labor circles.

John J. Duffy enters politics for the first time, with a host of friends behind him. He is employed as an engineer in the Bigelow Carpet company.

HARVARD-YALE

End of First Half, Yale 5 Harvard 0

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 20.—The annual income of $100,000 spent for admission tickets represented only a part of the struggle between Harvard and Yale for eastern football championship honors today. The crowd that gathered in the Harvard stadium where the game was played numbered nearly 40,000 people. It was a college assembly not unlike that at class day, although vastly larger. It was intensely enthusiastic and well versed in the mysteries of the game and the relative strength and ability of the teams and the players. It was warmly clothed and gaily decorated. College colors were carried almost universally and crimson and blue flags added lustre to the ranks. Some students in higher mathematics—estimated that half a million violets and 50,000 red chrysanthemums contributed to the total display; that 100,000 coons had given up their lives for furs to keep out the cold. And all to see twenty-two swift, agile and sturdy undergraduates trained to the hour and well drilled in football knowledge, run, kick and wrestle for seventy minutes. These chief actors remained well away from the scene until a few hours before the game began. The Harvard team, which had been quieting its nerves and conserving its strength at a suburban hunt club reached Cambridge just before noon for the last lunch at the training table. The Yale team was somewhat later and had lunch in its hotel at Auburndale, starting for the field in automobiles shortly before one o'clock. In the meantime the assembly at the stadium had begun.

The weather was somewhat uncertain. A lazy southerly wind brought up murky conditions, but while the sky was overcast the clouds were thin and did not promise rain.

An American football game attracts the largest crowd of any sport on the continent, and had the capacity of the Harvard stadium been double today every seat would have been filled and the great English football crowds, which might have begun to gasp at the arrival of local special trains and today when it started for the stadium it was the principal feature of the New England landscape. It overflowed every hotel in Boston, streamed over to Cambridge, where a portion of it hunched early in the forenoon in the different Harvard clubs and when at 12.30 the gates of the stadium were thrown open 10,000 people were waiting to rush to their seats.

The main body of students reached Cambridge shortly after noon. While only one special train was advertised from New Haven over the New Haven system it was found necessary to split the train into six sections and this method was also adopted with the regular trains. The midnight train from New York, due in Boston at 7 a. m., which is usually made up of ten sleeping cars, was run in four sections of twelve sleepers each. Regular trains from New London and Norwich were also split up and rolled into the South station in Boston, heavily laden with football enthusiasts.

Over the Boston & Albany division of the New York Central came a special from New York and one from Pittsfield. Each was in two divisions. The Harvard club of New York had a special train of parlor cars. All the trains on this line stopped at Allston, less than half a mile from the stadium. The demand for accommodations from the north and east of Boston was so great that it was found necessary on the Boston & Maine railroad to run the trains from Maine and New Hampshire in sections.

The excursionists burdened with overcoats and overalls streamed out of the cars and after snatching a hasty luncheon started for the stadium. At least a third of the arrivals were women. Several of the specials were composed entirely of parlor cars where classes and frats held impromptu reunions.

The announced lineup was as follows:

Harvard	Yale
L. Smith	le Kilpatrick
McKay	le Hobbs
W. Whitington	le Andrus
P. Whitington	le Cooney
Fisher	le Conley
Fish	le Lilley
Brown	le Savage
O'Flaherty	le Howe
Corbett	le Philbin
Leslie	le Daley
Minot	le Coy

Teams Were Prompt

Both teams were unusually prompt in appearing. Yale running on to the field at 1.44 and Harvard appearing a few minutes later. Five minutes before the fixed time officials and captains met in the centre and after a couple of minutes' discussion the coin was tossed.

Start of Game

Yale won the toss and took the south side of the field and the wind, giving Harvard the kickoff. P. Whitington kicked off to Yale's 35 yard line. It was a purposely short kick, but Yale caught it without gain. There was

DEMOCRATS!

The Time is drawing near when you must determine whom you will select as your standard bearer to defeat the present chief executive.

Will You vote for a candidate who has little or no chance of obtaining either the nomination or election, or will you support JAMES E. O'DONNELL who is admittedly the candidate that can be relied upon for success at the polls?

Have You not thoroughly satisfied yourselves that O'DONNELL'S record, personal and political, is above reproach, that he has been and will be loyal to his party nominees and faithful to the interests of the people?

Were You misled by the misrepresentations of O'DONNELL'S labor record, and could you believe that JAMES E. O'DONNELL ever was anything but a sincere friend and devoted representative of the masses?

THEN why not be consistent and decide now to vote for O'DONNELL at the caucuses on Tuesday next, and thereby do your utmost to nominate and elect the candidate who can win, JAMES E. O'DONNELL by name, an able, honest and substantial citizen.

STANDARD OIL ILLEGAL

United States Court Decides Against the Great Trust

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 20.—In an opinion written by Circuit Judge W. H. Sanborn of St. Paul filed in St. Louis and St. Paul today the United States circuit court for the district of Missouri held that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey was an illegal corporation and ordered that it be dissolved.

HISTORY OF CASE

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 20.—The government wins its suit against the Standard Oil Co. The United States circuit court today ordered the corporation dissolved. It being announced an illegal corporation.

This case was held in the United States circuit court at St. Louis in April, 1909, by Circuit Judges Sanborn of St. Paul, Vandewater of Cheyenne, Haek of Leavenworth and Adams of St. Louis.

Judge Sanborn of St. Paul, the presiding judge, wrote the opinion and the decree in which all the judges concur and sent them with a concurring opinion of Judge Hook to Judge Adams at St. Louis, who filed them and entered the decree in that city this morning.

The case was argued by Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul and Charles B. Morrison of Chicago for the United States and John G. Alhurst of Buffalo, David Watson of Pittsburgh, Moritz Rosenthal of Chicago and John G. Johnson of Philadelphia on behalf of the defendants. It was brought to court by John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry Al. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver Paine, Charles Pratt, the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and about seventy other corporations from maintaining a communication and conspiracy in restraint of trade to monopolize interstate and international commerce and the decree grants the injunction sought by the government.

The case is one of the most notable in the history of the nation on account of the important industrial and legal questions and the vast financial interests involved. The evidence filled 21 volumes and occupied more than 10,000 printed pages and the arguments of counsel more than 300 printed pages.

TAKES EFFECT IN 30 DAYS.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—The decree of dissolution in the Standard Oil case takes effect in 30 days unless suspended by an appeal to the supreme court of the United States.

WICKERSHAM GRATIFIED

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 20.—"It is one of the most important decisions ever rendered in this country," declared Attorney General Wickersham when approving this morning of the decision dissolving the Standard Oil Co. "I am very much gratified at the decision."

Andrus tried for a goal from placement. The kick went over the Harvard goal post, but was brought back for a second trial. On the second trial Andrus kicked low over Harvard's goal line.

The Harvard side heaved a great sigh of relief at the escape. Minot kicked on the third down to the 45-yard line and Philbin ran it back 14 yards.

Coy tried an inside kick on the first down and it was Harvard's ball on the 10 yard line.

On the first down standing on Harvard's 35 yard line Coy kicked a goal from the field. Score: Yale, 5; Harvard, 0.

(See next edition for complete story of the game).

ARMY-NAVY GAME OFF

STETSON CASE

CAUSES LIVELY DISCUSSION IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CIRCLES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Whether Mrs. Augustus E. Stetson would ultimately be dropped by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was a lively subject of discussion in Christian Science circles here today. It was said that her excommunication by the mother church of Boston did not in itself provide for her membership in the New York church and many of her followers contend that if the board of trustees should force her out of the local church it would lead to the withdrawal of a large number of the church members who are still loyal to her teachings.

LOWELL COUPLE ARE UNDER ARREST IN LAWRENCE

Corra and Ralph Wheeler of this city appeared before Judge J. J. Mahoney in the Lawrence police court yesterday, charged with peddling jewelry without a license. The defendants asked for a continuance and this was granted by the court. Both were out on bonds. Monday was set as the date for the trial. The arrest was made by Inspector J. J. Kelleher and it is contended by the police that at the time they were caught in the very act of selling jewelry from house to house. Neither was represented by counsel. The defendants are employed by a Boston jewelry firm.

The Middlesex Social club will have an open house on Monday evening and the different candidates for nomination, irrespective of party, are invited.

ASKS INJUNCTION

To Prevent Invasion of Post Office

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—The United States brought an action in the U. S. circuit court yesterday, through U. S. Atty. Asa P. French, against the Boston Elevated Railway company and the Hugh Nawn Contracting company, seeking an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering, interfering, invading or trespassing, or breaking into or taking any part of the premises corner of Boylston and Brattle streets, Cambridge, without the consent of the government, in connection with the construction of the Cambridge subway.

The subway is to be run under Brattle street and the government alleges that the defendants intend to do work under the building at the corner of the streets named, in which the government has a postoffice on the ground floor and basement.

The government alleges that the work will impair the efficiency of the building and interfere with the use of the building as a postoffice and also with the distribution of the mail.

The order is returnable Jan. 1, but it is believed that the two defendant companies will seek a hearing at an earlier date.

The proceeding is very unusual. It is the first action ever brought here by the government to prevent an invasion of a postoffice. From a legal point of view it is highly important, especially in view of the fact that it contemplates stopping a public work.

The defendants are working under a special act of the legislature, empowering them to do the work in the manner they are doing it, but the government in defence of the postoffice seeks to stop the work insofar as it in any way interferes with the postoffice and the distribution of the mail.

HE ESCAPED

MAN BROKE AWAY FROM AN OFFICER

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Alfred Charron of Fitchburg, who is alleged to be a deserter from the U. S. army, escaped from Reserve Officer Bergson of that city yesterday afternoon while being taken to the Charlestown navy yard from North station.

After leaving North station the officer walked across the street with his prisoner and up to the elevated station. While waiting for a train Charron got into the crowd and made a successful dash for liberty. He ran down the stairs of the elevated station and soon disappeared.

The officer searched for him in several places, but failed to find any trace of him. He reported the escape of his man to the officer in charge of station 1, but up to a late hour last night the deserter had not been located.

The officer told a reporter that Charron offered him $200 for his liberty and that he refused it. He said he knew Charron well and for that reason trusted him and did not handcuff him.

HELD FOR ARSON

Mrs. Adams Bound Over in $1000

The case of Margaret Adams, charged with maliciously burning a building and also with attempting to defraud two insurance companies, was concluded in police court yesterday afternoon. After arguments had been made by Fire Inspector Rice for the government and J. Joseph O'Connor for the defence, Judge Bradley found probable cause of guilt and held the woman under $1000 for her appearance before the superior court.

WORK STOPPED

In Order to Search for Dynamite

LAWRENCE, Nov. 20.—Work in excavating for the foundation of the new print works of the Pacific mills on Merrimack street has been suspended as a precautionary step, pending a search for a supply of dynamite, which is thought to have been buried there 11 years ago.

James Humphrey, gatender for the Wood worked mills, recently recalled that while employed by the Boston & Northern Street Railway company in 1898 the dynamite was supposed to have been placed underground under the direction of James Hearnley, an expert in the handling of explosives, who had been carrying on some work for the company.

The land embraces a number of acres and was then covered with a scrub growth of trees. It is opposite the car barn of the street railway company.

Mr. Humphrey communicated with the authorities and steps were at once taken to guard against accident. Humphrey was unfamiliar with the location of the explosive and Hearnley is dead.

It was decided to send for Patrick Murphy, who was assistant foreman under Hearnley. He was found in New York state and is now here to conduct a search.

MADE NEW RECORDS
BOUY, France, Nov. 20.—Competing for the Weiller height prize for heavier-than-air machines, Hubert Latham yesterday in a monoplane ascended a distance of 1845 feet and M. Paulhan in a bi-plane 1181 feet. Both of these heights are world's records. Paulhan previously held the honor at 987 feet.

Orville Wright made an unofficial flight at a height of 1600 feet at Potsdam in October and Count de Lambert is credited with having reached a height of 1300 feet when he passed over the Eiffel tower. This latter feat was also unofficial.

OYSTER ROAST

Was Enjoyed by President Taft

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 20.—As one of the concluding features of the convention of the Atlantic Deep-sea Fisheries association, and to accept again the hospitality of the people of the Old Dominion, President Taft came to Norfolk yesterday, reviewed a military parade, made two speeches in which he bespoke his interest in a practical system of waterway improvement to be carried forward on a businesslike basis and not merely as a means of distributing patronage; partook of an oyster roast under the shadows of the towering Cape Henry lighthouses, and attended a smoker in honor of a large corps of visiting newspapermen. The president retired last night on the presidential yacht Mayflower. The Mayflower this morning got under way for Hampton, where the president will attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the Hampton Normal Institute, of which he is a member. This afternoon he delivered an address to the colored students and then sailed for Washington.

A reception to the Norfolk committeemen and the delegates to the convention began the day's program and then came the parade and speech by the president from a reviewing stand.

President Taft was introduced by Gov. Swanson, and said in part: "I am glad to be here to testify to my interest in the waterways work. What I wish to deprecate is a general proposition to raise a lot of money and dump here and there and some such thing just in order to distribute the money over the country. I am opposed to that. I am in favor of expending the money for an improvement in Norfolk and not spending it for improvement somewhere else if the Norfolk project is a good one and the one somewhere else is not."

"I want to say that I will take up what is projected and proposed with all the sympathy possible, but nevertheless with what I hope is a judicial spirit to reject what the evidence does not sustain and to approve what the evidence does sustain."

The president referred to the battle of the Merrimack and the Monitor, and said:

"I want a navy to continue to be maintained worthy of this country. We are not knocking anybody's chip off his shoulder and we are not having a chip on our shoulder, but we are a great nation of eighty or ninety millions of people and we must, in order, under the present conditions to maintain the prestige that is proportionate to our stand before the world, have a navy that is worth seeing and able to fight if it has to."

The president was taken by special train to Cape Henry, for an old-fashioned oyster roast. When the president arose to speak he declared that he felt like an oyster.

The waterways delegates having practically completed the business of their convention Thursday, gave the day over to participating in the welcome to the president.

SMITH'S ESTATE

The Entire Funds Went to Charity

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 20.—Robert O. Morris, representing the trustees under the will of Horace Smith, the well-known inventor-philanthropist of this city, announced yesterday for the first time the disposition of the property, amounting in all to $362,599.

Horace Smith was one of the founders of the Smith-Wesson revolver manufacturing concern, and he was the inventor of many of the devices. At the time of his death, in 1903, it was known that his estate, amounting to nearly a million dollars, had been left entirely to charitable purposes, the disposition of the money being left in the hands of H. S. Lee, J. S. Appleton and A. B. West, three prominent Springfield bankers.

All three of these trustees have died and Robert O. Morris and Robert W. Day have been elected to the board, with a vacancy still existing on account of the recent death of Mr. West. There are about 30 religious, educational and charitable institutions as beneficiaries under the will. A part of the money has been turned over by the trustees and some is still held in trust as a fund.

Among the chief beneficiaries are: Springfield city library, $171,193; Y. M. C. A. training school, $77,951; Wesleyan academy, $68,568; Springfield hospital, $22,000; Springfield Y. M. C. A., $49,000; Home for Friendless Women and Children, $30,300; Mt. Holyoke college, $20,000; American international college, $17,550; Asbury Methodist church, $15,236; Young Women's Christian association, $27,000; Springfield Home for Aged Women, $15,000; Mercy hospital, $15,500; school for Christian workers, $12,000; Tuskegee institute, $11,000; Little Normal college, $8,000; Morgan college, $5,000; Union Relief association, $5500; Holyoke library association, $3500; Hampden County Children's Aid association, $5500; Smith Memorial school, $3000; Wesson Memorial hospital, $2500; Deane orphanage, $1000; Springfield Rescue mission, $1000; Baldwinville home, $2500.

CURTALISTEN IN MILLS
MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 20.—At a mass meeting of spinners, held last night, the recommendation of the Manchester Spinners' Federation, that the time curtailment now in force in the cotton mills be continued until the end of February was confirmed.

C. W. Macrae, president of the International Cotton Federation, expressed the conviction that the short time movement would defeat the efforts of persons endeavoring to corner the cotton crop.

EATON FOR MAYOR
BROCKTON, Nov. 20.—A vote one third larger than any before polled at a republican caucus in Brockton resulted last night in the nomination for mayor of E. C. Chester Eaton over Harry Howard by a plurality of 1194. The total vote was 2224.

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 20.—With his neck broken in much the same way as that of Cadet Byrne of West Point, Albert P. Wiberley, 17 years old, died last night in the Orange Memorial hospital, another victim to football. He was tackled in an open field while running with the ball, and thrown head first.

ON SHORT TIME

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 20.—The various mills of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Co., in the eastern states yesterday went on a five days a week schedule, which will be continued until the cotton market situation improves. The Stark mills in Manchester, employing 1,500, are among the plants affected.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The production of "The Pill" by Miss Helen Grayce and her players at the Opera House last evening proved the most delightful offering of a most satisfying engagement. The play in itself tells an absorbing story of reckless speculation that overflowed with timely interest. It was most capably enacted. Miss Grayce was entirely in her element as the society girl Laura Dearborn, who becomes the neglected wife. Mr. Barker scored heavily as Curtis Jadwin, while Edmund Abbey was most convincing as the artist.

The company will close its successful engagement this evening with a production of that famous play "In the Bishop's Carriage." The title of the drama gives but a faint idea of the interesting elements of the story which is based almost entirely upon the adventures of Nance Oiden, a sneak thief and her pal, Tom Morgan. These are two notorious persons of the under world who are finally detected during one of their escapades. The girl concludes to reform and goes upon the stage. The man is sent to prison and escapes. His return to Nance, his efforts to drag her back to the old life and her final resolution makes one of the most effective scenes to be found in any of the never plays.

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE."

The dramatic possibilities in the dual roles of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the something weird offering to be seen at the Opera House next Monday night, has been recognized for many years by a number of prominent actors and has been included by many in their repertoire. The play has also been played by numbers of the less celebrated actors as a vehicle to attain histrionic honors. Of the latter class is Frederick Pierce who will be seen in the title role of the play next Monday night and whose success in the part is said to have been considerable. Mr. Pierce is supported by Marie Roselli and an excellent company. The engagement here will be played at popular prices and seats for the engagement are now on sale.

"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

Next Tuesday night, Nov. 23d at the Opera House, a thrilling melodrama entitled "The Convict's Daughter" will be presented at a popular scale of prices. The Convict's Daughter is said to tell a heart story to all the family, the story of a man who is unjustly convicted of a crime and sentenced to prison. He escapes and being hard up on money in order to save the life of a girl against whom a fortune seeking villain is plotting. As it turns out, the girl is really the convict's daughter, the villain is unmasked, virtue triumphs and vice is confounded. The company presenting the piece is said to be a capable one. Seats for the engagement are now on sale.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD."

There could be no more welcome announcement for the entertainment-loving public than the appearance here "The Old Homestead" at the Opera House, Wednesday, Nov. 24, matinee and night. The dear old pastoral play itself is by this time so familiar to everyone that any attempt to describe it would be supererogation. The mere recital of the names of the cast is sufficient to bring to mind all of these delightful rural characters, and at the same time arise in the background the pictures of the old farm, the homestead in Swanton, Grace church on Broadway in New York City, and the aristocratic mansion of Henry Hopkins, the metropolitan merchant and millionaire.

The company this season is practically the same as last, and the production is said to be perfect in every detail. Seats for the engagement will go on sale today.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Thanksgiving comes next week, and the season of happiness and gastronomic joys is not complete without a visit to Hathaway's theatre. The feature of the week is "Suey San," the most unique playlet ever presented on the stage. This is a Chinese romance, played by Miss Mabel Bardin and Co., and gives an insight into the innermost secrets of the now famous Chinese slave mystery that has baffled the police heads of the entire world.

No name is dearer to us here than that of Gracie Emmet, most lovable of stage old women and her presentation of the old Irish lady in "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband" which will be one of the stellar numbers, is a veritable classic in its art. "The Great Escape" and his Lipdusts are destined to secure the acrobatic hit of the Hathaway season, for their Risley work and balancing are nothing short of wonderful. Marron and Heines, "The Alms for the Poor" are as entertaining as a whole blackface troupe, in the interpretation of minstrelsy's most pleasing features. High-class singing

THEATRE VOYONS

Today will be the last of the showing of the Pathe masterpiece "Rigoletto," a dramatic version of the grand opera of the same name by Verdi. The musical hit of the show is a duet, "Glorious Alannah," sung by Mr. and Mrs. Baker. Without a doubt hundreds of Lowell people have heard this song for years but so pleasing is its melody and so well it suits the theatrical voyons that it pleases much better than would a newer and less familiar song.

STAR THEATRE

"The Cattle Thieves," a motion picture, depicting the operations of such men in the wild west some years ago and later showing how they were treated by the cowboys, who, when there were no official preservers of peace, took law into their own hands and dealt with bad characters in a stern interpretation of the law. The picture is a feature at the Star theatre. Keato's educated dogs, performing wonderful feats, and Ted Lelall, eccentric comedian, will constitute a fine vaudeville bill Monday. The admission of five cents allows a seat.

"UNCLE RUBE"

"Uncle Rube," a drama in four acts by Charles Townsend, will be given by some of the young people, under the direction of Mrs. George F. Kennings, in the vestry of the First Trinitarian Congregational church, Dutton street, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24th and 25th, at 3 p. m. These Thanksgiving dramas have become an annual feature with the young people of this church, and are always largely attended. Reserved seats are on sale at Steiner's.

Consumption Can Be Cured.

Mrs. Nettie Carter of Elkton, Ky., after her physician had told her that she had consumption took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and has been completely restored to health. Appetite is good, she sleeps well, and enjoys life without pain or ache.

"I had acute indigestion for two years, which kept growing worse. I employed several physicians without any benefit. I came near starving, as I could eat very little. For several months I suffered frequent attacks of vomiting, which made me very weak. Finally my physician told me that I had consumption. This filled me with terror."

"In an advertisement in the Nashville Banner I read that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended for Tuberculosis or Consumption. I began to take it in desertsportful doses four or five times a day, and a tablespoonful at bedtime. I am now strong and well. Cough, distress in my chest, and the indigestion are gone. My appetite is good; I sleep well. This is all due to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which I regard as an unfailing cure of consumption if taken in time."—Mrs. Nettie Carter, Elkton, Ky.

Thousands, both men and women, like Mrs. Carter, praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for restoring them to health.

REVOLUTIONISTS GANLEY IS HERE

Making Ready for Decisive Struggle

To Explain Mass. Savings Insurance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Brooding quiet settled down yesterday on the strained situation this government finds itself in with Nicaragua. But if everything was quiet on the surface, there was plenty stirring beneath. A communication was received at the state department from the Nicaraguan legation, the purport of which was not divulged and the ministers from Guatemala and Costa Rica held a mysterious conference with Assistant Secretary Wilson yesterday afternoon.

A significant development of the day, inasmuch as it disclosed this government's unyielding determination not to interfere with the Nicaraguan revolutionists was the reiterated announcement that the state department would not act to insure the safety of any American vessels which might be called upon or seized by the insurrectionary war-vessels now blockading the government forces at Greytown or elsewhere on the Guatemalan coast. The announcement was made as a result of several inquiries by American shipping concerns during the day.

The deepest interest is apparent as to the conference between Assistant Secretary Wilson, Senor Calvo, minister from Costa Rica, and Dr. Herrarte, the minister from Guatemala. It is believed that the infraction of the existing Pan-American treaty, signed here a little over two years ago, was the chief matter discussed. The violation of the agreement was committed by Gen. Toledo, in command of President Zelaya's forces when he invaded Costa Rican territory in his advance on Greytown, while practically he is now besieged.

In the threatened trouble between Nicaragua and Venezuela only a short time ago, the United States stood ready to prevent, by force, if necessary, the passage of the belligerents across the neutral territory of Honduras. This was pointed to by diplomats last night as indicative of the gravity of Gen. Toledo's offense against the Pan-American compact.

That the revolutionists under Gen. Chamorro are making preparations for the final and decisive struggle within the next three or four days was announced last night by Senor Salvadore Castillio, the representative here of the Nicaraguan provisional government. The revolutionists have been short of ammunition and, for that reason, he said, have hesitated to take any serious steps looking to winding up the struggle. Situated as they are at the present time, the revolutionists are content, apparently, to wait until they are fully prepared before they strike home. Senor Castillio pointed out that with the coast line in possession of his compatriots, securing ammunition and arms is now a simple matter of only a few days. In the meantime, he says, Gen. Chamorro maintains his position in the steep hills overlooking Greytown and holds the Zelayan forces at his mercy.

The department was informed yesterday that Leonard Grace, who is believed to have been captured with Leroy Cannon by order of President Zelaya, was a native of Hempstead, Texas, where his family is said now to reside.

A. E. Ganley, one of the instructors of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance league, is again spending one day each week in Lowell at the plant of the American Hide and Leather company, where he is presenting the subject of savings bank life insurance. Mr. Ganley has been meeting with great success in introducing the system at the Fore River Ship Building company, Quincy, and elsewhere. Another concern near Lowell that has lately become an agency for savings bank insurance is the Talbot mills, North Billerica. The savings insurance plan, as authorized by the legislature in 1907, is gradually winning its way in the state. A considerable impetus has been given by the annual statement of the Whitman Savings bank, the pioneer institution in starting the experiment, which showed that during the year ending Oct. 31, 1909, profits of more than $4600 were accumulated, giving the wage earners the benefit of dividends of 6 and 7 per cent according to the kind of policy carried.

PHOTOGRAPH BY G. SCHOLZ, LOWELL, MASS.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—The United States government took prompt action in the disturbance in Nicaragua following the execution of two Americans, Leroy Cannon and Leonard Grace, who were put to death as rebels by order of President Jose Santos Zelaya. It was announced in Managua that the men were captured while planting mines and that they had explosives and electrical apparatus in their possession which the rebels intended to use in blowing up a Nicaraguan gunboat. Both men are said to be soldiers of fortune. Cannon was a resident of Harrisburg, Pa., and is said to have engaged in a revolution in Honduras. This is denied by his friends. The navy department at once ordered the Victrola and the Des Moines, two warships, to the scene of the trouble, and it is declared at Washington that unless there is a prompt and adequate explanation on the part of Zelaya's marines will occupy the ports of his country. At all events, it is believed that the United States will put a quietus to the revolution at once. It is asserted in dispatches from Managua that Cannon and Grace were tried by court martial and given every chance to prove their innocence. This is not believed at Washington.

BOWLING NOTES

The Y. M. C. I. Team Defeated Sacred Heart

The Y. M. C. I. and the Sacred Heart teams of the Catholic bowling league met on the alleys last night with the result that the former team gave the latter a severe trouncing. In the Lamson league the Pneumatics defeated the Carriers by a wide margin.

Teams representing the New England Telephone and Telegraph company and Lowell Electric Light corporation rolled last night, the former team winning by the narrow margin of eight pins.

The game between teams from Companies M and G of the local army was won by Company M by ten pins. The scores:

POLISH WRESTLER WON

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Zebysko, the Polish wrestler, won a handicap match last night by throwing three men in a little more than half an hour. Zebysko attempted to throw the trio in an hour. Tom Winkhofer was the hardest to down, but he was thrown in 18.35 with a scissor and a headlock. John Pherlo was pinned to the mat in 19.54 with a crotch and barlock, while Leo Dumont succumbed in 1.20 on a crotch hold.

ST. ANNE'S MISSION

THE 22d ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED

The 22d anniversary of the establishment of St. Anne's mission at North Billerica was observed last night at the pretty little mission house. The interior of the building was artistically decorated, the attendance was very large and the affair proved to be an unqualified success.

The exercises opened with a short address by Mr. A. E. Paul after which Rev. A. St. John Chamber, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church in Lowell, was called upon.

One of the features of the evening was the entertainment which was in charge of John W. Stott. The following numbers were given: Selections by Elwyn Thomas' orchestra of Boston; readings, Miss Kettell, sketch, "The Crystal Gazer," by Joseph Bailey and Miss Eva Pickles; vocal selections, Miss Olive Fleming of Lowell; readings, Maurice O'Donnell.

Mrs. Lucy Mills had general charge of the affair, being ably assisted by E. J. Garner and Joseph Brown. John W. Stott had charge of the entertainment.

Those who presided over the sales tables were: Girls' Friendly table, Miss Mary H. Brown, matron; Misses Elizabeth Wain, Alice Mills, Ada Garner and Mildred Garner.

Mystery table, Mrs. James Sanson, chairman; Miss Mildred Plich, Marion Williams, May Casson.

Guild table, Mrs. E. J. Garner, Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. Albert W. Dawson, Mrs. William McBride.

Candy table, Misses May Sutcliffe, Blanche Williams.

Ice cream table, James Sanson, William Wain, Harold Tice.

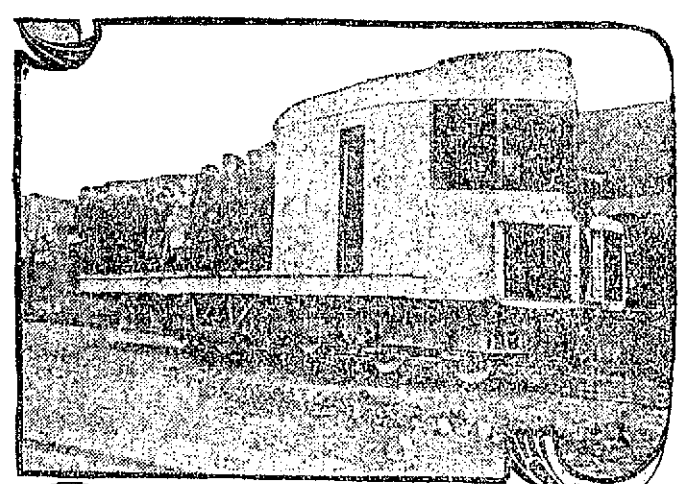

The decorating committee was composed of the following: Miss M. H. Brown, chairman; Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. William McBride, Mrs. James Sanson, Arthur Brown and Jas. Sanson. The affair will be continued tonight.

FIRST PHOTOS OF MONORAIL CAR AND ITS TRYOUT IN ENGLAND

LOUIS BRENNAN INVENTOR

LONDON, Nov. 20.—These are the first photographs to reach America of Louis Brennan's monorail gyroscopic, upon which the British government is to spend $500,000 in establishing an absolutely new method of transportation. A car forty feet in length, bearing fifty persons, was tried out at Channingham, England, a few days ago, and these pictures of the machine and its inventor, who also invented the Brennan torpedo, were taken on that occasion.

At the tryout of the car two gyroscopes, spinning at a rate of 2000 revolutions a minute, were used to balance the vehicle and held it to the monorail as perfectly as if the car had been running on an ordinary railway track. The principle is the same as a spinning top, the rapid revolutions of which prevent it from falling over. It is believed that the car can be run at a speed of 100 miles an hour with perfect safety.

WAGE REDUCTION THREATENED

Is Threatened in Fall River

FALL RIVER, Nov. 20.—The 30,000 operatives in the four-score cotton mills of Fall River will face a reduction of nearly 9 per cent. in their wages on Dec. 13, unless the manufacturers decide to waive their right to make a cut under the so-called sliding scale agreement which has been in force for several years.

The existing situation is due to the great cost of cotton during the past six months and the failure of the finished product to advance correspondingly.

According to the terms of the agreement the margin between the cost of cotton and the price of standard print cloths will warrant a reduction from 19 2-3 cents per cut for weaving to 18 cents, or about 9 per cent.

The cloth market is very dull because of the uncertainty as to the future course of the raw material.

FAMOUS EDITOR

Served During the Civil War

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Richard Watson Gilder, poet, lecturer and editor-in-chief of the Century Magazine, who died suddenly in New York, was born in Bordentown, N. J., on February 8, 1854. After completing his education he enlisted in a Philadelphia battery, serving during a part of the civil war, after which he was for a time engaged in the railway business. In 1865 he took up newspaper work in Newark and in 1870 became managing editor of Scribner's monthly. He was honored with degrees at Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Wesleyan and many other universities, and his writings have been read in all civilized countries.

EXCITING RUNAWAY

RESULTING FROM COLLISION IN WESTFORD STREET

An exciting runaway took place in Westford street early last evening in which Daniel Reid, driver for Dr. E. W. Truworthy of Middlesex street, was painfully injured and the carriage in which he was riding was smashed almost to splinters.

Reid was driving through Westford street about 7 o'clock. There was a grocery wagon standing at the corner of Belicue street, but owing to the absence of an electric light at that point Reid did not see the other vehicle. The first he knew of it being when the carriage in which he was riding collided with the other wagon.

The force of the impact frightened Dr. Truworthy's horse and it became unmanageable and dashed down Westford street as far as the armory, where it was stopped. Meanwhile, Reid had been thrown out, injuring his shoulder and scratching his face and hands severely. Fortunately he escaped without broken bones, however.

The horse was not injured, but the physician's carriage was badly smashed up when it was taken to the stable.

CUDAHY BOY

SAID TO BE IN THIS CITY YESTERDAY

It was reported about the city yesterday that the Cudahy boy who was kidnapped by "Pat Crowe" about nine years ago, was here and to prove that all interest in a kidnapping that occurred so many years ago has not been dissipated, a small army hung about the Cudahy packing house in Market street anxious for a glimpse of young Cudahy. A reporter for The Sun was one of the curious, and he learned that the Cudahy young man who dropped off in Lowell was not the fellow who had been kidnapped by "Pat" Crowe, but a brother of the boy who was kidnapped. The young man who visited here this afternoon was Joseph Cudahy. He has an interest in the business and makes frequent visits to the various houses of the Cudahy Co.

SECOND FLOOR

STURDY GRAPPLERS WHO WILL MEET FOR IRISH CHAMPIONSHIP

CONNELLY

O'KELLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The sporting public is finding that with a sudden rise of interest in the glove and squared circle pastime, caused perhaps by the Jeffries-Johnson agreement, a similar boom has struck the wrestling game. Promoters all over the country are in an earnest endeavor to boost the strenuous mat game back to the old place it occupied in the hearts of the sport-loving public. Many big bouts have been pulled off, and more are to come. The next big match on the calendar is between Con O'Kelly and Pat Connelly, two sturdy sons of Ireland, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Nov. 23. Both left the "ould sod" with clean records and a desire to grapple with Frank Gotch, the champion. Both claim the Irish title, and each says he has been bounding the other all over the country in vain. O'Kelly is certainly young enough, big enough and husky enough to give a good account of himself. His chief line of endeavor so far has been in the amateur field. He won the heavyweight Olympic title by disposing of Leo Talbot, the American weight man.

CLOSING CAMPAIGN

Some Hot Rallies Held Last Evening by Mayoralty Candidates

The eve of the caucus finds the several democratic candidates for mayor making several speeches daily, and the republican candidate making a grandstand play at city hall. In the excitement over the mayoralty struggle the contests for aldermen and purchasing agent have been overlooked, though the candidates are losing no time.

On every side one hears the question oft repeated: "Well, who's going to win the nomination?" and "How many votes will win it?" Much small betting is being made, but there are few confident enough to lay big wagers for never were candidates more evenly matched before a caucus. The wise ones estimate that the winner will get from 1200 to 1500 votes and many pools are being made as to the number of votes each candidate will receive.

Two Meehan Rallies
John F. Meehan addressed two large rallies in wards two and seven last evening, speaking first at the corner of Broadway and Adams street, and afterward at the corner of Broadway and School street. Mr. Meehan spoke on his record, referring to his work in the legislature on behalf of all measures that furthered the interests of the working people of the state.

Mr. Meehan challenged an examination of his record in the legislature as the criterion by which to judge of whether he could do the elected mayor, whether he would safeguard the people's interests and give them a fair, honest and progressive administration of affairs. He urged the voters to attend the caucuses and cast their votes for the strongest, the most reliable and most competent man who seeks the nomination for mayor. If nominated, he knew that he could lead the party to victory.

O'Donnell Addresses Overflow

For the first time since the campaign started James E. O'Donnell addressed an outdoor meeting last evening, for when he arrived at the Social club in Salem street he found the club room packed and a large gathering standing in the street unable to gain admittance. Mr. O'Donnell addressed the gathering within the club house, first speaking on his legislative record and the necessity of nominating the strongest candidate so as to insure success at the polls. He then addressed the overflow meeting, and was most enthusiastically received. Mr. O'Donnell spoke to another large gathering in the store at the corner of Broadway and Willie street, dealing with matters of interest to all citizens in the selection of a mayoralty candidate.

Maloney at Davis Square

William E. Maloney addressed rallies in his behalf at Davis square and at Lawrence and Agawam streets. Mr. Maloney took up the discussion of the question of Lowell's tenement property and the need of better dwellings for the poorer people of the city. He also advocated public baths and more playgrounds. Mr. Maloney spoke on the necessity of party harmony after the caucuses. He was loudly applauded. He dwelt upon the need of conducting the business of the city in a progressive way and not sacrifice that business to political expediency. "The people should spend more for the four million dollars annually expended, and if elected I will see that they get it," said Mr. Maloney.

Major Crowley

Major Robert J. Crowley held three rousing rallies last night and at all of his rallies he scored the present mayor for his failure to investigate the charges by Harry H. W. Howe, of the charity board, relative to conditions at the city farm. The rallies were held at the High street engine house; Odd Fellows hall, Centralville, and the Centralville club in Lawrence avenue. The rallies were well attended and there was enthusiasm galore. James F. Miskella presided at the meeting in the High street engine house and the speakers at the other meetings, besides Mr. Crowley, were Wm. A. Hogan, Esq., and Edward J. Tierney, Esq. At the meeting in Odd Fellows hall, Chas. H. Sloneley, Jr. presided.

He said his only concern is to beat the present mayor who is the inferior of every one of the democratic candidates running.

Daily in Ward Four

John W. Daly addressed a rousing rally in the Lyon street school room last evening, a large gathering of ward four voters turning out to hear him. Mr. Daly discussed the local issues in an intelligent and comprehensive manner, pointing out certain needs of the city which he would endeavor to bring about if elected. He urged his hearers to unite upon the candidate of the party, whoever he might be, and assured them that if he were not nominated he would work for whoever the majority might select. He made a good impression and won much applause.

JAIL SENTENCE

For Man Charged With Forging Check

HOLYOKE, Nov. 20.—William J. Wise, formerly a salesman for the Robinson clay product company of New York city, was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge E. W. Chapin at the police court yesterday morning on the charge of forging a check for $40.47 on the Home national bank of Holyoke on July 17. Detectives located Wise and he was arrested at Manville, R. I., 10 days ago. Wise asked Tuesday for a stay of a few days, that he might get the money from his father, whom he said lived at New Berlin, O., but the money was not forthcoming.

Witnesses to the forgery charge were J. K. Foster of the Robinson company and Robert Cadden, teller at the Home bank.

Wise in his behalf claimed that he had money due him from the company and signed the name of J. J. Day as manager because he was afraid to forge the name of Mr. Foster. There is no man by the name of J. J. Day in the employ of the company. Before court concluded, Inspector J. J. Fields of the Nashua, N. H. police department arrived and alleged that Wise had passed worthless checks to the amount of $40 in that city.

Wise was photographed by the local police and his photograph will be sent to several cities to see if he has not been playing the same game elsewhere.

Democrats: James B. O'Donnell wants you to vote for him as your candidate for mayor at the caucuses next Tuesday. He will appreciate your support and will guarantee an energetic and successful campaign if you honor him with the nomination.

REV. JOHN GALVIN

SOMERVILLE PRIEST DIED IN CARNEY HOSPITAL

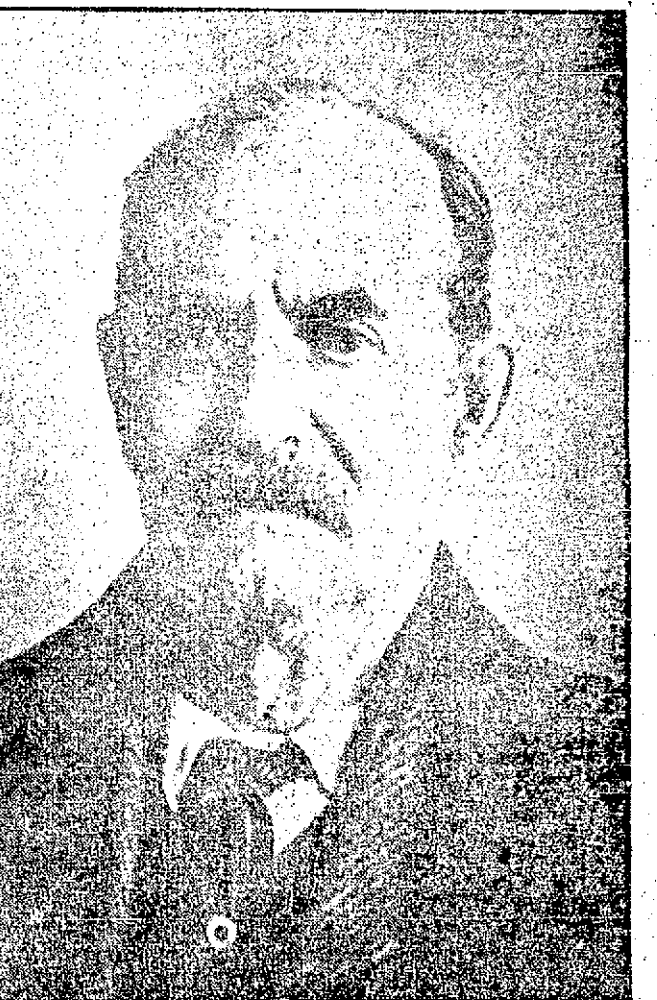

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Rev. John R. Galvin, pastor of St. Ann's church, Winter Hill, died yesterday at Carney hospital.

Fr. Galvin, who was 67 years old, was born in Ireland. In 1870 he entered St. Joseph's seminary, Troy, N. Y., and there he was ordained in 1874. He was early assigned to Lynn and to Arlington churches, but in 1876 went to St. Mary's church, Charlestown, remaining there six years, and was then transferred to the Winter Hill church, where he remained the rest of his days. Three years ago his parishioners celebrated the 25th anniversary of his advent to the parish with a notable observance.

OUR TARIFF DRIVES INDUSTRIES TO CANADA.

The excessive tariff imposed against Canada is having its result in driving industries over the border in order to meet the Canadian demand for certain goods, and in some cases to manufacture goods for the American market. This is the result of protection gone mad.

It is no wonder that Eugene N. Foss made great inroads on the republican majority in this state as an advocate of reciprocity with Canada. From the Canadian Manufacturers' association comes the boast that more than $150,000,000 of American capital has been driven across the border on account of tariff extortions imposed by the United States. This is largely represented in paper mills.

Canada is a large importer of our cotton goods, but if she imposes a retaliatory tariff on cotton fabrics also, we may see American concerns going over into Canada to start cotton mills and thus reap a harvest in the Dominion markets. In nine months of last year we exported to Canada cotton goods to the amount of $1,698,619. By putting on a tariff Canada can at a single blow destroy this market and to that extent injure the industry in this country.

It is not improbable that Canada will soon impose an export duty on wood pulp for the manufacture of paper in order to force American manufacturers to establish more plants on the other side of the line.

The recklessness with which our spruce forests were ground up for wood pulp gives Canada the advantage over us, and unless we relax our severe tariff policy towards Canada, she may decide to impose the export duty on wood pulp and thus leave the American paper mills without the raw material except at a prohibitive price.

PICK THE BEST MEN FOR ALL OFFICES.

The democrats of Lowell have given attention thus far in the campaign, mainly to the matter of selecting a mayoralty candidate which in itself is of course very important; but it is also important that the best men be chosen for the various other offices. There is a considerable number of names from which to select nine aldermen. In this, as in the mayoralty, do not waste votes on weak candidates; vote only for the strongest men.

On the list of aldermanic candidates are the names of some men who cannot be elected. They should have decency enough not to burden the ticket every year as they do, although knowing that they have not the slightest chance of nomination. Nevertheless, in spite of those who use the democratic ticket for the primaries for advertising purposes, there are enough good men to select from, and it is up to the voters not to be imposed upon by these perennial candidates.

It should not be forgotten that the common council is an important branch of our city government, coordinate with the board of aldermen and the mayoralty. Therefore, it is important to select men for that body who, if elected, will serve the city acceptably and at the same time reflect credit upon themselves and their party. Do not select mere boys for any office. They can afford to wait.

For every office, high and low, select the very best men available. This is the only way in which the interests of the city can be served and the intelligence of the democracy vindicated.

But unless a voter attends the primaries he cannot share in the selection of candidates, good or bad. The man who remains away from the primaries shirks his duty and bears a heavy share of the responsibility for whatever blunders may be made in the selection of weak, incompetent or dishonest candidates instead of men of the opposite type.

THE CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

It is now settled beyond peradventure that the House of Lords will reject the Budget and force a general election in the British Isles. This will bring to a climax the question of allowing the lords to retain the hereditary privileges by which they are entitled to seats in the upper house without being affected by elections or even by public opinion.

There is a clamor in this country for the popular election of United States senators, and it is bound to come. Similarly in England some reform is inevitable in the constitution of the House of Lords. The time has arrived when the people will not tolerate a feudal body, such as the House of Lords, to veto popular measures and even to interfere with the financial affairs of the government as the peers have recently undertaken to do and as they have done on the question of adopting the present measure for increased taxation.

There is little doubt that the people will vote by a large majority against the attitude of the lords and in favor of the Budget. That will send the liberals back to power with a mandate from the people to overrule the upper house. The lords after such a decision from the people will not dare reject any measure bearing upon their legislative powers or upon financial matters. In fact the coming election will bring about a new era in England if the lords are beaten, and even the king of England expects they will be.

The whole contest is but a step in the onward march of progress which has been noticeable in the British empire for the past quarter of a century. The lords have steadily resisted the popular demand for certain reforms, and this exercise of their power in the face of adverse public opinion has increased the opposition to their domination until it has become irresistible.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE IN A CHILDREN'S HOME.

The authorities of the Children's Home on Myrtle street, Providence, have to explain the cause of twenty-three deaths of children in the space of four months. This home, like most others, has an attending physician who was supposed to look after the health and treatment of the children. That so many died of diseases, mainly intestinal or diarrhoeic, must be very embarrassing to him as pointing to a common cause in practically all the cases, and something which, it seems, might have been promptly remedied. This physician fearing that the milk supply might not be the best during the hot weather ordered condensed milk to be used instead. Either this milk was bad or it was improperly prepared, so that the children were affected with indigestion and diarrhoea. These ailments continued to cause deaths among the children until twenty-three had been snatched away in about four months.

The case is being investigated, and in view of so many deaths, due to deleterious food for such a long period, it seems that somebody has been guilty of criminal negligence.

From the time the children at first took sick there was ample opportunity to find the cause of the trouble and have it remedied without waiting for deaths. If the object had been to kill the children by bad food and lack of care, it seems that it would have been difficult to do a more effective job.

The physician who gave orders to drop cow's milk and use condensed milk for all the children, including the very young, did not seem to share the prevailing opinion relative to the comparative merits of pure cow's milk and condensed milk. The best substitute for Nature's food is "modified milk," and the doctor who ordered condensed milk for all the babies, whether it killed them or not, did not apply ordinary common sense, not to speak of the best medical skill. The children died mainly of improper feeding continued persistently for several months. Had some old woman of common sense who had had children of her own been placed in charge of the home, in all probability there would be no deaths from improper feeding.

SEEN AND HEARD

A woman never doubts the truth of a statement that she thinks ought to be true.

Every time a chronic kicker stubs his toe he imagines the world is against him.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to keep his troubles to himself—it he has none.

Nothing lowers a man so much as the estimation of his friends as being always on his uppers.

They do tell that there is one woman in Lowell who so despises men that she will not look at the moon.

It might be well for married people who quarrel to remember that no man is always wrong and no woman is always right.

The average man can't see anything wrong with his conduct as long as he is in a position to look through the bars of a jail from the outside.

When you go looking for a new job in the building where you are at present employed, be sure that you get the right door. A girl who found the wrong door, the other day, walked into the room that she had just left and came within an ace of meeting the boss face to face.

THE IDEAL WOMAN

No goddess she, unfit for worldly care,

Nor yet a nymph, too light to tread the sod,

Nor fairy over-bright for daily wear,

Nor yet a sprite, spurning an earthly cloud,

She is no empress, with imperious scorn,

Nor yet a queen, of proud forbidding mien,

Yea, all those are not to man's manner born,

But in sweet kindness, his wish is seen

The tender hand that ministers to pain,

The cheerful look of honest helpfulness,

The joyous laugh, better than golden gain,

That drives his dull care into nothingness,

'Tis these that transform her into helpful light,

Whereby man wins in this world's fitful night.

—Henry Irving Nichols

A very amusing incident occurred in a Lowell shop, a manufacturing company, a few days ago. It seems that a piece of broken mirror was thrown beneath a machine and a woman catching sight of it from a rather awkward position thought it was a hole in the floor. On the floor below girls were at work and the woman who mistook the mirror for a hole in the floor thought it would be a good joke to drop something down on the head of the nearest girl. She knew who was at work directly beneath her on the next floor and calling the other girls about her she said she was about to drop something on the head of the girl below, calling her name, but just at that moment the woman discovered that what she thought was a hole was a piece of a mirror. She realized it only when she saw the reflection of her own face in the glass, and of course the sodas were on her.

Albert, the crown prince of Belgium, was ordered out of the dining room of an inn in the Tyrol not long ago and the waitress who did the ordering made him go. He was on an automobile tour and his machine broke down in a ruinous state. He walked several miles to the inn and was a rather dirty looking man when he arrived. The waitress said he could not eat in her dining room in such clothes, so he had to swallow his pride and go to the restaurant at the railroad station.

An eighteen-year-old Irish girl, the Honorable Mary Westra, has just been made master of the Monaghan Hunt at Rossmore, Ireland. The young lady, who is pretty and a social favorite, seems capable of filling the position. As an example of the strenuous life she leads it is related in the Queen that she hunted all a hard day last winter with the Pychies, and back after it to her aunt's house in Market Harborough, changed, had a bit of dinner, travelled all that night to her home (Rossmore), and breakfasted on arrival, then into a habit again and hunted all that day with the Monaghan Harriers, and the next day had a horse running in each of the three races of the Hunt Point to Point and won all three—a fairly good performance for an eighteen-year-old girl. She loves dancing and music, rides well, swims, plays tennis, golf and other games.

Not many people are aware that the huge vaults that extend under practically the whole of St. James palace are utilized for the storage of wine required for the various royal residences and there is a very complete bottling establishment there. The still wines for the king's table, such as burgundy, port and claret, are all bought in bulk, and after being allowed to mature properly are bottled there, and stored away until they are required. In addition to Buckingham palace, Windsor castle and Sandringham, bottling takes place here for Marlborough house, Clarence house and other residences of the different members of the royal family. Large purchases of wine are made every year as opportunity offers, and experts are constantly employed travelling about the vineyards of the continent seeking suitable vineyards. It will be gratifying to colonial countries to learn, says the Buffalo Express, that in recent years both the king and queen have shown a great liking for the light wines of Australia, and a large stock of these wines is now maintained at St. James palace. All the wines bottled carry plain labels, with the name of the wine and the vintage on them in gold letters, surrounded by the royal crown.

CANDIDATE MALONEY'S

WM. E. MALONEY

LETTER

To the PEOPLE

FELLOW DEMOCRATS:

We are approaching the day of a great battle. The climax of a clean cut, thoroughly aggressive campaign in the democratic ranks that has won for our party the respect of the entire community.

You will be called upon Tuesday to NOMINATE THOSE MEN BEST FITTED TO LEAD THE HOSTS OF DEMOCRACY TO VICTORY at the coming city election.

My friends, put aside all the thoughts but the dictates of your earnest judgment. Your work of Tuesday next will not be merely the bestowing a prize. YOU ARE TO SELECT A RELIABLE SERVANT TO GUARD A SACRED TRUST. You are not to choose a mascot. YOU are to select a GENERAL TO WIN YOUR BATTLE, an agent to do your work.

In making this choice THERE ARE TWO VERY IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER. First, the candidate's ability to serve the people of the city, and second the candidate's ability to lead the party to victory at the polls. Let us FIRST CONSIDER THE QUALITIES THAT GO TO MAKE A SUCCESSFUL PUBLIC SERVANT.

HE MUST BE HONEST; there is no question on this point; he must be honest, but he must be something more. HE MUST BE EXPERIENCED IN BUSINESS AFFAIRS FOR THE SPENDING OF FOUR MILLION DOLLARS OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY yearly is surely a matter of the greatest importance.

To successfully administer the affairs of any great business A MAN MUST HAVE HAD YEARS OF BUSINESS EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING for it is the careful attention to and the nice adjustment of the details; the little things of any business that determines success or failure of that business, and this acquaintance with business detail is obtained only in practical business or official experiences.

To be a suitable public servant a man must bear a SPOTLESS REPUTATION for honesty and also he must have a high standing in the business world, but beyond being honest and able our ideal public servant of today must have one other qualification, he must be aggressive. In other words he must not only mean well and know his business, but he must be a man of energy with plenty of push with a passion for improvement and perfection. He must be ever ready to fight for DECENCY, PROGRESS AND RIGHT, as otherwise his knowledge will likely go with his good intentions to pave the road to failure.

So much for a man's ability to serve after he is elected; the other point we must consider is our candidate's ability to win the election for no matter how great or noble or perfect our candidate may be he will do us no good as the man who ran but was defeated.

To be a successful candidate at the polls a man must have great energy, A HIGH PURPOSE, AND NO ENEMIES.

Consider carefully the position of the various candidates in this campaign. If this one were to be nominated what factions, cliques, etc., are there in Lowell which he has been unfortunate enough to offend and which will in all probability oppose his election at the polls. Take the next man. If he were nominated, how will the same argument work against him?

I firmly believe that beyond qualifications which I possess by reason of many years of business experience that I am the strongest candidate to lead the DEMOCRATIC party to a successful battle against George H. Brown at the coming election.

For although at present everything points to a Democratic victory at the polls, the Democrats must not be led into believing that any candidate can easily win this election. The aggressive candidate with a reasonably active campaign will be able to SCORE A GREAT VICTORY, but it's up to you, the Democratic voters of this city, to turn out at the canvasses to the last man and name a sure winner at the polls.

I am confident that I am the man to lead you to victory on election day.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM E. MALONEY,
Democratic Candidate for Mayor.

THANKSGIVING TABLE DECORATIONS

Charming Effects
That the Pilgrim Fathers Would Gaze Upon With Astonishment.

It is as far as a cry from the Thanksgiving celebrations of the pilgrim fathers on their rockbound New England coast in actual count of time as in the ways of providing and decorating the modern dinner table around which many of their descendants will gather on the appointed day of thanks which we all honor.

In this year of grace and on the coming Thanksgiving day the twentieth century housewife will find her greatest source of annoyance in a selection of good things to prepare for her guests rather than in offering up a paean of praise that the family has enough and to spare, as did the hostesses on the first celebration of the feast day.

How the practical Marthas and honest if a bit hard fisted Johns of colonial times would stare in astonishment if they could see a perfectly appointed Thanksgiving table of the present time—for instance, the very charming room and the board to be seen in the illustration, about which will be gathered on this 25th of November a merry party of diners! How they would blink their eyes and possibly criticize, and not altogether favorably, the electric lighting of this festive board! But the up to date hostess will add to her list of mercies the very fact that she is able to run electric wires inside her pumpkin candelabras instead of using the old fashioned troublesome, sputtering candles of yore. For this decoration she will select small pumpkins cut in the usual jack-o'-lantern style, and when placed about a centerpiece or at the four corners of the table the effect will be wonderfully good.

Tall centerpieces are again in vogue, so if this modern hostess has an epergne that has been relegated to the garret for a decade let her hunt it up and give it the place of honor on her Thanksgiving table. Burgundy and white grapes in graceful clusters may fill the dish, and nothing is more attractive than to trail long sprays of autumn leaves from one tier to another until they fall to the base of the epergne. Thanksgiving comes rather late for natural autumnal foliage in most parts of the country, but it is always possible to buy the artificial leaves and use them without injury to one's artistic conscience. Autumn leaves, too, make mighty attractive place cards with a pale yellow spot left purposely in the center of the card for the guest's name.

Pumpkins are expected at the Thanksgiving feast, but the hostess who can show a prize winner in the shape of this luscious vegetable will be thought very clever if she uses it in painted form on her name cards. Such cards are easy to make. Color the body of the pumpkin a heavy yellow and the ribbon a deep blue. The ribbon is tied about the stem and arranged in conventional fashion around the pumpkin. Write the name of the guest upon the end of the ribbon which appears at the bottom. These souvenirs will be remembered long after the gastronomic dainties are forgotten. Chrysanthemums are, of course, the flowers that most appropriately do duty for Thanksgiving day decorations.

A simple and very effective table adornment may be carried out with a tall horn of plenty—the cheap tin variety that has been nicely gilded and then filled with a few handsome long stemmed chrysanthemums. To hold the horn in position it is necessary to fit the pointed end securely to a heavy square of wood. Naturally this primitive means to a decorative end is

The Aeroplane Dance

A new dance, the outcrop of aviation, has made its appearance. Its name is L'Aeromette, and it has been introduced by M. Lepout, president of the Academy of Paris Dancing Masters. M. Lepout has submitted his dance to the members of that august body, and they all congratulated the inventor on the great work he has given to the world. The dance is composed of four distinct movements. First, the couples perform a slow step, imitating the "rolling" of the aeroplane. Second, the couples raise their arms slowly, indicating that the aeroplane is rising in the air, whereupon they advance with little steps. Third illustrates the unsteadiness of the aeroplane at the start, trying to recover its balance. Fourth finally describes the descent, a kind of long, sliding step. A fifth movement of a sensational order should be added—namely, the "fall" of an aeroplane. Some couples would have to come down on the floor with a crash, while others would come to the rescue, pretending to pick up "the pieces."

When such a table decoration is used it is quite in keeping to place the ices in the form of horns of plenty or bunches of grapes in several colorings; both are pretty and a trifle out of the ordinary. Any good caterer will be able to carry out either of these orders for a trifle more than the usual mound or square of cream costs.

And, talking of sweets, there is a most toothsome little tidbit called affinites, a name which in the divorce zone may meet with approval, that is charming to serve in connection with the time honored plum pudding. To make the affinites remove the soft part from meringue glasses, place in the oven to dry out and fill them with a mixture of chopped candied fruits and Brazilian nut meats chopped and blanched. Moisten with orange marmalade. Put the meringues together in pairs.

Here, too, is a Thanksgiving pudding which is a good and cheap substitute for the more expensive plum mixture: Beat to a cream three-quarters of a cup of butter, add to it a cup of molasses, the strained yolks of four eggs and two cups of scalded milk in which two teaspoonfuls of soda have been dissolved. Then add four cups of sifted pastry flour. If bread flour is used more will be needed and the pudding will not be as moist. Add an even teaspoonful of cinnamon, one of nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of cloves, a quarter of a pound of citron cut in shreds, two pounds of seeded raisins and last of all the whipped whites of four eggs. Beat the whole mixture well and pour it into a buttered and sugared pudding mold. To sugar the mold toss a teaspoonful of sugar in it after it has been thoroughly buttered, so that the sugar will cling to every part. Cover the pudding closely and boil it steadily for six hours. It may be steamed if preferred and cooks better and looks better if a fluted pyramid mold is used.

For the wine sauce cream one cup of butter with two cups of sugar. Add gradually half a cup of hot Madeira or sherry and place the sauce in a bowl, set in a basin of hot water and stir for two minutes or until it is perfectly smooth and foamy. Serve hot.

DAPHNE DEAN.

HINT FOR SEWING.

"One of the most difficult things about sewing on hooks and eyes," said a seamstress, "is to do it so the thread does not run on the right side of the garment. At last I have learned how to accomplish the end in a delightfully simple way. If the hem or flap where the fastenings go is narrow, I slip a piece of whalebone into it, sew on the hooks and eyes and then take the whalebone out. If the opening is wider than the whalebone I cut a piece of heavy cardboard the proper width and slip that in. It really saves one a great deal of time in sewing."

AUTOGRAPH HANDKERCHIEF.

A girl who has the knack of devising novel remembrances for birthdays and other festive occasions has invented what she calls the "autograph handkerchief," on a plan somewhat like that of the autograph cushion so popular in the past.

To prepare such a gift she buys or makes a handkerchief of sheerest linen with narrow hemstitched border. An autograph of the person for whom the gift is intended is obtained by some pretext if it cannot be found on a note or letter.

It is carefully traced on the linen. This is then embroidered in white or colors to match the border. It makes an unusual gift and one which bears evidence of personal thought.

ALWAYS FUN AT DINNER TIME.

An up to date mother has struck upon a plan which adds greatly to the general good humor of the household over which she presides. A son works with his father, and there are three girls and a boy in school. At dinner every night each member of the little circle must tell the funniest incident in his or her personal experience of the day. Tried as an experiment, the idea has been made permanent, and it provides a barrel of fun every twenty-four hours.

MRS. TAFT COLLECTS SILVER CUPS.

Mrs. Taft years ago began collecting silver cups in lieu of fragile crystal glasses from which water usually is served. She has now a dozen or two cups, and in the family circle she uses them constantly. They are all of uniform size, but of different designs, and have been purchased in many foreign countries. At the breakfast table each member of the family has his own cup appropriately engraved.

Fun For the Thanksgiving Dinner

"Oh, it's only a family dinner, so we are not going to bother much about table decorations," is a remark one often hears when plans for the Thanksgiving dinner are being discussed. The very fact that the dinner is "just for the family" is often accountable for a dull and most uninteresting feast. Simply because there are no guests outside the family circle those present do not feel that they are required to make any special effort to be entertaining. Now, unless some special "stunt" is provided by the hostess the meal is apt to be prosy and decidedly commonplace. There doubtless will be a feast of good things to eat. Every housewife takes a pride in the lique dolls dressed in some quaint old world costumes. A charming doll favor that has recently been imported from France shows a court lady of the Empress Eugenie period gowned in a hoop skirted frock of chine silk. An electric light placed under the wide flaring skirt brings out the beautiful colorings of the silk and throws a glow over the pretty face of the Parisian beauty. These favors are used not only as favors, but for lighting the table as well.

Court heralds in rich looking red or green velvet knickerbockers, with golden trumpets, to which are attached rolls for the menu, may be given to the men at dinner to correspond with the court lady.

Of course these novelties are expen-

were written by the hostess on as many cards as there were guests. Here is the list:

(1) What part of the turkey assists my lady in making her toilet? (2) What part of the turkey opens the front door? (3) What part of the turkey will appear on Dec. 17? (4) What part of a turkey is part of a sentence? (5) What part of a turkey is used for cleaning purposes? (6) What part of a turkey does a farmer watch with anxiety? (7) Why is the man who eats too fast like a turkey? (8) What part of the turkey is an oriental? (9) Why ought the turkey to be ashamed when he is being served? (10) What color gets its name from the turkey? (11) What feathers find a place on my lady's dresser? (12) When the turkey

AUGUSTUS HARE AND HIS AMERICAN ADMIRER.

To be called an impostor is not usually a particularly pleasant experience, but that it can sometimes happen without giving offense is proved by the following anecdote of the late Mr. Augustus Hare related by his cousin, Lady Blomfield. While Mr. Hare was taking a large party in Rome to see the Coliseum an American joined the party. "He listened for some time to what Mr. Hare was saying, looking very angry, till at last he stepped forward and, addressing the spectators, exclaimed: 'Ladies and gentlemen, I do not wish to obtrude myself upon you, but there are things which no gentleman can hear unconcerned and without the wish of showing up an impostor. Ladies and gentlemen, I do not know who the person is who has been addressing you, but allow me to inform you that the lecture has been taken word for word from Mr. Hare's book, "Walks About Rome." Mr. Hare, much amused, answered, "Sir, I cannot express my acknowledgment for your kindness—indeed, I did not know that I possessed so warm a friend—but, sir, I beg to inform you that I am Augustus Hare!"

THE WEDDING VEIL.

It is quite important enough to deserve attention apart from the rest of the wardrobe.

A wedding veil of tulle will cost from $10 to $15 to begin with. The price depends somewhat upon the height of the wearer, for the veil must fall quite to the length of the long train.

After the lengths of tulle have been draped on the head and spread out over the skirt the lower edge should be shaped so that it falls gracefully just over the train.

The veil which falls over the face is the easier to arrange, for it has only to be thrown over the head, a coronet of orange buds holding it in place on top. White pearl headed pins should be used for fastening it to the bride's hair.

DON'T BUY CHEAP COMBS.

It is a mistake to economize on combs. Too many girls think anything will do that they can run through the hair. There is no greater mistake, as uneven, rough or jagged teeth not only break the hair, but often irritate the scalp.

If one can afford it, tortoise shell makes an ideal comb. Those of ivory are equally good and even more costly. If celluloid be used, be certain that it is perfectly smooth on the points and sides; also do not use it too near a flame, as it is inflammable.

The teeth should be fine, strong and rounded.

CLUB FOR UGLY WOMEN.

One of the most short lived clubs ever formed was the Club des Laideuses—club for ugly women—organized by the Princess Pauline Metternich, who was an elegant woman, but so ugly that she used to call herself "a white monkey." Perhaps she felt lonesome. Anyhow, she tried to gather some of the other women who knew who were not blessed with good looks into a club. But the club proved unpopular and died a natural death. The princess got back at her women acquaintances by remarking that if there were any candor in them her club would be overcrowded.

ERANA.

WAAPU.

KIRI MATAO.

NATIVE WOMEN WHO VOTE IN NEW ZEALAND

THE native Maori women seen in the illustration are prominent in political and educational work in their tribe. Kirri Matao is the widow of a much respected chief and has voted for twenty years past, since the first election at which women were permitted to cast a ballot. Waapu, a half-caste Maori girl, is very highly educated and is doing splendid work among her people, and the third is Erana, a full blooded Maori girl, who cast her first vote at the last New Zealand election.

These women are all advocates of prohibition and vote the Conservative ticket. The women of New Zealand go to the polls with the men. The ballot is a secret one, and all the names on the ballot are erased except those for the preferred candidate.

Sir Joseph Ward, prime minister of New Zealand and an ardent supporter of woman suffrage, was chiefly instrumental in obtaining the vote for women of New Zealand, which was granted by a special act of parliament some years ago. The country is accounted the best governed in the world.

Ways of Using Apples

BAKED apples may be varied in several delicious ways. A little honey and butter can be buried in the hollows after removing the cores. Chopped nut meats mixed with thin strips of lemon and orange rind may take the place of the honey. The tops should be sprinkled with sugar and nutmeg or cinnamon.

Apple meringues are merely glorified baked apples. Fill the hollows with guinea jelly, cover with fluffy meringue and brown slightly in the oven. Apples make ideal cups to hold individual servings of certain salads. They are appropriate for a Waldorf salad of minced apples, celery and nut meats, for one of minced peppers, celery and tomatoes or one of sliced bananas and nut meats dressed with mayonnaise. Rosy apples with a glossy skin are the best for these cups.

This unique salad may be served either in apple or tomato cups. Use equal quantities of minced celery, apples and mild green peppers. Season well with salt and pepper and add enough minced onion to suit the taste. Avoid the use of too much onion, as it coarsens the salad. Dress this with a nicely seasoned mayonnaise and pile into the cups. If tomato cups are used, add the tomato pulp scooped from them. To achieve complete success the vegetables should be chopped very fine.

An apple tapioca is especially nice if served with cream. Wash a cup of tapioca, pour six cupfuls of boiling water over it and cook until the tapioca balls are perfectly clear. Measure six cups of peeled, quartered and uncored apples and add to them some grated lemon rind and a cupful of sugar.

Mix with the tapioca, seasoning with a scant teaspoonful of salt. Bake in a slow oven and serve either hot or cold. A cupful of grated apples of superior quality may be used to flavor ice cream. Grated apples are sometimes added to pancake batter. Better yet, however, are the sweet pancakes or waffles spread with a thin layer of apple sauce flavored with lemon. Melted apple jelly flavored with guinea may be used instead of the sauce. Spread the fruit over the buttered and sugared waffles or cakes and pile them one upon another. Serve at luncheon or for dessert at dinner.

THE LATEST FRENCH NOVELTIES IN FAVORS.

her menu, but the flow of soul is apt to be woefully absent.

If there is a member of the family who is clever at winking fluges he can do much to add to the fun of a Thanksgiving dinner. A little four line doggerel for each member of the family referring to something for which each guest should be thankful, hitting off their characteristics in a funny fashion, would set the ball of fun rolling. The little cards on which the lines are written could be hidden in the favors or attached to narrow ribbon and concealed in the centerpiece.

This year the favors for formal dinners that are going to be smartest are sive, but the idea could be carried out in home-dressed dolls tricked out in crumpe paper costumes. Particularly appropriate for Thanksgiving dinner souvenirs are the figures of Greek designer-Hellenic girls holding baskets filled with luscious grapes.

In humorous menu cards there is the usual variety of pumpkins, jack-o'-lanterns and scarecrows. These are always amusing and appropriate to the occasion.

At a jolly Thanksgiving dinner last year, where the plans for the day included the evening, the following came proved a veritable "howling" success. A set of questions based on the turkey is cooked, in what country is he? (13) What part of a turkey is a story? (14) What part of a turkey appears on a battlefield? (15) Why has the turkey five answers for being sad? The answers are as follows: (1) Comb. (2) Last part of the turkey—ey. (3) Rill. (4) Claws (claws). (5) Wings for dusts. (6) The crop. (7) Both are gobblers. (8) The first part—Turk. (9) Because we see the turkey dressing. (10) Turkey red. (11) Pinfeathers. (12) In Greece. (13) Tall (tule). (14) Drumstick. (15) He got it in the neck. He was hied. He got a roasting. He was terribly cut up. Finally he is in the soup.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN

Favored Mayor's Scheme to Investigate Charity Board

Mayor's Motive in Bringing Up Investigation at This Time is Questioned—Common Council Took No Action on Matter

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held last night. The meeting was called for the purpose of drawing jurors, but there was something else in store for the unexpected members of the board and the something else was in the nature of a communication from the mayor in which he suggested the appointment of committees to investigate the water and the charity board. The communication was looked upon as another of the mayor's political moves but that this one is a bit belated. One alderman said the mayor had had all year to investigate these departments and that he should have investigated them. "He should have investigated the water board," said the alderman, "because in the beginning of the year he said he would investigate it. He said so in his inaugural. The water board invited investigation as did the board of assessors at the time he made his spurge there, but he didn't act and now when the president of the water board is a candidate for mayor and criticizing the mayor for failing to investigate the charges made by Charity Commissioner Howe relative to conditions at the city farm, the mayor comes out with a letter suggesting the appointment of investigating committees. It is too late now to do anything until after election and if he does do anything it cannot be said but that he was forced to it."

The mayor states in his communication that it is because of public statements made by the president of the water board relative to the management of the charity department that the mayor would suggest the investigation of both the water and the charity departments.

The communication was acted upon, the board voting to appoint committees providing the common council concurred. Two joint orders accompanied the communication, but they didn't count because they were not endorsed. The orders were tabled. The communication was under consideration. Aldermen Badger moved that "if the common council concurs, a committee be appointed to comprise two aldermen and three councilmen to investigate the water board."

Alderman Connors said there were no charges before the board and he did not see how the board could properly proceed to investigate a department when there were no charges to investigate. He said he did not wish to be understood as opposing an investigation of the water board, but he thought this a rather late date for the mayor to spring it. He said that the mayor had spoken of it in his inaugural address, which indicated a desire for an immediate investigation of the department. Alderman Connors wondered why the mayor waited until election time to ask for an investigation.

Ald. Dexter allowed that the water board would welcome an investigation. He was of the opinion that the people men, the latter amount to pay December salaries for 15 additional firemen, was read.

On the question of 15 additional firemen, Councilmen Flanagan, Killpatrick, Achin, Kearns and others favored the order.

Councilman Genest argued against the order.

The vote showed 24 in favor and 1 against. Councilman Genest alone voting against. The other transfers were unanimously voted.

The report of the committee on streets, including that of the First Trinitarian Congregational church, for a wider sidewalk, was sent to the city clerk's office for seven days.

On motion of Councilman Flanagan it was voted to omit the next regular meeting, owing to the primaries next Tuesday night.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Thomas Flaherty and Miss Grace Anna Mansur were united in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 21 Third street, the marriage ceremony being performed by Rev. George P. Kengott. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Harriet A. Mansur, while Fred Mansur, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The bride wore a handsome dark gray traveling suit and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was given away by her father, Mr. Fred Mansur. After the ceremony a reception was held at immediate friends and relatives and light refreshments were served. Later they left on a trip to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Flaherty will be at home to their friends at 21 Third street after Jan. 1.

THE EVENING HIGH

Alumni Addressed by Prof. Hugh J. Molloy

Prof. Hugh Molloy of the state Normal school spoke before the Evening High school alumni last evening on Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities." The lecture was decidedly interesting, the subject being finely handled by the lecturer.

Preceding the lecture a brief business meeting was held, President John

PROFESSOR HUGH J. MOLLOY
Of the Normal School.

H. Shea presiding. Mr. William F. Thornton, then installed the following newly elected officers: President, James P. Riley; vice-president, Josephine G. Gormley; recording secretary, Elliot F. Wood; financial secretary, Lulu Hart; treasurer, Lillian H. Hobbs. President-elect Riley introduced Prof. Molloy, who spoke in part as follows:

"Lawrence Hutton says in his essay on Dickens: Pecksniff will live almost as long as hypocrisy lasts; Uriah Heep will not be forgotten while mock humility exists; Barkis will be quoted until men cease to be willins; and so long as cheap, rough coats cover faith and charity, and honest hearts, the world will remember that Captain Cuttle and the Peggottys were so clad."

The world laughed and cried over Micawber, Captain Cuttle, Daniel Peggotty and Caleb Plummer, behind the footlights years after their contemporaries in the standard and legitimate drama created solely for dramatic representations, were absolutely forgotten.

"We are to consider a wonderful story by a maker of many wonderful stories. . . . Today in English book sales Dickens is surpassed only by the Bible and Shakespeare. . . . But many readers who have an acquaintance with Charles Dickens have never read 'A Tale of Two Cities.' The work marked a notable departure for the novelist in story writing, and went far toward satisfying a great artistic longing and ambition. . . . The story was written 60 years ago, in 1859, and was inspired, to a great extent by Carlyle's French and epic-like history of the French revolution, a work which Dickens read 20 times or more. He set himself the task of writing a picturesque story, a story in every chapter with characters true to nature, but whom the story itself should express more than they should express themselves by dialog.

"He thought of calling the story 'One of These Days,' or 'Buried Alive,' or 'The Thread of Gold,' then 'The Story of Beauvais,' and finally the title which it now bears. It has been played in this country under the title, 'The Only Way.'"

"It shows the London of George the Third, and the Paris of Louis XVI and his unfortunate Marie Antoinette; that Paris which witnessed three striking and intensely dramatic passages of an unclouded king through its streets; in 1789, when the court returned under compulsion from Versailles; a second time in 1791, when the despairing king was brought back from his flight to the frontier; and the third and fateful journey, when Louis was borne to the guillotine.

"London, when it is peopled with nearly 2,000 characters; in some of the stories they are overwhelming in number; in this one, fortunately, they are comparatively few. The plot is intricate and many subtle connections escape a careless or thoughtless reader; but the story fairly rushes on as if the author were, to borrow Mr. Whipple's quotation, "Like one, that on a lone some road, Doth walk in fear and dread, And, having once turned round, walks on, And, having once turned round, walks on."

On Sydney Carton he said: "He is the hero and central figure of the story, one of the noblest characters in the literature of fiction. William Allen White said of him: 'The conception of this character shows in its author an ideal of magnanimity and of charity never known before. There is not a grander, self-devoted Sydney Carton, in literature or history.' The underlying character of the human soul, the intensity of the longing for better things, stand forth vividly in this portrayal of Carton's own that the divine spark had died out utterly and forever, we suddenly find the fire of divine origin smoldering and ready to be revived. Nothing is hopeless but divine despair and obstinacy.

"The world of action is a wonderful and fascinating world, with its own saints and sinners, its angels of light and demons of darkness, its heroes and its cowards, its just and unjust, its true and its false, the counterparts of the real and the visible world; nay, it is the real world and its personages. Like the woman who wept at the feet of Jesus, many sins are forgiven Sydney Carton because he loved much.

"Poor, erring, generous, noble Sydney Carton! How Dickens must have loved that unhappy, brilliant child of his own great heart and mind. Oh, that wonderful genius that from the battered and sin-stained rags of a mis-spent life in London, did weave a splendid garment of white and gold to grace that dreadful scene in the blood-soaked streets of Paris. If the great novelist had drawn no other heroic character—and he created many—he would have done mankind a striking service by raising in that abyss of brutality, in that veritable inferno where every vestige of a Christ for a time had disappeared, a noble and splendid personality, to proclaim anew the truth, so often forgotten by blinded men, that man is created in the image and the likeness of the true and living God."

The next lecture in the series to be held by the alumni will be given by John H. Harrington, who will speak on "Travels in Europe."

GREAT SHAKE-UP

In the U. S. Customs Department

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—"We are in the midst of the greatest shake-up in the history of the United States customs department," said William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, last night, when shown Secretary MacVeagh's summary of the work thus far accomplished in cleaning up the New York customs house.

"More employees have been dismissed from the New York office since I took charge than during the entire previous history of the service," he continued, "and we are not through yet. We are going to keep at it until the New York customs house is made thoroughly respectable."

"Secretary MacVeagh's statement in Washington shows what we had accomplished up to today. Add to that the nineteen employees dismissed today and you will see that we have gone pretty thoroughly into the matter. I am continuing the investigation, and I can say that there are more heads to be lopped off soon."

Mr. Loeb's house cleaning took him into high places yesterday. Among those dismissed yesterday afternoon was James N. Vall, deputy collector of this the biggest customs house in the country.

Mr. Vall expressed great indignation at his removal. "I have been made the scapegoat," he said. "Not only have I been absolutely faithful to the government for the entire 22 years I have been in the service but it is a known fact that while I was at the head of the weighing department, I ferreted out the original frauds."

ST. MARY'S

MEN OF PARISH BUILD FOUNDATION FOR RESIDENCE

The male members of St. Mary's parish, Collinsville, are working day and night, putting in the foundation for the new parochial residence which will be located close to the church on the south side. The women of the parish are planning several social events in aid of the church.

ANNIVERSARY MASS

At St. Peter's church, Monday morning at 8 o'clock, an anniversary high mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of the souls of the late Paul A. and the late Charles F. Sullivan, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis F. Sullivan, of Warwick street, who died about a year ago within a few weeks of each other.

GIFT OF $150,000

Received by Trustees of Art Museum

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Previous to his death on July 6, Robert Dawson Evans of this city instructed his wife to present to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts the sum of $150,000 and the trustees of the museum now announce that the gift has been received from the widow.

Of the present gift $125,000 has been placed in the new maintenance fund, for which an appeal was recently issued. Twenty-five thousand dollars of the total of $150,000 completes Mr. Evans' subscription.

Mr. Evans was a genuine lover of art, and particularly of paintings, his gifts of a Van Dyke and a double portrait by Rubens creating much interest and attention.

During the 24 hours ending at noon yesterday the art museum directors received $53,000 toward its maintenance fund.

This makes the total of the fund up to last night $135,635, exclusive of the Evans gift.

Is the democratic party going to ignore a splendid opportunity to elect its candidate for mayor or will the members of that party turn out to a man next Tuesday and vote for James E. O'Donnell, who, democrats and republicans alike concede, is the man that can achieve the defeat of the present mayor?

PAY INCREASED BOARD OF HEALTH

New York Judges to Get $21,500

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Although justices of the supreme court of the United States receive only $12,500 a year, the state supreme court justices sitting in New York city find their present remuneration of $17,500 a year inadequate, and a resolution was adopted yesterday by the city's board of estimate and apportionment increasing their salaries to $21,500. The increase will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1910.

Democrats: Don't be influenced by sentiment artificially manufactured or fictitious betting, but hearken to the judgment of sensible and unselfish men who will tell you that O'Donnell will win the nomination because he is the strongest man to select as your candidate for mayor.

Heard Several Petitions Yesterday

The board of health met yesterday afternoon, but did not receive plans from the American Hide & Leather company, for a new beaming plant in Perry street, and the board is still waiting for the plans.

Michael T. Rafferty had petitioned for a permit to build a stable in Auburn street to accommodate 12 horses. Several remonstrants appeared and after hearing their objections Mr. Rafferty withdrew his petition.

Arthur W. Saunders was granted permission to build a stable at Georgia and Pembroke avenues. M. W. Mulcahey received a permit to maintain a stable at Concord and Rogers Sts. No action was taken on the petition to build a stable in Harris court.

YALE A WINNER

Yale 8 -- Harvard 0

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 20.—The annual income of $100,000 spent for admission tickets represented only a part of the struggle between Harvard and Yale for eastern football championship honors today. The crowd that gathered in the Harvard stadium where the game was played numbered nearly 40,000 people. It was a college assembly not unlike that at class day, although vastly larger. It was intensely enthusiastic and well versed in the mysteries of the game and the relative strength and ability of the teams and the players. It was warmly clothed and gaily decorated. College colors were carried almost universally and crimson and blue flags added lustre to the ranks. Some students in higher mathematics estimated that half a million violets and 50,000 red chrysanthemums contributed to the floral display; that 100,000 cones had given up their lives for furs to keep out the cold. And all to see twenty-two swift, agile and sturdy undergraduates trained to the hour and well drilled in football knowledge, run, kick and wrestle for seventy minutes. These chief actors remained well away from the scene until a few hours before the game began. The Harvard team, which had been quieting its nerves and conserving its strength at a suburban hotel club reached Cambridge just before noon for the last lunch at the training table. The Yale lunch at the training table. The Yale lunch at the training table. The Yale lunch at the training table.

method was also adopted with the regular trains. The midnight train from New York, due in Boston at 7 a. m., which is usually made up of ten sleeping cars, was run in four sections of twelve sleepers each. Regular trains from New London and Norwich were also split up and rolled into the South station in Boston heavily laden with football enthusiasts. Over the Boston & Albany division of the New York Central came a special from New York and one from Pittsfield. Each was in two divisions. The Harvard club of New York had a special train of parlor cars. All of the trains on this line stopped at Allston, less than half a mile from the stadium. The demand for accommodations from the north and east of Boston was so great that it was found necessary on the Boston & Maine railroad to run the trains from Maine and New Hampshire in sections. The excursionists burdened with overcoats and sweaters streamed out of the cars and after snatching a hasty luncheon started for the stadium. At least a third of the arrivals were women. Several of the specials were composed entirely of parlor cars where classes and frats held impromptu reunions. The announced lineup was as follows:

Harvard
D. Smith
McKay
Whittington
Fisher
Fish
Browne
O'Flaherty
Corbett
Leslie
Minot
Teams Were Prompt
Both teams were unusually prompt in appearing. Yale running on to the field at 1:45 and Harvard appearing a few minutes later. Five minutes before the fixed time officials and captains met in the centre and after a couple of minutes' discussion the coin was tossed.

Start of Game
Yale won the toss and took the south side of the field and the wind, giving Harvard the kickoff. P. Whittington kicked off to Yale's 35 yard line. It was a purposely short kick, but Yale caught it without gain. There was Harvard interference and it was Yale's ball on their 50 yard line. On the first down there was a fumble but the ball was not lost. Leslie ploughed through center for three yards and Philbin fumbled the ball in the center of the field. Fish of Harvard fell on it. Minot made five yards through center.

Yale
J. Kilpatrick
H. Hobbs
L. Andrus
C. Conroy
R. Corbett
L. Lilley
T. Savage
H. Howe
H. Philbin
D. Dalry
Coy
Then Fish shook off the Yale team and placed the ball on Yale's 35 yard line. Some of the Harvard players began to hold and the Crimson were sent back to the 50 yard line. Corbett kicked on the first down, but it was Yale's ball on their 35 yard line. Coy kicked on the first down to Harvard's 38-yard line. Corbett could make no gain round Kilpatrick's end and Leslie only got two yards more on a delayed pass. Minot kicked on the third down to Philbin on Yale's 35-yard line. The ball was nailed there for no gain. Philbin made two yards through right tackle. Coy kicked on the second down to O'Flaherty on Harvard's 20-yard line. For the third time the Harvard back fumbled but recovered the ball. A double pass resulted in no gain. Minot kicked on a second down to Yale's 47-yard line where Philbin was thrown without gain. Up to this point Yale had outkicked Harvard. The Crimson, however, had made more distance in rushing. Coy again kicked outside on Harvard's 30-yard line. Corbett and Leslie found the Yale line impervious. Minot kicked to Yale's 45 yard line. There was Harvard interference and the ball was Yale's on Harvard's 50 yard line. Dalry tried a long run round Yale's left end but was thrown back for a loss. On an inside kick which Conroy caught it was Yale's ball on Harvard's 25 yard line. On the first down Coy ploughed through for 5 yards. On the next rush he only got a yard. It was a third down with half a yard to gain. Philbin made more than the needed distance and carried the ball to Harvard's 18 yard line. Philbin struggled through tackle for a scant yard. Coy could only make two more. On the third down Coy made a second failure at a field goal. Harvard put the ball in play by a scrimmage on their 25 yard line. Leslie went into the mighty Conroy for three yards. Corbett made seven yards through right tackle. Then there came a delay and a discussion of football ethics between Corbett and Kilpatrick. Minot then kicked on a third down to the center of the field. Coy's forward pass went outside but as there was holding in the Yale line, the ball was brought in and the Blue regained it. Coy kicked on the first down to Harvard's 42-yard line. On the first down Minot made ten yards and then fumbled. Fish, however, was on the spot and rushed the ball into Yale's territory.

Three scrimmages in the centre of the field resulted in no gain. Harvard kicked on the third down to Yale's 35 yard line and Dalry ran it back to the 42 yard line. Philbin was thrown back for a loss of seven yards on the first rush and then Coy kicked to O'Flaherty on Harvard's 35 yard line. O'Flaherty for the first time caught the ball, but as he was outside there was no gain. Brooks goes out and Spencer takes his place. Thrice Harvard failed to gain on delayed passes. Minot's kick on the third down was blocked. Although the ball went behind the goal line Harvard recovered it. The ball was put in play on Harvard's 25 yard line. Again the double pass was tried without gain. There was a Harvard penalty which sent the Crimson back to their 20 yard line. Minot punted to Harvard's 40 yard line where Philbin made a fair catch. There Yale tried a goal from placement. Andrus tried for a goal from placement. The kick went over the Harvard goal post, but was brought back for a second trial. On the second trial Andrus kicked low over Harvard's goal line. The Harvard side heaved a great sigh of relief at the escape. Minot kicked on the third down to the 45-yard line and Philbin ran it back 14 yards. Coy tried an inside kick on the first down but it was Harvard's ball on the 10 yard line. On the first down standing on Harvard's 35 yard line Coy kicked a goal from the field. Three Harvard rushes netted five yards and then the Crimson was sent back nearly to the goal line on a penalty where Minot kicked on no gain down to Harvard's 35 yard line, where the ball was nailed. There was a long discussion on Andrus' kick over Harvard's goal line when a Yale man fell on the ball, and finally the score board announced that it was a Harvard safety and Yale was given two points. Coy failed at another goal from the field and on the first down Harvard kicked to the center of the field. Play was resumed by Conroy kicking off to Leslie who ran in back to Harvard's 25 yard line. After two Harvard rushes with slight gains, time for the first half was called with the ball in Harvard's possession on their 25 yard line. Score at the end of the first half: Yale 5, Harvard 0.

SUMMARY, FIRST HALF
CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 20.—Superior kicking gave Yale an advantage of 5 to 0 in the first half of today's game with Harvard. Two points were gained on a Harvard safety due to a mixup in a Yale kick over. The other three points went on a pretty goal from the field which Coy made standing on Harvard's 35 yard line. It was the Yale captain's fourth attempt at one of these plays as the greater portion of the half was in Harvard's territory. Nevertheless, the Crimson showed wonderful offensive power and play in the first ten minutes, carrying the ball 53 yards in five rushes. Harvard was twice inside of Yale's 35 yard line and each time was sent back on the penalties. Coy out-punted Minot but at the same time he outkicked his own ends and although the ball was almost invariably muffed by O'Flaherty it was usually recovered. Yale did very little consistent rushing and made only one first down in the first half. The Yale play seemed to be to rush the ball to Harvard's 25 yard line and then try for a field goal. The half was strung out to nearly one hour.

SECOND HALF
Between the halves it was explained that the Harvard safety came when Minot's kick was blocked and a Harvard man fell on it behind the goal line. The second half started with Conroy kicking off to McKay on Harvard's 20 yard line. The ball was rushed back four yards. Minot kicked on the second down to Yale's 40 yard line and Philbin ran it back four yards. A forward pass on the second down netted five yards and it was Yale's ball on her 52 yard line. Coy kicked on a third down to Harvard's 25 yard line. There was no gain in the run back. Leslie made four yards and then the ball was carried by Leslie dragged to the 40 yard line. Three line plunges only netted three yards and then Harvard carried off successfully an inside kick to Yale's 46 yard line. On the second down Yale was off-side and the ball was on her 41 yard line in Harvard's possession. Frothingham was charged through for four yards and Minot made five more through centre. It was the third down on Yale's 33 yard line. Minot made it a first down on Yale's 29 yard line. Here the Yale line stood firm and Frothingham could gain but a yard and Minot only knew more. The ball was on Yale's 25 yard line and Harvard tried an inside kick. The ball went over the goal line for a touch back. The ball was brought out and put in place by Yale on her 25 yard line. On the first down Coy on a fake kick made 3 yards. On the second line Philbin made a second down on Yale's 42 yard line. Here there came a five-minute pause while the players had their faces spigged and Goebel had his neck rubbed. After nine yards had been made Coy kicked to Harvard's 25-yard line. Minot kicked on the third down and it was Yale's ball in the center of the field. The Harvard line made only six yards in three rushes and Yale kicked to Harvard's 25 yard line. Wigglesworth took O'Flaherty's place. Minot was dragged and pushed through Yale's line to Harvard's 36 yard line for a first down. Minot and Frothingham gained nine yards in two rushes and then there came a Harvard penalty which took the ball back to the 26 yard line. Minot kicked out of bounds to the center of the field. After Yale had made 5 yards in three downs Coy kicked to Harvard's 10 yard line. There was penalty in the second down which sent the ball to within a yard of the Harvard goal line. Minot kicked out to Philbin on Harvard's 30 yard line. Six yards were made in three rushes and then Coy dropped back for another inside kick and the ball fell in Harvard's hands on their 15 yard line. The second rush was put in play so quickly that Harvard made 15 yards. The Yale line held firmly and only five yards resulted in three rushes. Harvard tried an inside kick but the ball went to Yale on the Crimson 30 yard line. Coy punted on the second down and Hobbs recovered it on Harvard's 40 yard line. With Yale's side shouting "touch-down," Philbin made five yards through centre and then Coy tried another on-side kick, but again it was Harvard's ball on the 15 yard line. A Harvard trick play resulted in a loss of 10 yards and standing behind his own goal line Minot punted to Harvard's 43 yard line. Again Coy kicked on the third down to Harvard's 13 yard line. Neither Minot nor Frothingham could make the distance in three rushes and an inside kick gave the ball to Yale on Harvard's 23 yard line. The Yale stands rose and began to sing "Bright College Years." Three rushes however only yielded six yards. On the third down with the ball on Harvard's 35 yard line Captain Coy ten yards farther back dropped his second field goal of the day and the score was: Yale 6, Harvard 0. The teams changed sides and Harvard kicked off to Coy, who ran the ball back 15 yards to Yale's 33 yard line. He kicked on the first and it was Harvard's ball on the Crimson's 32 yard line. Holt took Howe's place. Poor rushing and penalties sent Harvard back to the 10 yard line where Minot kicked, where Minot kicked to the 40 yard line. Coy rushed it back 10 yards before he was downed. Coy tried an inside kick on the second down and Frothingham ran it back ten yards to Harvard's 20 yard line. A penalty sent it back 5 yards on the first rush. The game ended with the ball in Harvard's possession on the Crimson's 15-yard line. The game ended without further scoring. The score ended Yale 8, Harvard 0.

BORN AT SEA
BABY CAME DURING HEIGHT OF STORM
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—It must have been a stormy petrel instead of a stork that carried little Louise Henriette Bigot out of the unknown. The baby and her similarly named mother arrived yesterday on the French liner La Provence, the pets of all the passengers, for the baby had been born Thursday night, while the ship was tumbling and tossing in a great gale off the upper end of Long Island, and she was the tiniest little thing most of the women had ever seen, weighing only four pounds. The storm was responsible for her coming. George Rigot, the father, who is a French professor, and lives at No. 91 Madison avenue, went to the pier to meet his wife, and was amazed to find himself a father. Mrs. Rigot and little Louise were doing very well, but were not able to leave La Provence.

ASKS INJUNCTION

To Prevent Invasion of Post Office

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—The United States brought an action in the U. S. circuit court yesterday, through U. S. Atty. Asa P. French, against the Boston Elevated Railway company and the Hugh Nawn Contracting company, seeking an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering, interfering, invading or trespassing, or breaking into or taking any part of the premises corner of Boylston and Brattle streets, Cambridge, without the consent of the government, in connection with the construction of the Cambridge subway.

The subway is to be run under Brattle street and the government alleges that the defendants intend to do work under the building at the corner of the streets named, in which the government has a postoffice on the ground floor and basement.

The government alleges that the work will impair the efficiency of the building and interfere with the use of the building as a postoffice and also with the distribution of the mail.

The order is returnable Jan. 1, but it is believed that the two defendant companies will seek a hearing at an earlier date.

The proceeding is very unusual. It is the first action ever brought here by the government to prevent an invasion of a postoffice. From a legal point of view it is highly important, especially in view of the fact that it contemplates stopping a public work.

The defendants are working under a special act of the legislature, empowering them to do the work in the manner they are doing it, but the government in defense of the postoffice seeks to stop the work insofar as it in any way interferes with the postoffice and the distribution of the mail.

HE ESCAPED

MAN BROKE AWAY FROM AN OFFICER

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Alcide Charron of Fitchburg, who is alleged to be a deserter from the U. S. army, escaped from Reserve Officer Bergstrom of that city yesterday afternoon while being taken to the Charlestown navy yard from North station.

After leaving North station the officer walked across the street with his prisoner and up to the elevated station. While waiting for a train Charron got into the crowd and made a successful dash for liberty. He ran down the stairs of the elevated station and soon disappeared.

The officer searched for him in several places, but failed to find any trace of him. He reported the escape of his man to the officer in charge of station 1, but up to a late hour last night the deserter had not been located.

The officer told a reporter that Charron offered him $200 for his liberty and that he refused it. He said he knew Charron well and for that reason trusted him and did not handcuff him.

HELD FOR ARSON

Mrs. Adams Bound Over in $1000

The case of Margaret Adams, charged with maliciously burning a building and also with attempting to defraud two insurance companies, was concluded in police court yesterday afternoon. After arguments had been made by Fire Inspector Rice for the government and J. Joseph O'Connor for the defense, Judge Hadley found probable cause of guilt and held the woman under $1000 for her appearance before the superior court.

WORK STOPPED

In Order to Search for Dynamite

LAWRENCE, Nov. 20.—Work in excavating for the foundation of the new print works of the Pacific mills on Merrimack street has been suspended as a precautionary step, pending a search for a supply of dynamite, which is thought to have been buried there 11 years ago.

James Humphrey, gatetender for the Wood worsted mills, recently recalled that while employed by the Boston & Northern Street Railway company in 1898 the dynamite was supposed to have been placed underground under the direction of James Hearnley, an expert in the handling of explosives, who had been carrying on some work for the company.

The land embraces a number of acres and was then covered with a scrub growth of trees. It is opposite the car barn of the street railway company.

Mr. Humphrey communicated with the authorities and steps were at once taken to guard against accident. Humphrey was unfamiliar with the location of the explosive and Hearnley is dead.

It was decided to send for Patrick Murphy, who was assistant foreman under Hearnley. He was found in New York state and is now here to conduct a search.

MADE NEW RECORDS

BOUY, France, Nov. 20.—Competing for the Weiller height prize for heavier-than-air machines, Hubert Latham yesterday in a monoplane ascended a height of 3345 feet and M. Esnault in a bi-plane 1181 feet. Both of these heights are world's records. Paulhan previously held the honor at 297 feet. Orville Wright made an unofficial flight at a height of 1600 feet at Potsdam in October and Count de Lambert is credited with having reached a height of 1300 feet when he passed over the Eiffel tower. This latter feat was also unofficial.

OYSTER ROAST

Was Enjoyed by President Taft

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 20.—As one of the concluding features of the convention of the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways association, and to accept again the hospitality of the people of the Old Dominion, President Taft came to Norfolk yesterday, reviewed a military parade, made two speeches in which he bespoke his interest in a practical system of waterway improvement to be carried forward on a businesslike basis and not merely as a means of distributing patronage; partook of an oyster roast under the shadows of the towering Cape Henry lighthouses, and attended a smoker in honor of a large corps of visiting newspapermen. The president retired last night on the presidential yacht Mayflower. The Mayflower this morning got under way for Hampton, where the president will attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the Hampton Normal Institute, of which he is a member. This afternoon he delivered an address to the colored students and then sailed for Washington.

A reception to the Norfolk committeemen and the delegates to the convention began the day's program and then came the parade and speech by the president from a reviewing stand.

President Taft was introduced by Gov. Swanson, and said in part: "I am glad to be here to testify to my interest in the waterways work. What I wish to deprecate is a general proposition to raise a lot of money and dump here and there and some back here just in order to distribute it equally over the country. I am opposed to that. I am in favor of expending the money for an improvement in Norfolk and not spending it for improvement somewhere else. If the Norfolk project is a good one and the one somewhere else is not."

"I want to say that I will take up what is projected and proposed with all the sympathy possible, but nevertheless with what hope is a judicial spirit to select what the country does not sustain and to approve what the evidence does sustain."

The president referred to the battle of the Merrimack and the Monitor, and said:

"I want a navy to continue to be maintained worthy of this country. We are knocking anybody's chip off his shoulder and we are not having a chip on our shoulder, but we are a great nation of eighty or ninety millions of people, and we must in order, under the present conditions to maintain the prestige that is proportionate to our stand before the world, have a navy that is worth seeing and able to fight it."

The president was taken by special train to Cape Henry, for an old-fashioned oyster roast. When the president arose to speak he declared that he felt like an oyster.

The waterways delegates having practically completed the business of their convention Thursday, gave the day over to participating in the welcome to the president.

HIS NECK BROKEN

Boy Injured in Football Game

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 20.—With his neck broken in much the same way as that of Cadet Byrne of West Point, Albert P. Wiberiske, 17 years old, died last night in the Orange Memorial hospital, another victim to football. He was tackled in an open field while running with the ball, and thrown head first.

ON SHORT TIME

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 20.—The various mills of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Co., in the eastern states yesterday went on a five days a week schedule, which will be continued until the cotton market situation improves. The Stark mills at Manchester, employing 1,500, are among the plants affected.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The production of "The Pit" by Miss Helen Grayce and her players at the Opera House last evening proved the most delightful offering of a most satisfying engagement. The play in itself tells an absorbing story of reckless speculation that overflowed with timely interest. It was most capably enacted. Miss Grayce was entirely in her element as the society girl Laura Dearborn, who becomes the neglected wife. Mr. Barker scored heavily as Curtis Jadin while Edmund Abbey was most convincing as the artist.

The company will close its successful engagement this evening with a production of that famous play "In the Bishop's Carriage." The title of the drama gives but a faint idea of the interesting elements of the story which is based almost entirely upon the adventures of Nance Olden, a sneak thief and her pal, Tom Dorgan. These are two notorious persons of the under world who are finally detected during one of their escapades. The girl concludes to reform and goes upon the stage. The man is sent to prison and escapes. His return to Nance, his efforts to drag her back to the old life and her final resolution makes one of the most effective scenes to be found in any of the newer plays.

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE."

The dramatic possibilities in the dual roles of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the somewhat weird offering to be seen at the Opera House next Monday night, has been recognized for many years by a number of prominent actors and has been included by many in their repertoire. The play has also been used by numbers of the less celebrated actors as a vehicle to attain histrionic honors. Of the latter class is Frederick Pierce who will be seen in the title role of the play next Monday night and whose success in the part has been included by many in their repertoire. "THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

Next Tuesday night, Nov. 23d at the Opera House, a thrilling melodrama entitled "The Convict's Daughter" will be presented at popular scale of prices. "The Convict's Daughter" is said to tell a heart story for all the family, the story of a man who is unjustly convicted of a crime and sentenced to prison. He escapes and being hard up consents to pose as the father of a girl against whom a fortune seeking villain is plotting. As it turns out, the girl is really the convict's daughter, the villain is unmasked, virtue triumphs and vice is confounded. The company presenting the piece is said to be a capable one. Seats for the engagement are now on sale.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD."

There could be no more welcome announcement for the one act, one-act play than the appearance here of "The Old Homestead" at the Opera House, Wednesday, Nov. 24, matinee and night. The dear old pastoral play itself is by this time so familiar to everyone that any attempt to describe it would be supererogation. The mere mention of the names of Joshua Wharton, Cy Prince, Seth Perkins, Aunt Matilda and Rickett Ann, is sufficient to bring to mind all of these delightful rural characters, and at the same time arise in the background the pictures of the old farm, the homestead in Swansey, Grace church on Broadway in New York City, and the aristocratic mansion of Henry Hopkiss, the metropolitan merchant and millionaire.

The company this season is practically the same as last, and the production is said to be perfect in every detail. Seats for the engagement will go on sale today.

Thanksgiving comes next week, and the season of happiness and gastronomic joys is not complete without a visit to Hathaway's theatre. The feature of the week is "Suey Sam," the most unique playlet ever presented on the stage. This is a Chinese romance, played by Miss Isabel Bardine & Co., and gives an insight into the innermost secrets of the now famous Chinese slave mystery that has baffled the police heads of the entire world.

No name is dearer to vaudeville than that of Gracie Bonnett, most lovable of stage old women and her presentation of the old Irish lady in "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband," which will be one of the stellar numbers, is a veritable classic in its art. "The Great Escape" and his Lilliputians are destined to score the acrobatic hit of the Hathaway season, for their titanic work and balancing are nothing short of wonderful. Marston and Holmes, "The Minstrel Boys," are as entertaining as a whole blackface troupe, in their interpretation of minstrelsy's most pleasing features. High-class singing

Today will be the last of the showing of the Pathé masterpiece "Ripley," a dramatic version of the grand opera of the same name by Verdi. The musical hit of the show is a duet, "Ellen Alunah," sung by Mr. and Mrs. Bales. Without a doubt hundreds of Lowell people have heard this song for years but so pleasing is its melody and so well it is sung at the Theatre Vuyons that it pleases much better than would a newer and less familiar song.

STAR THEATRE

"The Cattle Thieves," a motion picture, depicting the operations of such men in the wild west some years ago and later showing how they were treated by the cowboys, who, when they took law into their own hands and dealt with bad characters in a stern way, is a feature at the Star theatre. Keaslo's educated dogs, performing wonderful feats, and Ted Letell, eccentric comedian, will constitute a fine vaudeville bill Monday. The admission of five cents allows a seat.

"UNCLE RUBE."

"Uncle Rube," a drama, in four acts by Charles Townsend, will be given by some of the young people, under the direction of Mrs. George F. Kenngott, in the vestry of the First Trinitarian Congregational church, Dutton street, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24th and 25th, at 8 p.m. These Thanksgiving dramas have become an annual feature with the young people of this church, and are always largely attended. Reserved seats are on sale at Steinert's.

Consumption Can Be Cured.

Mrs. Nettie Carter of Elkton, Ky., after her physician had told her that she had consumption took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and has been completely restored to health. Appetite is good, she sleeps well, and enjoys life without pain or ache.

"I had acute indigestion for two years, which kept growing worse. I employed several physicians without any benefit. I came near starving, as I could eat very little. For several months I suffered frequent attacks of vomiting, which made me very weak. Finally my physician told me that I had consumption. This filled me with terror."

"In an advertisement in the Nashville Banner I read that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended for Tuberculosis or Consumption. I began to take it in dessertspoonful doses four or five times a day, and a table-spoonful at bedtime. I am now strong and well. Cough, distress in my chest, and the indigestion are gone. My appetite is good; I sleep well. This is all due to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which I regard as an unfailing cure of consumption if taken in time."—Mrs. Nettie Carter, Elkton, Ky.

Thousands, both men and women, like Mrs. Carter, praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for restoring them to health.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

cures diseases of the throat and lungs and all run down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It builds new tissue, invigorates body, brain and nerve, quickens the circulation and aids in driving out all disease germs. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey, and is sold in sealed bottles only, never in bulk. Price $1.00. REVOLUTIONISTS CANLEY IS HERE

To Explain Mass. Savings Insurance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Brooding quiet settled down yesterday on the strained situation this government finds itself in with Nicaragua. But if everything was quiet on the surface, there was plenty stirring beneath. A communication was received at the state department from the Nicaraguan legation, the purport of which was not divulged and the ministers from Guatemala and Costa Rica held a mysterious conference with Assistant Secretary Wilson yesterday afternoon.

A significant development of the day, inasmuch as it disclosed this government's unyielding determination not to interfere with the Nicaraguan revolutionists was the reiterated announcement that the state department would not act to insure the safety of any American vessels which might be called upon or seized by the insurrectionary war vessels now blockading the government forces at Greytown or elsewhere on the Guatemalan coast. The announcement was made as a result of several inquiries by American shipping concerns during the day.

The deepest interest is apparent as to the conference between Assistant Secretary Wilson, Senor Calvo, minister from Costa Rica, and Dr. Herrarte, the minister from Guatemala. It is believed that the intention of the existing Pan-American treaty, signed here a little over two years ago, was the chief matter discussed. The violation of the agreement was committed by Gen. Toledo, in command of President Zelaya's forces when he invaded Costa Rican territory in his advance on Greytown, while practically he is now besieged.

In the threatened trouble between Nicaragua and Venezuela only a short time ago, the United States stood ready to prevent, by force, if necessary, the passage of the belligerents across the neutral territory of Honduras. This was pointed out by diplomats last night as indicative of the gravity of Gen. Toledo's offense against the Pan-American compact.

That the revolutionists under Gen. Chamorro are making preparations for the final and decisive struggle within the next three or four days was announced last night by Senator Salazar, the representative here of the Nicaraguan provisional government. The revolutionists have been short of ammunition and, for that reason, he said, have hesitated to take any serious steps looking to winding up the struggle. Situated as they are at the present time, the revolutionists are content, apparently, to wait until they are fully prepared before they strike home. Sen. Salazar pointed out that with the coast line in possession of his compatriots, securing ammunition and arms is now a simple matter of only a few days. In the meantime, he says, Gen. Chamorro maintains his position in the steep hills overlooking Greytown and holds the Zelayan forces at his mercy.

The department was informed yesterday that Leonard Grace, who is believed to have been executed with Leroy Cannon by order of President Zelaya, was a native of Hempstead, Texas, where his family is said now to reside.

A. E. Ganley, one of the instructors of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance league, is again spending one day each week in Lowell at the plant of the American Hide and Leather company, where he is presenting the subject of savings bank life insurance. Mr. Ganley has been meeting with great success in introducing the system at the Fore River Ship Building company, Quincy, and elsewhere. Another concern near Lowell that has lately become an agency for savings bank insurance is the Talbot mills, North Billerica. The savings insurance plan, as authorized by the legislature in 1907, is gradually winning its way in the state. A considerable impetus has been given by the annual statement of the Whitman Savings bank, the pioneer institution in starting the experiment, which showed that during the year ending Oct. 31, 1909, profits of more than $4000 were accumulated, giving the wage earners, the benefit of dividends of 6 and 7 per cent according to the kind of policy carried.

SCENES IN NICARAGUAN REVOLUTION WHERE TWO AMERICANS WERE EXECUTED

U.S.S. DES MOINES

REFUGEES AT GREYTOWN

JOSE SANTOS ZELAYA

CONSPIRACY AT MANAGUA

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—The United States government took prompt action in the disturbance in Nicaragua following the execution of two Americans, Leroy Cannon and Leonard Grace, who were put to death as rebels by order of President Jose Santos Zelaya. It was announced in Managua that the men were captured while planting mines and that they had explosives and electrical apparatus in their possession which the rebels intended to use in blowing up a Nicaraguan gunboat. Both men are said to be soldiers of fortune. Cannon was a resident of Harrisburg, Pa., and is said to have engaged in a revolution in Honduras. This is denied by his friends. The navy department at once ordered the Vicksburg and the Des Moines, two warships, to the scene of the trouble, and it is declared at Washington that unless there is a prompt and adequate explanation on the part of Zelaya marines will occupy the ports of his country. At all events, it is believed that the United States will put a quiescent to the revolution at once. It is asserted in dispatches from Managua that Cannon and Grace were tried by court martial and given every chance to prove their innocence. This is not believed at Washington.

BOWLING NOTES

The Y. M. C. I. Team Defeated Sacred Heart

The Y. M. C. I. and the Sacred Heart teams of the Catholic bowling league met on the alleys last night with the result that the former team gave the latter a severe trouncing. In the Lamson league the Pneumatics defeated the Carriers by a wide margin.

Teams representing the New England Telephone and Telegraph company and Lowell Electric Light corporation rolled last night, the former team winning by the narrow margin of eight pins.

The game between teams from Companies M and G of the local army was won by Company M by ten pins.

POLISH WRESTLER WON

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Zebysko, the Polish wrestler, won a handicap match last night by throwing three men in a little more than half an hour. Zebysko attempted to throw the trio in an hour. Tom Winkelhofer was the hardest to down, but he was thrown in 13.35 with a scissor and a headlock. John Ebert was pinned to the mat in 10.34 with a crotch and barlock, while Leo Dumont succumbed in 1.20 on a crotch hold.

ST. ANNE'S MISSION

THE 22d ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED

The 22d anniversary of the establishment of St. Anne's mission at North Billerica was observed last night at the pretty little mission house. The interior of the building was artistically decorated, the attendance was very large and the affair proved to be an unqualified success.

The exercises opened with a short address by Mr. A. E. Paul after which Rev. A. St. John Chamber, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church in Lowell, was called upon.

One of the features of the evening was the entertainment which was in charge of John W. Stott. The following numbers were given: Selections by Elwyn Thomas' orchestra of Boston; readings, Miss Kellell; sketch, "The Crystal Gazer," by Joseph Bailey and Miss Eva Pickles; vocal selections, Miss Olive Fleming of Lowell; readings, Maurice O'Donnell.

Mrs. Lucy Mills had general charge of the affair, being ably assisted by E. J. Garner and Joseph Brown. John W. Stott had charge of the entertainment.

Those who presided over the sales (sales were: Girls' Friendly table, Miss Mary H. Brown, matron; Misses Elizabeth Vain, Alice Mills, Ada Garner and Mildred Garner.

Mystery table, Mrs. James Sanson, chairman; Miss Mildred Fitch, Marion Williams, May Casson.

Guilt table, Mrs. E. J. Garner, Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. Albert W. Dawson, Mrs. William McBride.

Candy table, Misses May Sutcliffe, Blanche Williams.

Ice cream table, James Sanson, William Vain, Harold Tivey.

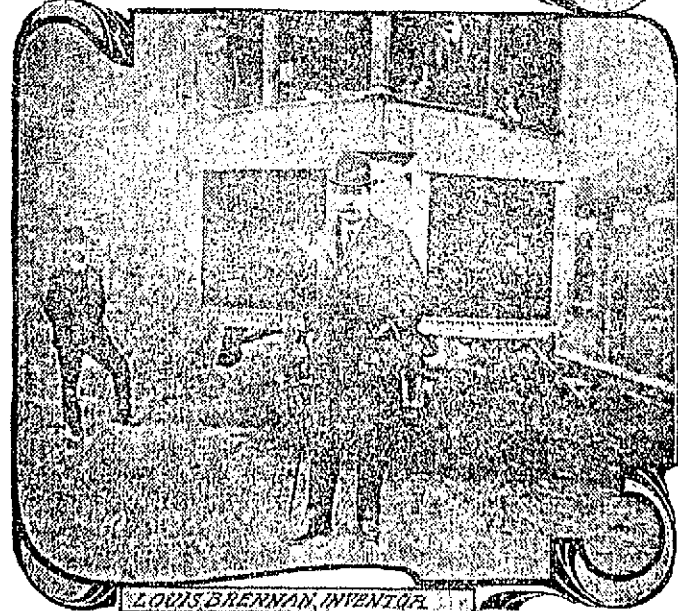

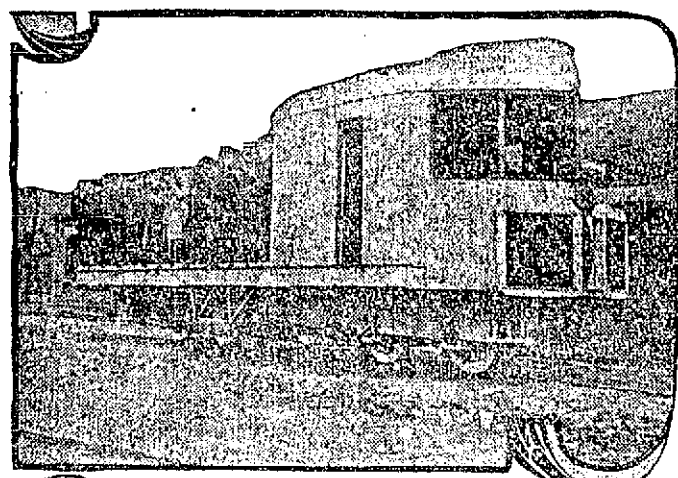

The decorating committee was composed of the following: Miss M. H. Brown, chairman; Mrs. Jonathan Williams, Mrs. William McBride, Mrs. James Sanson, Arthur Brown and Jas. Sanson. The affair will be continued tonight.

MERRILL CASE

FIRST PHOTOS OF MONORAIL CAR AND ITS TRYOUT IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 20.—These are the first photographs to reach America of Louis Brennan's monorail gyroscop, upon which the British government is to spend $500,000 in establishing an absolutely new method of transportation. A car forty feet in length, bearing fifty persons, was tried out at Canningham, England, a few days ago, and these pictures of the machine and its inventor, who also invented the Brennan torpedo, were taken on that occasion.

WAGE REDUCTION THREATENED IN FALL

Is Threatened in Fall River

FALL RIVER, Nov. 20.—The 30,000 operatives in the four-score cotton mills of Fall River will face a reduction of nearly 9 per cent. in their wages on Dec. 13, unless the manufacturers decide to waive their right to make a cut under the so-called sliding scale agreement which has been in force for several years.

The existing situation is due to the great cost of cotton during the past six months and the failure of the finished product to advance correspondingly.

According to the terms of the agreement the margin between the cost of cotton and the price of standard-print cloths will warrant a reduction from 19 2-3 cents per cut for weaving to 18 cents, or about 9 per cent.

The cloth market is very dull because of the uncertainty as to the future course of the raw material.

FAMOUS EDITOR

Served During the Civil War

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Richard Watson Gilder, poet, lecturer and editor-in-chief of the Century Magazine, who died suddenly in New York, was born in Bordentown, N. J., on February 8, 1844. After completing his education he enlisted in a Philadelphia battery, serving during a part of the civil war, after which he was for a time engaged in the railway business. In 1865 he took up newspaper work in Newark and in 1870 became managing editor of Scribner's monthly. He was honored with degrees at Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Wesleyan and many other universities, and his writings have been read in all civilized countries.

EXCITING RUNAWAY

RESULTING FROM COLLISION IN WESTFORD STREET

An exciting runaway took place in Westford street early last evening in which Daniel Reid, driver for Dr. E. W. Trueworthy of Middlesex street, was painfully injured and the carriage in which he was riding was smashed almost to splinters.

Reid was driving through Westford street about 7 o'clock. There was a grocery wagon standing at the corner of Bellevue street, but owing to the absence of an electric light at that point Reid did not see the other vehicle, the first he knew of it being when the carriage in which he was riding collided with the other wagon.

The force of the impact frightened Dr. Trueworthy's horse and it became unmanageable and dashed down Westford street as far as the armory, where it was stopped. Meanwhile, Reid had been thrown out, injuring his shoulder and scratching his face and hands severely. Fortunately he escaped without broken bones, however.

The horse was not injured, but the physician's carriage was badly smashed up when it was taken to the stable.

CUDAHY BOY

SAID TO BE IN THIS CITY YESTERDAY

It was reported about the city yesterday that the Cudahy boy who was kidnapped by "Pat Crowe" about nine years ago, was here and to prove that all interest in a kidnapping that occurred so many years ago has not been dissipated, a small army hung about the Cudahy packing house in Market street anxious for a glimpse of young Cudahy. A reporter for The Sun was one of the curious, and he learned that the Cudahy young man who dropped off in Lowell was not the fellow who had been kidnapped by "Pat" Crowe, but a brother of the boy who was kidnapped. The young man who visited here this afternoon was Joseph Cudahy. He has an interest in the business and makes frequent visits to the various houses of the Cudahy Co.

SECOND FLOOR

STURDY GRAPPLERS WHO WILL MEET FOR IRISH CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The sporting public is finding that with a sudden rise of interest in the glove and squared circle pastime, caused perhaps by the Jeffries-Johnson agreement, a similar boom has struck the wrestling game. Promoters all over the country are in an earnest endeavor to boost the strenuous mat game back to the old place it occupied in the hearts of the sport-loving public. Many big bouts have been pulled off, and more are to come. The next big match on the calendar is between Con O'Kelley and Pat Connelley, two sturdy sons of Ireland, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Nov. 23. Both left the "old sod" with clean records and a desire to grapple with Frank Gotch, the champion. Both claim the Irish title, and each says he has been bounding the other all over the country in vain. O'Kelley is certainly young enough, big enough and husky enough to give a good account of himself. His chief line of endeavor so far has been in the amateur field. He won the heavyweight Olympic title by disposing of Lee Talbot, the American weight man.

CLOSING CAMPAIGN

Some Hot Rallies Held Last Evening by Mayoralty Candidates

The eye of the caucus finds the several democratic candidates for mayor making several speeches daily, and the republican candidate making a grandstand play at city hall. In the excitement over the mayoralty struggle the contests for aldermen and purchasing agent have been overlooked, though the candidates are losing no time.

On every side one hears the question oft repeated: "Well, who's going to win the nomination?" and "How many votes will win it?" Much small betting is being made, but there are few confident enough to lay big wagers for never were candidates more evenly matched before a caucus. The wise ones estimate that the winner will get from 1200 to 1500 votes and many pools are being made as to the number of votes each candidate will receive.

Two Meehan Rallies

John F. Meehan addressed two large rallies in wards two and seven last evening, speaking first at the corner of Broadway and Adams street, and afterward at the corner of Broadway and School street. Mr. Meehan spoke on his record, referring to his work in the legislature on behalf of all measures that furthered the interests of the working people of the state.

Mr. Meehan challenged an examination of his record in the legislature as the criterion by which to judge of what he would do if elected mayor, whether he would safeguard the people's interests and give them a fair, honest and progressive administration of affairs. He urged the voters to attend the caucuses and cast their votes for the strongest, the most reliable and most competent man who seeks the nomination for mayor. If nominated, he knew that he could lead the party to victory.

O'Donnell Addresses Overflow

For the first time since the campaign started James E. O'Donnell addressed an outdoor meeting last evening, for when he arrived at the Social club, in Salem street he found the club room packed and a large gathering standing in the street unable to gain admittance. Mr. O'Donnell addressed the gathering within the club house, first speaking on his legislative record and the necessity of nominating the strongest candidate so as to insure success at the polls. He then addressed the overflow meeting and was most enthusiastically received. Mr. O'Donnell spoke to another large gathering in the store at the corner of Broadway and Willis street, dealing with matters of interest to all citizens in the selection of a mayoralty candidate.

Maloney at Davis Square

William E. Maloney addressed rallies in his behalf at Davis square and at Lawrence and Agawam streets. Mr. Maloney took up the discussion of the question of Lowell's tenement property and the need of better dwellings for the poorer people of the city. He also advocated public baths and more playgrounds. Mr. Maloney spoke on the necessity of party harmony after the caucuses. He was loudly applauded. He dwelt upon the need of conducting the business of the city in a progressive way and not sacrifice that business to political chicanery. "The people should get more for the four million dollars annually expended, and if elected I will see that they get it," said Mr. Maloney.

Major Crowley

Major Robert J. Crowley held three rousing rallies last night and at all of his rallies he scored the present mayor for his failure to investigate the charges by Harry H. W. Howe, of the charity board, relative to conditions at the city farm. The rallies were held at the High street engine house; Odd Fellows' hall, Centralville, and the Centralville club in Laveview avenue. The rallies were well attended and there was enthusiasm galore. James F. Miskella presided at the meeting in the High street engine house and the speakers at the other meetings, besides Mr. Crowley, were Wm. A. Hogan, Esq., and Edward J. Tierney, Esq. At the meeting in Odd Fellows hall, Chas. H. Stowey, Jr. presided.

He said his only concern is to beat the present mayor who is the inferior of every one of the democratic candidates running.

Daily in Ward Four

John W. Daly addressed a rousing rally in the Lyon street school room last evening, a large gathering of ward four voters turning out to hear him. Mr. Daly discussed the local issues in an intelligent and comprehensive manner, pointing out certain needs of the city which he would endeavor to bring about if elected. He urged his hearers to unite upon the candidate of the party, whoever he might be, and assured them that if he were nominated he would work for whoever the majority might select. He made a good impression and won much applause.

JAIL SENTENCE

For Man Charged With Forging Check

HOLYOKE, Nov. 20.—William J. Wise, formerly a salesman for the Robinson clay product company of New York city, was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge E. W. Chapin at the police court yesterday morning on the charge of forging a check for $40.47 on the Home national bank of Holyoke on July 17. Detectives located Wise and he was arrested at Manville, R. I., 10 days ago. Wise asked Tuesday for a stay of a few days, that he might get the money from his father, whom he said lived at New Berlin, O., but the money was not forthcoming.

Witnesses to the forgery charge were J. K. Foster of the Robinson company and Robert Cadden, teller at the Home bank.

Wise in his behalf claimed that he had money due him from the company and signed the name of J. J. Day as manager because he was afraid to forge the name of Mr. Foster. There is no man by the name of J. J. Day in the employ of the company. Before court concluded, Inspector J. J. Fields of the Nashua, N. H. police department arrived and alleged that Wise had passed worthless checks to the amount of $300 in that city.

Wise was photographed by the local police and his photograph will be sent to several cities to see if he has not been playing the same game elsewhere.

Democrats: James E. O'Donnell wants you to vote for him as your candidate for mayor at the caucuses next Tuesday. He will appreciate your support and will guarantee an energetic and successful campaign if you honor him with the nomination.

REV. JOHN GALVIN

SOMERVILLE PRIEST DIED IN CARNEY HOSPITAL

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Rev. John R. Galvin, pastor of St. Ann's church, Winter Hill, died yesterday at Carney hospital.

Fr. Galvin, who was 67 years old, was born in Ireland. In 1870 he entered St. Joseph's seminary, Troy, N. Y., and there he was ordained in 1874. He was early assigned to Lynn and to Arlington churches, but in 1875 went to St. Mary's church, Charlestown, remaining there six years, and was then transferred to the Winter Hill church, where he remained the rest of his days.

Three years ago his parishioners celebrated the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the parish with a notable observance.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1908 was

15,956

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martha H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1909. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

OUR TARIFF DRIVES INDUSTRIES TO CANADA.

The excessive tariff imposed against Canada is having its result in driving industries over the border in order to meet the Canadian demand for certain goods, and in some cases to manufacture goods for the American market. This is the result of protection gone mad.

It is no wonder that Eugene N. Foss made great inroads on the republican majority in this state as an advocate of reciprocity with Canada. From the Canadian Manufacturers' association comes the boast that more than $150,000,000 of American capital has been driven across the border on account of tariff extortions imposed by the United States. This is largely represented in paper mills.

Canada is a large importer of our cotton goods, but if she imposes a retaliatory tariff on cotton fabrics also, we may see American concerns going over into Canada to start cotton mills and thus reap a harvest in the Dominion markets. In nine months of last year we exported to Canada cotton goods to the amount of $1,698,619. By putting on a tariff Canada can at a single blow destroy this market and to that extent injure the industry in this country.

It is not improbable that Canada will soon impose an export duty on wood pulp for the manufacture of paper in order to force American manufacturers to establish more plants on the other side of the line.

The recklessness with which our spruce forests were ground up for wood pulp gives Canada the advantage over us, and unless we relax our severe tariff policy towards Canada, she may decide to impose the export duty on wood pulp and thus leave the American paper mills without the raw material except at a prohibitive price.

PICK THE BEST MEN FOR ALL OFFICES.

The democrats of Lowell have given attention thus far in the campaign, mainly to the matter of selecting a mayoralty candidate which in itself is of course very important; but it is also important that the best men be chosen for the various other offices. There is a considerable number of names from which to select nine aldermen. In this, as in the mayoralty, do not waste votes on weak candidates; vote only for the strongest men.

On the list of aldermanic candidates are the names of some men who cannot be elected. They should have decency enough not to burden the ticket every year as they do, although knowing that they have not the slightest chance of nomination. Nevertheless, in spite of those who use the democratic ticket at the primaries for advertising purposes, there are enough good men to select from, and it is up to the voters not to be imposed upon by these perfunctory candidates.

It should not be forgotten that the common council is an important branch of our city government, coordinate with the board of aldermen and the mayoralty. Therefore, it is important to select men for that body who, if elected, will serve the city acceptably and at the same time reflect credit upon themselves and their party. Do not select mere boys for any office. They can afford to wait.

For every office, high and low, select the very best men available. This is the only way in which the interests of the city can be served and the intelligence of the democracy vindicated.

But unless a voter attends the primaries he cannot share in the selection of candidates, good or bad. The man who remains away from the primaries shirks his duty and bears a heavy share of the responsibility for whatever blunders may be made in the selection of weak, incompetent or dishonest candidates instead of men of the opposite type.

THE CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

It is now settled beyond peradventure that the House of Lords will reject the Budget and force a general election in the British Isles. This will bring to a climax the question of allowing the lords to retain the hereditary privileges by which they are entitled to seats in the upper house without being affected by elections or even by public opinion.

There is a clamor in this country for the popular election of United States senators, and it is bound to come. Similarly in England some reform is inevitable in the constitution of the House of Lords. The time has arrived when the people will not tolerate a feudal body, such as the House of Lords, to veto popular measures and even to interfere with the financial affairs of the government as the peers have recently undertaken to do and as they have done on the question of adopting the present measure for increased taxation.

There is little doubt that the people will vote by a large majority against the attitude of the lords and in favor of the Budget. That will send the liberals back to power with a mandate from the people to overrule the upper house. The lords after such a decision from the people will not dare reject any measure bearing upon their legislative powers or upon financial matters. In fact the coming election will bring about a new era in England if the lords are beaten, and even the king of England expects they will be.

The whole contest is but a step in the onward march of progress which has been noticeable in the British empire for the past quarter of a century. The lords have steadily resisted the popular demand for certain reforms, and this exercise of their power in the face of adverse public opinion has increased the opposition to their domination until it has become irresistible.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE IN A CHILDREN'S HOME.

The authorities of the Children's Home on Myrtle street, Providence, have to explain the cause of twenty-three deaths of children in the space of four months. This home, like most others, has no attending physician who was supposed to look after the health and treatment of the children. That so many died of diseases, mainly intestinal or diarrhoea, must be very embarrassing to him as pointing to a common cause in practically all the cases, and something which, it seems, might have been promptly remedied. This physician fearing that the milk supply might not be the best during the hot weather ordered condensed milk to be used instead. Either this milk was bad or it was improperly prepared, so that the children were affected with indigestion and diarrhoea. These ailments continued to cause deaths among the children until twenty-three had been snatched away in about four months.

The case is being investigated, and in view of so many deaths, due to deleterious food for such a long period, it seems that somebody has been guilty of criminal negligence.

From the time the children at first took sick there was ample opportunity to find the cause of the trouble and have it remedied without waiting for deaths. If the object had been to kill the children by bad food and lack of care, it seems that it would have been difficult to do a more effective job.

The physician who gave orders to drop cow's milk and use condensed milk for all the children, including the very young, did not seem to share the prevailing opinion relative to the comparative merits of pure cow's milk and condensed milk. The best substitute for Nature's food is "modified milk," and the doctor who ordered condensed milk for all the babies, whether it killed them or not, did not apply ordinary common sense, not to speak of the best medical skill. The children died mainly of improper feeding continued persistently for several months. Had some old woman of common sense who had had children of her own been placed in charge of the home, in all probability there would be no deaths from improper feeding.

SEEN AND HEARD

A woman never doubts the truth of a statement that she thinks ought to be true.

Every time a chronic kicker slugs his toe he imagines the world is against him.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to keep his troubles to himself—if he has none.

Nothing lowers a man so much in the estimation of his friends as being always on his uppers.

They do tell that there is one woman in Lowell who so despises men that she will not look at the moon.

It might be well for married people who quarrel to remember that no man is always wrong and no woman is always right.

The average man can't see anything wrong with his conduct as long as he is in a position to look through the bars of a jail from the outside.

When you go looking for a new job in the building where you are at present employed, be sure that you get the right door. A girl who found the wrong door, the other day, walked into the room that she had just left and came within an ace of meeting the boss face to face.

THE IDEAL WOMAN

No goddess she, unfit for worldly care, Nor yet a nymph, too light to tread the sod.

Nor fairly over-bright for daily wear, Nor yet a sprite, spurning an earthly clod.

She is no empress, with imperious scorn, Nor yet a queen, of proud forbidding mien,

Yes, all those are not to man's manner born, But in sweet kindness, his wish is seen.

The tender hand that ministers to pain, The cheerful look of honest helpfulness,

The joyous laugh, better than golden gain, That drives his dull care into not-mingness,

'Tis these transform her into helpful light, While man wins in this world's awful night.

—Henry Irving Nicholas

A very amusing incident occurred in a Lowell shop, a manufacturing company, a few days ago. It seems that a piece of broken mirror was thrown beneath a machine and a woman catching sight of it from a rather awkward position thought it was a hole in the floor. On the floor below girls were at work and the woman who mistook the mirror for a hole in the floor thought it would be a good joke to drop something down on the head of the nearest girl. She knew who was at work directly beneath her on the next floor and calling the other girls about her she said she was about to drop something on the head of the girl below, calling her name, but just at that moment the woman discovered that what she thought was a hole was a piece of a mirror. She realized it only when she saw the reflection of her own face in the glass, and of course the sodas were on her.

An eighteen-year-old Irish girl, the Honorable Mary Westera, has just been made master of the Monaghan Hunt at Rossmore, Ireland. The young lady, who is pretty and a social favorite, seems capable of filling the position. As an example of the strenuous life she leads it is related in the Queen that she hunted all a hard day last winter with the Pychley, and back after it to her aunt's house in Market Harborough, changed, had a bit of dinner, travelled all that night, and her home (Rossmore), had breakfast on arrival, then into a habit again and hunted all that day with the Monaghan Harriers, and the next day had a horse running in each of the three races of the Hunt Point to Point and won all three—a fairly good performance for an eighteen-year-old girl. She loves dancing and music, rides well, paints, plays tennis, golf and other games.

Not many people are aware that the huge vaults that extend under practically the whole of St. James palace are utilized for the storage of wine required for the various royal residences and a very complete bottling establishment there. The still wines for the king's table, such as hock, chablis, port and claret, are all bought in bulk and after being allowed to mature properly are bottled there, and stored away until they are required. In addition to Buckingham palace, Windsor castle and Sandringham, bottling takes place here for Marlborough house, Clarence house and other residences of the different members of the royal family. Large purchases of wine are made every year as opportunely offers, and experts are constantly employed traveling about the vineyards of the continent seeking suitable vineyards. It will be gratifying to colonial cousins to learn, says the Buffalo Express, that in recent years both the king and queen have shown a great liking for the light wines of Australia, and a large stock of these wines is now maintained at St. James palace. All the wines bottled carry plain labels, with the name of the wine and the vintage on them in gold letters, surrounded by the royal crown.

CANDIDATE

LETTER

To the

PEOPLE

WM. E. MALONEY

FELLOW DEMOCRATS:

We are approaching the day of a great battle. The climax of a clean cut, thoroughly aggressive campaign in the democratic ranks that has won for our party the respect of the entire community.

You will be called upon Tuesday to NOMINATE THOSE MEN BEST FITTED TO LEAD THE HOSTS OF DEMOCRACY TO VICTORY at the coming city election.

My friends, put aside all the thoughts but the dictates of your common judgment. Your work of Tuesday next will not be merely the bestowing a prize. YOU ARE TO SELECT A RELIABLE SERVANT TO GUARD A SACRED TRUST. You are not to choose a mascot. YOU are to select a GENERAL TO WIN YOUR BATTLE, an agent to do your work.

In making this choice THERE ARE TWO VERY IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER. First, the candidate's ability to serve the people of the city, and second the candidate's ability to lead the party to victory at the polls. Let us FIRST CONSIDER THE QUALITIES THAT GO TO MAKE A SUCCESSFUL PUBLIC SERVANT.

HE MUST BE HONEST, there is no question on this point; he must be honest, but he must be something more. HE MUST BE EXPERIENCED IN BUSINESS AFFAIRS FOR THE SPENDING OF FOUR MILLION DOLLARS OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY yearly is surely a matter of the greatest importance.

To successfully administer the affairs of any great business A MAN MUST HAVE HAD YEARS OF BUSINESS EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING for it is the careful attention to and the nice adjustment of the details, the little things of any business that determines success or failure of that business, and this acquaintance with business detail is obtained only in practical business or official experiences.

To be a suitable public servant a man must have a SPOTLESS REPUTATION for honesty and also he must have a high standing in the business world, but beyond being honest and able our ideal public servant of today must have one other qualification, he must be aggressive. In other words he must not only mean well and know his business, but he must be a man of energy with plenty of push with a passion for improvement and perfection. He must be ever ready to fight for DECENCY, PROGRESS AND RIGHT, as otherwise his knowledge will likely go with his good intentions to pave the road to failure.

So much for a man's ability to serve after he is elected; the other point we must consider is our candidate's ability to win the election for no matter how great or noble or perfect our candidate may be he will do us no good as the man who ran but was defeated.

To be a successful candidate at the polls a man must have great energy, A HIGH PURPOSE, AND NO ENEMIES.

Consider carefully the position of the various candidates in this campaign. If this one were to be nominated what factions, cliques, etc., are there in Lowell which he has been unfortunate enough to offend and which will in all probability oppose his election at the polls. Take the next man. If he were nominated, how will the same argument work against him?

I firmly believe that beyond qualifications which I possess by reason of many years of business experience that I am the strongest candidate to lead the DEMOCRATIC party to a successful battle against George H. Brown at the coming election.

For although at present everything points to a Democratic victory at the polls, the Democrats must not be led into believing that any candidate can easily win this election. The aggressive candidate with a reasonably active campaign will be able to SCORE A GREAT VICTORY, but it's up to you, the Democratic voters of this city, to turn out at the caucuses to the last man and name a sure winner at the polls.

I am confident that I am the man to lead you to victory on election day.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM E. MALONEY,
Democratic Candidate for Mayor,
255 Foster Street.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN

Favored Mayor's Scheme to Investigate Charity Board

Mayor's Motive in Bringing Up Investigation at This Time is Questioned—Common Council Took No Action on Matter

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held last night. The meeting was called for the purpose of drawing jurors, but there was something else in store for the unexpected members of the board and the something else was in the nature of a communication from the mayor in which he suggested the appointment of committees to investigate the water and the charity board. The communication was looked upon as another of the mayor's political moves but that this one is a bit belated. One alderman said the mayor had had all year to investigate these departments and that he should have investigated them. "He should have investigated the water board," said the alderman, "because in the beginning of the year he said he would investigate it. He said so in his inaugural. The water board invited investigation as did the board of assessors at the time he made his spurge there, but he didn't act and now when the president of the water board is a candidate for mayor and criticizing the mayor for failing to investigate the charges made by Charity Commissioner Howe relative to conditions at the city farm, the mayor comes out with a letter suggesting the appointment of investigating committees. It is too late now to do anything until after election and if he does do anything it cannot be said but that he was forced to it."

The mayor states in his communication that it is because of public statements made by the president of the water board relative to the management of the charity department that the mayor would suggest the investigation of both the water and the charity departments.

The communication was acted upon. The board voting to appoint committees providing the common council concurred. Two joint orders accompanied the communication, but they didn't count because they were not endorsed. The orders were tabled. The communication was under consideration. Alderman Badger moved that "if the common council concurs, a committee be appointed to comprise two aldermen and three councilmen to investigate the water board."

Alderman Connors said there were no charges before the board and he did not see how the board could properly proceed to investigate a department when there were no charges to investigate. He said he did not wish to be understood as opposing an investigation of the water board, but he thought this a rather late date for the mayor to spring it. He said that the mayor had spoken of it in his inaugural address, which indicated a desire for an immediate investigation of the department. Alderman Connors wondered why the mayor waited until election time to ask for an investigation.

Ald. Dexter allowed that the water board would welcome an investigation. He was of the opinion that the people men, the latter amount to pay December salaries for 15 additional firemen, was referred to the committee.

On the question of 15 additional firemen, Councilmen Flanagan, Killpatrick, Achin, Kearns and others favored the order.

Councilman Genest argued against the order.

The vote showed 24 in favor and 1 against, Councilman Genest alone voting against. The other transfers were unanimously voted.

The report of the committee on streets, including that of the First Trinitarian Congregational church, for a wider sidewalk, was sent to the city clerk's office for seven days.

On motion of Councilman Flanagan it was voted to omit the next regular meeting, owing to the primaries next Tuesday night.

Adjourned.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Thomas Flaherty and Miss Grace Anna Mansur were united in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 21 Third street, the marriage ceremony being performed by Rev. George F. Kennebec. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Harriet A. Mansur, while Fred Mansur, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The bride wore a handsome dark gray traveling suit and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was given away by her father, Mr. Fred Mansur. After the ceremony a reception was held to immediate friends and relatives and light refreshments were served. Later they left on a trip to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Flaherty will be at home to their friends at 21 Third street after Jan. 1.

THE EVENING HIGH

Alumni Addressed by Prof. Hugh J. Molloy

Prof. Hugh Molloy of the state Normal school spoke before the Evening High school alumni last evening on Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities." The lecture was decidedly interesting, the subject being finely handled by the lecturer.

Preceding the lecture a brief business meeting was held, President John

PROFESSOR HUGH J. MOLLOY
Of the Normal School.

H. Shea presiding, Mr. William P. Thornton, then installed the following newly elected officers: President, James P. Riley; vice-president, Josephine G. Gormley; recording secretary, Elliot F. Wood; financial secretary, Lulu Hart; treasurer, Lillian H. Hobbs. President-elect Riley introduced Prof. Molloy, who spoke in part as follows:

"Lawrence Hutton says in his essay on Dickens: 'Pecksniff will live almost as long as hypocrisy lasts; Uriah Heep will not be forgotten while mock humblity exists; Barkis will be quoted until men cease to be willin,' and so long as cheap, rough coats cover faith and charity, and honest hearts, the world will remember that Captain Cuttle and the Peggottys were so clad."

The world laughed and cried over Micawber, Captain Cuttle, Daniel Peggotty and Caleb Plummer, behind the footlights years after their contemporaries in the standard and legitimate drama created solely for dramatic representation, were absolutely forgotten.

"We are to consider a wonderful story by a maker of many wonderful stories. . . . Today in English book sales Dickens is surpassed only by the Bible and Shakespeare. . . . But many readers who have an acquaintance with Charles Dickens have never read 'A Tale of Two Cities.' The work marked a notable departure for the novelist in story writing, and went far toward satisfying a great artistic longing and ambition. . . . The story was written 50 years ago, in 1859, and was inspired, to a great extent by Carlyle's wonderful and epic-like history of the French revolution, a work which Dickens read 20 times or more. He set himself the task of writing a picturesque story, rising in every chapter with characteristic truth to nature, but whom the story itself should express more than they should express themselves with dialog.

"He thought of calling the story 'One of These Days,' or 'Buried Alive,' or 'The Thread of Gold,' then 'The Story of Beauvais,' and finally the title which it now holds. It has been played in this country under the title, 'The Only Way.'"

"He shows the London of George the Third, and the Paris of Louis XVI and his unfortunate Marie Antoinette; that Paris which witnessed three striking and intensely dramatic passages of an animated king through its streets; in 1789, when the court returned under compulsion from Versailles; a second time in 1791, when the despotic king was brought back from his flight to the frontier; and the third and fatal journey, when Louis was borne to the guillotine.

"Dickens' land is peopled with nearly 200 characters; in some of the stories they are overwhelming in number; in this one, fortunately, they are comparatively few. The plot is intricate and many subtle connections escape a careless or thoughtless reader; but the story fairly rushes on as if the author were, to borrow Mr. Whipple's quotation, "Like one, that on a lonesome road, Doth walk in fear and dread, And, having once turned round, walks on, And turns no more his head; Because he knows a frightful fiend Doth close behind him tread."

On Sydney Carton he said: "He is the hero and central figure of the story, one of the noblest characters in the literature of fiction. William Allen White said of him: 'The conception of this character shows in its author an ideal of magnanimity and of charity never surpassed. There is not a grander, nobler figure than the self-wrecked, self-devoted Sydney Carton, in literature or history.' The undying character of the human soul, the intensity of the longing for better things, stand forth vividly in this portrayal of Carton's character. When, at times, it would seem that the divine spark had died out utterly and forever, we suddenly find the fire of divine origin smoldering and ready to be revived. Nothing is hopeless but invincible despair and obstinacy.

"The world of fiction is a wonderful and fascinating world, with its own saints and sinners, its angels of light and demons of darkness, its heroes and its cowards, its just and unjust, its true and its false, the counterparts of the real and the visible world; nay, it is the real world and its personages. Like the woman who wept at the feet of Jesus, many sins are forgiven Sydney Carton because he loved much.

"Poor, erring, generous, noble Sydney Carton! How Dickens must have loved that unhappy, brilliant child of his own great heart and mind. Oh, that wonderful genius that from the battered and sin-stained rags of a mis-spent life in London, did weave a splendid garment of white and gold to grace that dreadful scene in the blood-soaked streets of Paris. If the great novelist had drawn no other heroic character—and he created many—he would have done mankind a sterling service by raising in that abyss of brutality, in that veritable inferno where every vestige of a Christ for a time had disappeared, a noble and splendid personality, to proclaim anew the truth, so often forgotten by blinded men, that man is created in the image and the likeness of the true and living God."

The next lecture in the series to be held by the alumni will be given by John H. Harrington, who will speak on "Travels in Europe."

GREAT SHAKE-UP

In the U. S. Customs Department.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—"We are in the midst of the greatest shake-up in the history of the United States customs department," said William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, last night, when shown Secretary MacVeagh's summary of the work thus far accomplished in cleaning up the New York customs house.

"More employees have been dismissed from the New York office since I took charge than during the entire previous history of the service," he continued, "and we are not through yet. We are going to keep at it until the New York customs house is made thoroughly respectable."

"Secretary MacVeagh's statement in Washington shows what we had accomplished up to today. Add to that the nineteen employees dismissed today and you will see that we have gone pretty thoroughly into the matter. I am continuing the investigation, and I can say that there are more heads to be lopped off soon."

Mr. Loeb's house cleaning took him into high places yesterday. Among those dismissed yesterday afternoon was James N. Vail, deputy collector of this the biggest customs house in the country. Mr. Vail expressed great indignation at his removal. "I have been made the scapegoat," he said. "Not only have I been absolutely faithful to the government for the entire 22 years I have been in the service but it is a known fact that while I was at the head of the weighing department, I ferreted out the original frauds."

ST. MARY'S MEN OF PARISH BUILD FOUNDATION FOR RESIDENCE

The male members of St. Mary's parish, Collinsville, are working day and night, putting in the foundation for the new parochial residence which will be located close to the church on the south side. The women of the parish are planning several social events in aid of the church.

ANNIVERSARY MASS
At St. Peter's church, Monday morning at 8 o'clock, an anniversary high mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of the souls of the late Paul A. and the late Charles P. Sullivan, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis P. Sullivan, of Warwick street, who died about a year ago within a few weeks of each other.

GIFT OF $150,000

Received by Trustees of Art Museum

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—Previous to his death on July 6, Robert Dawson Evans of this city instructed his wife to present to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts the sum of $150,000 and the trustees of the museum now announce that the gift has been received from the widow.

Of the present gift $125,000 has been placed in the new maintenance fund, for which an appeal was recently issued. Twenty-five thousand dollars of the total of $150,000 completes Mr. Evans' subscription.

Mr. Evans was a genuine lover of art, and particularly of paintings, his gifts of a Van Dyke and a double portrait by Rubens creating much interest and attention.

During the 24 hours ending at noon yesterday the art museum directors received $53,000 toward its maintenance fund.

This makes the total of the fund up to last night $126,435, exclusive of the Evans gift.

Is the democratic party going to ignore a splendid opportunity to elect its candidate for mayor or will the members of that party turn out to a man next Tuesday and vote for James E. O'Donnell, who, democrats and republicans alike concede, is the man that can achieve the defeat of the present mayor?

FATHER TABB DEAD

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—Father John B. Tabb, known in this country and Europe as a poet of high merit, died last night at St. Charles college, Ellicott City, of nervous trouble from which he has long been a sufferer.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Thomas Harold Hanson, 20, machinist, Nashua, N. H., and Miss Marion C. Kennedy, 21, at home, 114 Warwick street.

Dominick McCarthy, 30, blacksmith, 160 Appleton street and Sabina Mulvaney, 30, at home, 209 Elm street.

Grattan C. Sheridan, 30, express driver, 49 Ward street, and Mary A. Gallagher, 28, hostess, 45 E. 10th street.

Albin Olsson, 31, machinist, 151 Blossum street, and Mary Maguire, 20, weaver, 60 First street.

Buclide Page, 35, machinist, 309 W. Sixth street, and Albin Vanasse, 24, operative, 103 Bunch street.

Joseph Pratte, 36, operative, 123 Enroll street, and Anna Vanasse, 26, operative, 103 Bunch street.

Democrats: Your opponents this year will have a candidate for mayor who cannot claim their united support. Liberal republicans will welcome the privilege of voting for Mr. O'Donnell in preference to Mr. Brown. Ask them and they will tell you that James E. O'Donnell is a democrat they respect and whom they will help you to elect as the next mayor of Lowell.

PAY INCREASED BOARD OF HEALTH

$21,500

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Although justices of the supreme court of the United States receive only $12,500 a year, the state supreme court justices sitting in New York city find their present remuneration of $17,500 a year inadequate, and a resolution was adopted yesterday by the city's board of estimate and apportionment increasing their salaries to $21,500. The increase will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1910.

Democrats: Don't be influenced by sentiment artificially manufactured or flattery, but hearken to the judgment of sensible and unselfish men who will tell you that O'Donnell will win the nomination because he is the strongest man to select as your candidate for mayor.

Heard Several Petitions
Yesterday

The board of health met yesterday afternoon, but did not receive plans from the American Hilde & Leather company, for a new beaming plant in Perry street, and the board is still waiting for the plans.

Michael T. Rafferty had petitioned for a permit to build a stable in Auburn street to accommodate 12 horses. Several remonstrants appeared and after hearing their objections Mr. Rafferty withdrew his petition.

Arthur W. Saunders was granted permission to build a stable at Georgia and Pembroke avenues. M. W. Mulcahey received a permit to maintain a stable at Concord and Rogers Sts. No action was taken on the petition to build a stable in Harris court.
